INDICTMENTS VOTED AGAINST
CAPT. GREENSPAN

Grand Jury to Hear More Evidence in Pay-Off Inquiry
Tuesday — Detective
Free on Bond.

Further evidence in the police pay-off investigation is to be presented to the grand jury Tuesday, following three new bribery indictments voted yesterday against Detective Capt. William Greenspan.

"The investigation is continuing and we still have more testimony to present," Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd said. He did not disclose whether the additional evidence relates to Greenspan or to other policemen involved in the inquiry.

Greenspan surrendered at Police Headquarters last night and was released on three $1000 bonds.

On Tuesday Greenspan and Police Lt. F. Lyman Davis were named in bribery indictments, the first returned in the extensive investigation into reported pay-offs to some St. Louis policemen by brothel keepers.

In the new charges, Greenspan is accused of receiving $50 in November, $50 in December and $100 in January from women operating houses of prostitution.

The November and December payments allegedly were made by Mrs. Ethel Clift. The January payment reportedly came from a brothel operator Dowd declined to name.

Basis for two of the new charges against Greenspan was information obtained to the effect the detective captain received $50 personally from Mrs. Clift on two occasions, Dowd stated.

He said Mrs. Clift at the time was living at 4398A Chouteau avenue. This is near a drug store run by James E. Davidson, a key witness in the inquiry. Davidson is alleged to have been an intermediary used by Mrs. Clift in other payments to Greenspan and Davis.

Investigators for the circuit attorney were told that Greenspan visited Mrs. Clift late at night, after making a telephone call to ascertain she would be home.

When the detective captain arrived, Mrs. Clift allegedly handed him the money in an envelope containing $5 and $10 bills.

Greenspan, in a statement to the Post-Dispatch today, said: "The new charges are as untrue as the first charge. I welcome an opportunity for a jury trial on these charges. I am sure that a prostitute's testimony is not worthy of belief."

Greenspan was formerly a lieutenant in the Magnolia avenue district, in which Mrs. Clift's establishment was located. However, at the time of the alleged pay-offs, he was a captain operating out of police headquarters.

The grand jury adjourned at 4:45 p.m. yesterday, after hearing three witnesses—a brothel operator, a former prostitute and an unidentified man. However, the indictment was not announced until after Greenspan surrendered.

The detective captain appeared at headquarters after Maj. James F. Thompson, head of a special police squad named to assist in the pay-off investigation, had gone to his home at 8841A Maffitt avenue looking for him.

Greenspan's bail was provided by Ray Salami, professional bondsman. The detective captain had no comment when he was being booked. He and Lt. Davis, who have been sued

BURGLARS STEAL
LAUNDRY SAFE AS EMPLOYEE SLEEPS

A maintenance man slept soundly at the Uniform Laundry & Dry Cleaning Co., 5090 Easton avenue, while two burglars forced open the front door and dragged a small safe containing $610 outside to the street last night, police reported.

Neighbors were awakened by the racket and called police about 11 p.m. Officers arrived at the scene just after the burglars, identified by neighbors as Negroes, loaded the safe in an automobile which was driven away by a third man.

Police made an investigation of the premises and found the maintenance man, Nelson Morris, 1021 North Thirteenth street, still asleep. He had been staying at the plant because of the transit strike.

A HANDSHAKING EVENT EVERY TIME
HIGH COURT MEETS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Each session of the Supreme Court is preceded by a total of 36 handshakes, Justice Burton disclosed today.

Burton told the National Conference of Editorial Writers that the tradition of each Justice shaking hands with each of the eight others has been scrupulously followed since it was instituted by Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller. Fuller went on the high court in 1888.

Burton devoted his speech largely to the history and traditions of the Supreme Court. He said the continuity of the judicial service is shown from the fact that the service of seven members of the court spans its life.

"A visitor to the court at any time since 1789 would have found there at least one of the following: Cushing, Marshall, Wayne, Field, White, McKendall or Black," Burton said.

GERMAN JUDGE'S VERDICT: DRIVERS
HERE ARE BETTER

Judge Heinrich Rempe of the Landgericht Court, Paderborn, West Germany, handed down an opinion here today: American drivers are much better than those in Europe, and particularly in the U.S. Germany.

Judge Rempe cited, as the basis of his opinion, the education of American drivers through traffic courts. He noted that fines and other punishments are much more severe here than in Europe.

On a tour of the United States to study American courts and court practices, Judge Rempe observed proceedings in the court of United States District Judge George H. Moore yesterday. Today he visited the courtroom of Circuit Judge Franklin Ferriss at Clayton, and tomorrow he will see the disposition of traffic cases in the University City traffic court.

Judge Rempe said that West Germany has had very heavy automobile traffic since World War II and correspondingly heavy court work. He intends to make recommendations to improve traffic courts, on the basis of his study here, when he returns to Germany.

PARTY LEADERS
ON BANDWAGON
FOR STEVENSON

Announcements Arranged by Democratic Committeemen to Stop Rumors of Swing to Harriman.

By EDWARD A. HARRIS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14—Back of the announcement of most Democratic leaders here in support of Adlai E. Stevenson is a politically significant behind-the-scenes story that may play a large part in the presidential election next year.

It also is almost certain to add a touch of bitterness to the growing split between Stevenson and Gov. Averell Harriman of New York in their aspirations for the Democratic nomination for President.

Politely and cultured, the two men may continue to act like close friends on the surface, but they would be scarcely human if unaffected personally by the results of the first round of their undeclared battle, apparently won by Stevenson.

After Visit by DeSapio.
One very important Harriman backer is Tammany leader Carmine DeSapio who was in here yesterday to make a speech. He also was here to hold a private conference with California National Committeeman Paul Ziffren of Los Angeles. It was immediately after this conference at the Fairmont Hotel on Nob Hill, at which DeSapio sought support for Harriman, that Ziffren announced his staunch support of Adlai Stevenson.

One hour earlier, at simultaneous news conferences here and in Los Angeles, Democratic leaders released statements and telegrams backing Stevenson, who as party nominee in 1952 polled more votes than any preceding Democratic candidate.

The telegrams were addressed to Stevenson and signed by hundreds of party officials as well as by many Hollywood film executives. The party officials signed as individuals rather than as officials. This bandwagon "putsch," the first of the new campaign, was no accident. It came as an early blow to Harriman's chances.

It was planned as a shining example for Stevenson adherents in other states, with the hope that the bandwagon will be heavily loaded by the time the former Illinois Governor makes his formal announcement of availability, expected Nov. 19.

Stevenson Reported Puzzled.
Stevenson, who supported Harriman for the nomination in 1952 before he himself was drafted, is said to have been puzzled and surprised by recent developments on the political front. Gov. Harriman, who earlier had told reporters he was "for" Stevenson, now has declined to say he would support him at the convention. Former President Truman, an original Stevenson booster in 1952, told reporters in the East that he would vote for Harriman were he a New Yorker.

Meanwhile, Harriman supporters began to be active in this politically-explosive state. Rumors began to fly that many of the influential party leaders, including committeemen Ziffren, were swinging to Harriman. The rumors became disturbing to some of these leaders, because their personal preference is Stevenson.

To end these rumors Ziffren made a decision. A longtime Stevenson adherent, he supported Harriman whom he also admires greatly, is his second choice, he decided to "lay it on thick."

Presents From Family,
Huge Cake Mark Occasion — Reporters
Give Him 'Labor-Saving' Pajamas.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

DENVER, Oct. 14—Dwight David Eisenhower was a man looking at the world with new hope and new pleasure as he celebrated his sixty-fifth birthday today.

Refreshed and "in a happy birthday mood," the President watched as his wife carried in an armful of gifts from members of his family after breakfast.

Later in the morning, the President was told of other birthday presents, among them gifts from his Cabinet, the 48 state Republican chairmen, his White House staff and correspondents covering the summer White House at Lowry Air Force Base here.

A mid-morning medical bulletin contributed to the "happy birthday" atmosphere. Optimistic in tone, it said the President's electrocardiogram reading "has stabilized at a satisfactory level."

Most of the previous medical bulletins from the hospital have reported that the President's daily cardiology "has shown 'expected evolution,' or 'evolutionary changes.' Press Secretary James C. Hagerty would not go beyond the doctors' findings in interpreting the significance of the cardiology, being stabilized "at a satisfactory level."

Thousands of birthday messages and hundreds of gifts for the man from Abilene poured into the summer White House, where Mrs. Eisenhower is recuperating from a heart attack suffered Sept. 24.

The President's doctors, mindful that their patient still has a long way to go toward full recovery, kept the birthday celebration at a minimum. He was shown only the gifts from his immediate family and told of other gifts and greetings only from close associates and the correspondents.

At lunch, which has become Mr. Eisenhower's main meal of the day at his request, he got a small slice of the birthday cake baked for him by the hospital's kitchen staff.

The cake, 16 inches in diameter, 10 inches high and baked in two tiers of three layers each, was covered with white icing and decorated with American flags and the words, "Happy Birthday, Ike."

From the same recipe, the hospital's kitchen baked enough cake for all 2100 patients. The ingredients: 62½ pounds of sugar, 22½ pounds of eggs, whites, two pounds of baking powder, 13¼ quarts of milk, 15 pounds of shortening and one pound of salt.

From Mrs. Eisenhower, the President received a plastic case which will fit over his bed. Mrs. Eisenhower consulted with attending physicians before deciding on the gift, and Hagerty said Mr. Eisenhower, an enthusiastic amateur painter, will use the easel "shortly."

The President's three grandchildren, not present for the celebration, sent gifts they chose themselves. From 7-year-old David came a phonograph record, a humorous monologue with the title, "What It Was, Was Football."

From 6-year-old Susan, a book: "150 Ways to Play Solitaire," and from 3-year-old Barbara Anne, a book of crossword puzzles.

Their parents, Maj. and Mrs. John Eisenhower, sent a solitary bridge set, and the President's mother-in-law, Mrs. Elvera Doud of Denver, gave him a "Jack Horner pie"—with strings attached to many gifts.

From Washington, D.C., the President's sister-in-law, gave him a yellow toy dog which Mr. Eisenhower promptly asked to be photographed by the doctors, nurses and medical corpsmen attending him.

Romantic Expressions?

Princess, Townsend Have Dinner
At Her Cousin's Windsor Home

Viewed as Means of Letting Public Know
Her Feelings About Captain.

LONDON, Oct. 14 (UPI)—Princess Margaret went to dinner at the home of a cousin of the princess tonight with Capt. Peter Townsend, giving open encouragement to the expectation that they are going to marry.

The Princess, dressed all in white, sped in a black limousine from London to Windsor accompanied only by her lady-in-waiting, Iris Peake.

Townsend had driven away from London earlier for a weekend at the Windsor country estate of Mrs. John Wills, Margaret's cousin and the confidante in the royal romance that has set Britain buzzing with marriage rumors.

Seems to Show Her Feelings.
Margaret's swift night ride in a chartered car seemed to be an obvious act of faith designed to show the British people and all the world her feelings for the divorced group captain.

It was generally believed from her conduct over the last two days that an engagement announcement is imminent.

Tonight, however, Clarence House officials said no announcement concerning Margaret's personal future was contemplated.

The statement added that Princess Margaret had asked the press secretary to express the hope that the press and public would extend to her the customary courtesy and cooperation in respecting her privacy.

Townsend's call on Margaret last night at Clarence House was a move seemingly calculated to prepare the people for a wedding announcement.

Margaret's brother-in-law, the Duke of Edinburgh, was reported to be the cupid who suggested the get-together—the couple's first in two years.

A source close to the court reported: "He told Margaret, 'You haven't seen this man in two years. Why don't you see him and see how you feel?'"

A reliable source said that a decision by Margaret to marry a commoner would be framed first in the form of a statement announcing that she was renouncing her royal rights.

Curtis to Parliament.
This circuitous method of disclosing marriage plans would be a propitious way to the prerogatives of Parliament. The law stipulates that Parliament must have a chance to object. Thus it might be interpreted as presumptuous for Margaret to go ahead with an engagement announcement before referring it to Parliament.

An excited crowd clustered outside Clarence House this morning. Another crowd gathered outside the house at fashionable 19 Lowndes Square where Townsend stayed.

Mrs. Buda Mauldin of Dallas and her husband, H. C. Mauldin, agreed to drill for the women. The well came in at a gigantic producer and three other wells were drilled on the 13 acres of land. Since then, it has produced about $600,000 in oil.

PEDESTRIANS STARE AT FIRST
BUSES TO RUN

Operators Are Getting Resigned to Being Asked 'Back on Job Again?'

PeDESTRIANS stared round-eyed at the first Public Service Co. busses in service after the end of the strike today, and operators soon resigned themselves to nodding affirmatively to the repetitious question, "Back on the job again, eh?"

A determined woman boarded a Taylor bus shortly after it left the garage at North Broadway and Taylor. She produced her weekly pass and demanded, "Is somebody going to make this good?"

"I don't know lady," the operator replied.

A spokesman for the Public Service Co. announced, however, that weekly permits sold before the strike could be applied on next week's passes. Both the 75-cent regular and $1 express passes can be purchased next week for 25 cents and this week's pass.

Moving By 1 P.M.
By 1 p.m. busses and street cars were gradually moving into the downtown district. Each one carried only a few passengers, however.

Weekly student passes, which will be in effect next week, were sold to school children today for 20 cents upon receipt of this week's passes. These passes cost $1 when good for a full week.

Some in Uniform.
Some operators reported for work wearing full uniforms only minutes after the meeting at which the end of the strike was voted. The less optimistic came in off-duty dress.

The driver of an East-West loop bus was wearing a sports shirt, ordinary trousers and a uniform cap. His bus, which has a capacity of 40, was carrying 10 passengers.

Maj. William G. Cibulka, head of the police traffic division, expected an unusually severe traffic jam late this afternoon, when streets would be clogged with extra automobiles and busses and street cars. He said

$50 Bridge Game Ante Becomes
$137,736 Pot for Players' Heirs

DALLAS, Oct. 14 (AP)—The $50 each that three women ante up in a bridge game turned in to a $137,736 pot today, after 24 years of litigation, but the money goes to their 11 heirs and a woman oil well driller.

The bridge game was in 1930. Mrs. J. M. Stinnette, Mrs. Virginia Sanders and Mrs. George E. Light, now all dead, were playing. The name of the fourth player has been lost in the years since.

Mrs. Sanders, a Sherman (Tex.) resident, said she knew of a good oil land lease that could be bought cheap. Two of the other players, both of Dallas, agreed to put in $50 each.

Mrs. Buda Mauldin of Dallas and her husband, H. C. Mauldin, agreed to drill for the women. The well came in at a gigantic producer and three other wells were drilled on the 13 acres of land. Since then, it has produced about $600,000 in oil.

SCHEDULES TO BE ALMOST NORMAL
THIS AFTERNOON,
COMPANY SAYS

Mediator Orders Negotiations Resumed Today — Union Sues to Declare King-Thompson Law Invalid.

Resumption of bus and street-car service began shortly before noon today following a meeting at which operators voted almost unanimously to return to work. The men had been on strike since midnight Monday.

The first bus left the Lindenwood division garage at 6931 Scanlan avenue, at 11:35 o'clock, and a company spokesman predicted almost normal service would be restored by middle or late afternoon in time to handle the evening rush hour demand.

As the busses started moving, Daniel C. Rogers, chairman of the State Board of Mediation, announced he was calling for a resumption at 4 o'clock this afternoon of negotiations to settle the wage dispute that caused the strike.

Entire Board Called.
Rogers added that he had summoned the full mediation board to the meeting, which was to be held at Hotel Jefferson. Attorney General John M. Dalton, when advised the men had returned to work, refused to say whether he would drop a $300,000 suit he had filed yesterday against the union invoking one of the penalties of the King-Thompson act.

"I will discuss all the angles with my associates on Monday," he said. He also said he would discuss the matter with Gov. Phil M. Donnelly, on whose orders he came to St. Louis.

"So far as I know now, we will go right ahead," he said. "The strike is still on the docket."

Dramatic Decision.
The decision to end the strike came with dramatic suddenness at a membership meeting at St. Louis House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, attended by more than 2000 of the AFL operators, union's 2500 members. A number of the men showed up in their uniforms, indicating a belief that the end of the walkout was in sight.

After speeches by Arthur E. East, union president, and others urging the men to return to work, it was moved to take a secret ballot on the question. When a delay in obtaining the ballots occurred, John W. Rowland, national secretary, sensing the feeling of the men, proposed a standing vote. The audience rose almost to a man.

East told the men that a suit had been filed by the union to contest the constitutionality of the King-Thompson act, under which Gov. Phil M. Donnelly had seized the strike-bound lines last Tuesday. He urged the men to use their heads instead of their hearts in deciding on the future course of action.

Reason for Change.
Explaining the sudden change of attitude from that displayed last Wednesday when the vote was almost unanimous in favor of remaining on strike, East said it was due to the explanation given the men today.

"They realized, when we explained this time that they had nothing to gain and they listened," East went on. "They didn't listen the other day, but they were in a mood to listen today."

"One thing that helped was the wonderful assistance given by the union's executive board. They have been talking ceaselessly to the men—in their homes, at bowling alleys and wherever they could find them."

East said the decision to switch from a secret ballot to a standing vote was made after it was realized the feeling of the men was unanimous in favor of a resumption of work. There were a few dissenters, however, who remained seated.

In a speech before the vote urging the men to return to work, East said the seniority rights of the returning workers would not be disturbed. The King-Thompson Act provides that workers striking against a state-seized public utility must be rehired as new workers. This penalty has never been enforced to date.

Go to Work at Once.
In contrast to the Wednesday meeting, when the men remained in small groups at St. Louis House to discuss their action, they quickly filed out of the building today to get to their vehicles.

Other speakers at the meeting included Hermon Sternstein, Win Smith, attorney for the international AFL Amalgamated association of Street Electric Railway and Motor

U.N. DEADLOCKED IN BALLOTING FOR COUNCIL, QUILTS UNTIL TUESDAY

Philippines Short of Two-Thirds Majority in 6 Rounds of Voting—Reds Back Yugoslavia.

By ALVIN H. GOLDSTEIN
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 14.—The United Nations Security Council today adjourned until Tuesday after the leading contenders for the Security Council seat vacated by Turkey failed to achieve the required two-thirds majority for election in six secret ballots.

Yugoslavia had succeeded Poland as the Russian-sponsored candidate against the Philippines, backed by the United States, by the time members of the world organization admitted that it was evident neither could win.

On the fifth ballot, the Philippines had 30 votes, Yugoslavia 25 and Poland only one, with 39 necessary for election. The first ballot had given Poland 34 votes to 33 for the Philippines.

With three non-permanent seats on the Security Council to be filled, Australia got 42 votes and Cuba 53 to win election on the first ballot. They filled vacancies created by the ending of the two-year terms of New Zealand and Brazil. They will take their seats Jan. 1.

British Propose Recess. After the sixth ballot, on which the Philippines received 29 votes and Yugoslavia 28, Britain proposed a recess to next Tuesday to permit consultations among delegations on the new turn taken by the voting. The Soviet Union seconded the motion which was adopted without objection.

If Yugoslavia proved to be the compromise choice it would be the second time the Communist nation, which is independent of the Kremlin orbit, has occupied a seat on the Security Council. It was Yugoslavia's election over Czechoslovakia in 1949 that brought the first break in the 1946 "gentleman's agreement" that one non-permanent Council seat should go to a Soviet-bloc country of eastern Europe.

The election procedure requires a two-thirds majority of countries present and voting. Abstentions may change the number of votes required for election from ballot to ballot.

On the second ballot the Philippines missed by only one vote of achieving the essential two-thirds of ballots cast by receiving 38 votes to Poland's 20. France is absent from the meeting of the 60-nation world organization and one delegation consistently abstained each time.

Open Race. After three inconclusive "restricted ballots," in which the delegates were limited to a choice between the two leading candidates, the election again was an open race for any candidate selected by the respective delegations.

The first "restricted" voting gave the Philippines 35 and Poland 23. Between the fourth and fifth ballots, Assembly President Jose Maza declared a brief recess. In the 35-minute interval, Soviet delegation members spread through the Assembly hall and adjacent corridors, passing the word that they would accept Yugoslavia, instead of Poland, as an "eastern European" candidate.

Earlier, United States Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. had urged the Assembly to reach a decision today. On the fifth ballot, the Philippines received 30, Yugoslavia 25, Poland 1. The sixth ballot: Philippines 29, Yugoslavia 28.

Test of Prestige.

The contest for the place on the important Council, charged with the preservation of peace and security, was a test of prestige between the United States and nations backing the Russian demand that a seat on the Council should be provided for an eastern European nation. The United States contended that the question of regional representation was not paramount.

Security Council members include the five major powers and six nations elected for two-year terms.

After the deadlock in the Security Council election the Assembly also decided to postpone election for vacancies on the Economic and Social Council and the Trusteeship Council.

In U.N. quarters, some informed sources predicted a stalemate with a compromise candidate the ultimate winner of the coveted seat, being vacated by Turkey at the expiration of its term. Others confidently predicted that the Philippines, with Latin-American and Asian votes besides those of the United States and its allies, was assured of election.

PERON DIEHARDS WARNED AGAINST NEW OUTBREAKS

Armed Forces Readied for Loyalty Day—Death Threat to Demonstrators.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 14 (AP)—Argentina's provisional government is marshalling its armed forces to put down any Peronist uprising next Monday. It threatened death to demonstrators.

Oct. 17 is a day dear to the hearts of followers of exiled former President Juan D. Peron. Called Loyalty day, it is the anniversary of the 1945 general strike by which workers forced the release of Peron from prison and started him on the road to dictatorial power.

A communique from Provisional President Maj. Gen. Eduardo Lonardi's office warned Peron's die-hard adherents they would be "severely repressed" if they attempted to cause trouble on that day.

Labor Minister Luis Benito Cerutti Costa in a speech to labor union secretaries warned that all the power of the army, navy, air force and police would be used to uphold order. Inciting workers to engage in street demonstrations, he said, would be the same as "sending the worker to death."

Similarly grim warnings were issued by the national security director and police headquarters of La Plata, capital of Buenos Aires province.

The government meanwhile opened a new section of its "exposition of the ex-president's wealth"—to show that Peron, the self-proclaimed poor man's champion, surrounded himself with fantastic wealth.

On display are 16 glistening automobiles and 240 motorcycles and scooters valued at $600,000 and said to have been used by Peron and his entourage. They were shown in a huge garage at Peron's palatial Palermo residence.

The transport collection hit many an Argentine where it hinted of the ex-president's mobile imports except to favored persons. Used car values skyrocketed, and even a 1950 Ford or Chevrolet costs around $10,000.

Peron's collection included a Rolls Royce, an Italian Fiat and Ferrari, two Mercedes-Benz, a Chrysler, a Kaiser, a Cadillac, a Ford Thunderbird, a Chevrolet, a Lancia and two Alfa Romeos.

Already on display at Peron's home are jewels, clothes and artistic objects the new government valued at $6,500,000. Authorities said they have uncovered a 1,000,000-peso tapestry given Peron by Generalissimo Franco of Spain, and furs worth $250,000. They estimated the worth of the ex-dictator's three fine homes and a ranch at $1,320,000.

Eight Western countries have been negotiating the form of the agency, leaving its link with the U.N. to be decided later.

FRENCH PREMIER CALLS FOR VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Algeria—Debate Halted—Faure Seeks New Backing.

PARIS, Oct. 14 (AP)—Faced by likely defeat in the National Assembly on Algerian policies, Premier Faure postponed the showdown early today by calling for a vote of confidence in his government.

The demand keeps him in office at least until Tuesday, when the vote will be held. In the meantime, the Premier will try to work out a maneuver such as spared his government last Sunday on the question of Morocco.

Debate Halted. The call for a vote of confidence automatically shut off debate for 24 hours, and the Assemblymen decided to extend the cooling-off period until Tuesday. If the government loses on a question of confidence, it resigns.

Faure's seven-month-old government has been in difficulties since the Moroccan debate. Four Gaullist ministers, in open opposition to Faure's program of conciliation of Moroccan nationalists, were forced out of the Premier, and since then Faure has lacked a dependable majority in the Assembly.

The large Socialist faction came to his rescue last week, supporting Faure's Moroccan program but serving notice they lacked confidence in the ability of his government to carry it out.

This time both the Gaullists and Socialists so far were remaining aloof from the Premier.

Faure made his move at dawn after the Assembly had worked itself into a tangle by refusing to take up for discussion any of six resolutions by as many different parties outlining proposed policies in Algeria. The Assembly never got around to actually voting on the substance of any of the resolutions in the all-night session.

Assembly Refusal. The Assemblymen refused to consider one resolution by Faure's Radical Socialist party, by a 305 to 274 vote.

Four of the spurned resolutions said the Assembly had no confidence in the government. Most of them called for immediate efforts to improve economic and political conditions for Algerians, but failed to agree on a formula.

With priority refused for all resolutions, the rules called for a debate on the first one offered, by the Radical Socialists. It is on this resolution that the vote of confidence will be held.

The resolution promises that the government will put down terrorism in Algeria, start projects to improve the standard of living, work out political reforms with the concurrence of

3000 Red Sailors Invade London, Buy 5 Pairs of Nylons a Minute

Men From Soviet Goodwill Fleet Also Stock Up on Frilly Underwear for Girls Back Home.

PORTSMOUTH, England, Oct. 14 (UP)—Some 3000 Russian sailors from a Soviet goodwill fleet stocked up today on such capitalist frills as nylon stockings and ladies' silk underwear.

The Russian seamen took their cue from Valeria Mirkulov, 24-year-old cadet officer aboard the Soviet cruiser Sverdlov and went on a shopping spree for presents for their wives and girlfriends back home.

"I think the English girls dress much more brightly than those in Russia," Mirkulov said. A special store equipped with Russian translators reported nylons were going at the rate of five pairs a minute. The Russians also bought brightly colored scarves and frilly underthings.

The Russian sailors got a big reception when they came ashore for the first time yesterday. But one English girl said they are rather shy.

"They are very nice but I'm afraid they are much more reserved than our own sailors," said Diane Claxton, a Wren, the British equivalent of an American Wave.

Special busses carried the Algerian residents and apply other political reforms which were voted in 1947 but never carried out.

Faure asked for the confidence vote when the Socialists gave signs of supporting a Gaullist motion to tack an amendment onto this resolution saying the government lacked the capacity to carry out the reforms mentioned.

The crisis blew up unexpectedly after three days of relatively calm debate. It had been generally expected that the government would manage to squeak through.

Strengthened by Walkout. Faure had been strengthened by his withdrawal of the French delegation from the United Nations because the General Assembly voted to debate France's actions in Algeria. There appeared to be some reticence, too, about overthrowing Faure while 320,000 French troops are fighting rebel bands in North Africa, and while the Saar referendum and the Big Four Foreign Ministers conference at Geneva are in the offing.

By the French constitution Algeria is an integral part of France itself. The French rejected U.N. discussion of the issue as interference in the internal affairs of France.

The government is in the process of giving the protectorate of Tunisia home rule, and is promising some steps in that direction to the other protectorate, Morocco.

But Faure has declared the only possibility for Algeria is "integration" with France. He never has defined that word precisely, but appears to mean the gradual lifting of the economic and political status of Moslem Algeria.

Winding up the debate, Faure said he recognized that complete assimilation of the 8,000,000 Moslem Algerians into French-European life was impossible because of their separate religion and institutions.

He proposed that plans to give Algerians a greater voice in local government await free elections and consultations with the Algerians themselves. He said some immediate changes should be carried out, such as permitting the teaching of Arabic in Algerian schools, and improvements in the level of agriculture and the standard of living.

One Plan Rejected. The Premier rejected a resolution that has been proposed a federation of France and Algeria. He said this would lead to the possibility of Algerian secession.

By the United Press. Ironically, both Faure and the Gaullists were agreed on how to clean up the situation in Algeria. Both agreed that plans to give Algerians a greater voice in local government await free elections and consultations with the Algerians themselves.

The real fight was over Faure's reforms in Morocco which the Assembly approved last Sunday, 426 to 136. The Gaullists were bitterly opposed to Faure's attempts to install a three-man throne council in Morocco with representatives of the freedom-seeking nationalists. It was on this issue that the Gaullists were trying to wreck his government on the Algerian vote.

WHITE HOUSE WON'T GIVE DATA ON POWER TALKS

It Refuses Committee Request Pertaining to Conferences on Clark
Hill Dam.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (UP)—The White House today refused to give congressional investigators information they requested about Administration conferences on disposal of electric power from the Clark Hill dam.

The dam is on the Savannah river between South Carolina and Georgia.

A House Government Operations subcommittee headed by Representative Earl C. Chudoff (Dem.), has been holding public hearings on Administration power policies, with particular attention to protracted negotiations for the sale of power from the Government-owned Clark Hill dam.

The subcommittee yesterday asked presidential assistant Sherman Adams for information on White House conferences on the question.

White House counsel Gerald D. Morgan wired Chudoff that supplying of the requested information "would violate policy and practice governing the relationship between the office of the President and of the legislative branch that has existed since the beginning of our Government."

The subcommittee had asked for the names of all participants in White House and Budget Bureau conferences on disposal of the powers.

Although refusing to give Congress this information, Morgan said he could assure the subcommittee that all the conferences have been directed to seeking means of expediting accomplishment of the Administration's policy to dispose of Clark Hill power to the preference applicants therefore in accordance with law.

This amounted to a denial of Democratic charges that the purpose of the Administration conferences was to try to get around the law which requires that rural electrification cooperatives and other public power groups be given preferences in buying power from federal dams.

Chudoff has charged that the Interior Department has been trying to give the Georgia Power Co., a private utility, a kingly role in buying Clark Hill power despite this preference provision.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (Rep.), Michigan, meanwhile accused the staff of the subcommittee of seeking special favors for an electric cooperative.

IMPEACHMENT OF JUDGES IN JURY RECORDING CASE IS HINTED

Eastland and Jenner Press for Such Action — Lawyer Defends
Listening In on Deliberations.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (UP)—Two Senators pressed today toward possible impeachment of Federal judges who authorized jury eavesdropping.

Chairman James O. Eastland (Dem.), Mississippi, and Senator William E. Jenner (Rep.), Indiana, hinted at impeachment proceedings when they said they would urge the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee to send the transcript of its two-day hearings on jury-tapping to the House Judiciary Committee.

They said in a joint statement that the Senate "could not properly inquire into the official conduct of any Federal judge."

"They did not elaborate. But under the Constitution, the House institutes impeachment proceedings against judges. If the House votes for impeachment, the case is tried by the Senate sitting as a court."

Representative Emanuel Celler (Dem.), New York, chairman of the House committee receiving the Senate subcommittee transcript, said he would "not hesitate to recommend impeachment proceedings if he decides the matter 'rises to the importance of impeachment.'"

"Sanctity of Jury Room." Celler said he deplores "any invasion of the sanctity of the jury room," and, with that in mind, will read the transcript of the Senate hearings carefully.

Eastland and Jenner also promised "severe punishment" for future invasions of a jury's secrecy by eavesdropping or recording. They said they would introduce legislation to forbid such activity next year.

Witnesses testified at the Internal Security subcommittee hearing that Chief Judge Orrie Phillips of the Tenth United States Circuit Court of Appeals and District Judge Delmas Hill authorized a University of Chicago research team, studying the jury system under a Ford Foundation grant, to plant hidden microphones in a Wichita (Kan.) jury room.

Researchers recorded jury deliberations of six cases in May, 1954.

An edited version of the deliberation of one case, with all identifying factors removed, was played at Phillips' insistence at a judicial conference at Estes Park, Colo., last summer, witnesses said.

The audience included Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark, Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff and nearly all judges of the Tenth circuit, plus a few visiting jurors.

Defends Recordings. Paul R. Kitch, prominent Wichita attorney who promoted the recording idea and said he "sold" the University of Chicago researchers on it, testified that two and perhaps three other judges had also granted permission for use of the secret microphones in their courts, though this was never done. He identified them as Judge Roy Savage and Judge Stephen S. Chandler of Oklahoma City, and said he believed that Judge William R. Wallace of Oklahoma City also gave consent.

Kitch stoutly defended the tape-recordings. He said they should be made in at least 100 federal court cases throughout the nation.

He said their purpose was to lead to improvements in the jury system, to combat unfavorable publicity and loss of confidence in the jury system, and to find a better way of making sure that jurors understood a judge's instructions.

Kitch said the study would have great value to the legal profession. He said the jury system in America has suffered from lack of confidence, and he wants to improve and strengthen it.

GOES TO RIGHT CITY, BUT FINDS STATE IS WRONG

COLUMBUS, Ga., Oct. 14 (AP)—Wandering "Wild Bill" McCord headed for the only Columbus he'd ever heard of in all his 85 years—the one in Ohio—and somehow landed in Columbus, Ga.

Police found him on a downtown street yesterday, moving about uncertainly. In his possession was an unused bus ticket from Portsmouth, O., to Columbus, O.

Asked where he thought he was, McCord said: "Columbus, O., of course."

Police called Columbus, O., and reached Mrs. George Page who said she was McCord's daughter and that he was believed to be visiting a niece in Florida. She didn't know how he got to Dixie, and added that she herself had never heard of Columbus, Ga.

The Travelers Aid Society arranged to escort McCord to the right Columbus.

COUNTY CHILDREN RECEIVING SECOND SALK POLIO SHOTS

School children in St. Louis county are receiving their second shots of the Salk polio vaccine this week. The inoculation program will begin for St. Louis pupils Monday.

The injections are being given to children who received their first shots last spring, as first and second graders. Shots are given only after the consent of the parents is obtained in writing.

In city public schools, the program is scheduled to be completed next week. Dr. Lloyd L. Tate, director of health and hygiene for the schools, said at least 95 per cent of the parents answering questionnaires have agreed to their child receiving the injection. He urged those who have not yet filled out the consent forms to do so, to reduce the number of "make-up" shots.

Machine guns and submachine guns which American G.I.s "liberated" on various foreign battlefields to bring home as war trophies have now been liberated from Government red tape as well, by being officially classed as "dewats."

"Dewats" is a newly coined bureaucratic word for "deactivated war trophy." In the past, the foreign weapons have been classified as unserviceable firearms, and whenever they changed hands, the Government had to be notified of the transfer.

Now, however, such notice will not be necessary. The guns are considered by the Internal Revenue Service to be "harmless ordnance curios." Owners whose weapons are not registered—and particularly those whose guns have not been made unserviceable—are urged to take them to the nearest Alcohol and Tobacco Tax Unit office, to turn them into "dewats."

SEVEN HURT IN BUS AND TRUCK CRASH

Greyhound Carrier Collides With Auto Transport at Addieville, Ill.

Seven persons were injured when a Greyhound bus collided with an automobile transport truck at Addieville, Ill., about 50 miles southeast of St. Louis, today. Six victims were hospitalized.

The accident occurred as the bus, headed for St. Louis, made a left turn off Illinois Route 15 into a bus station, which is on a curve in the highway. The truck driver, trying to avoid a collision, drove off the highway, but the front of the bus struck the truck cab, Illinois state police said.

Two of the injured were taken to DePaul Hospital here. They are William Woodson, 27 years old, Ferguson, the bus driver, who has a fractured knee cap, and Mrs. Ola May Ehlisier, 51, Nashville, Tenn., who suffered a fractured pelvis and fractured left clavicle.

Four persons were taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Belleville. They are the truck driver, Leo Spencer, Evansville, Ind., leg injuries; Coon Whitehead, Hampton, Tenn., facial cuts; Prentiss Cash, 70, chest injuries, and his wife, Dorothy, 30, back and leg injuries. The Cashes are from Globe, Ariz.

Miss Esther Lampe, Hoyteton, Ill., was treated at St. Mary's Hospital, Centralia, Ill., then released.

Eight passengers who were not injured were brought to St. Louis in another bus.

Passengers had to be removed through the emergency door in the rear of the bus, police stated. The front door of the bus was smashed in by the impact of the collision. The empty truck was damaged mostly at the driver's side of the cab. Time of the accident was approximately 6:20 a.m.

CHILDREN'S CARDS SOOTHE INJURED CROSSING GUARD

Edward Moeslein, 65-year-old school crossing guard, who is as fond of joining in the children's games as he is of seeing his charges safely across streets, was back on the job today, soothed by 32 handmade "get well" cards and 66 letters of sympathy and appreciation.

Last week, "Mr. Ed," as he is known to children of the neighborhood, was playing baseball with a group of youngsters and broke a rib when he tripped over a fence while running bases. He was miffed at what he considered just a freak accident.

As a result, "Mr. Ed" had to stay away from his school crossing job at Holly Hills and Virginia avenues for a week. Children at Maddox School, missing their favorite guard, got to work and promptly deluged him with cards and letters.

Moeslein, who lives at 5914A Arden drive, is herding his children with more than usual care today—but wouldn't mind at all another baseball game after school.

DRIVER PICKS UP
'STRANDED' BUS
RIDER, IS ROBBED

Bobby Joe Toney, 6240 Ridge avenue, saw a young man standing in a bus zone at Broadway and Humboldt avenue early today and, mindful of the transit strike, offered him a ride. The young man accepted and then drew an automatic pistol, Toney reported to police.

The hitchhiker forced Toney to drive aimlessly about city and county streets for three hours, the victim said. Toney said he made several tours of the northwest section of the county.

Finally the robber directed Toney to drive to O'Fallon Park, and there took Toney's billfold containing $52. He threw the car keys into some bushes and departed. Toney found the keys and drove to a nearby police station to report the robbery.

HEARING IS SET ON FLUORIDATION REPEAL MOVE

Aldermen Act After Committee Reverses
Self and Makes No
Recommendation.

The Board of Aldermen today set Wednesday at 10 a.m. as the time for a public hearing on the proposed bill to repeal fluoridation of the city's water supply. This action came after the legislation committee reversed itself and reported the bill out without recommendation.

Alderman T. H. Mayberry, Fourth Ward Democrat, made the motion for a public hearing, stating that since fluoridation was such a controversial subject, opponents and proponents should be given a chance to speak on it. The hearing will be in the Board of Public Service chamber in City Hall.

Anton Nelmeyer, chairman of the legislation committee, insisted his committee's original position on the bill was to report it out without recommendation, but other aldermen confirmed the general belief that the committee reported the repeal measure out favorably last Friday.

Since that time, Mayor Raymond R. Tucker has written letters to all members of the board urging them to vote against the proposed bill to abolish fluoridation of the water supply, which just started two weeks ago.

Alderman Raymond Leisure, Seventh Ward Democrat and chairman of the Streets and Sewers Committee, announced his committee would hold a public hearing Oct. 26 at 2 p.m. on a bill which would finally establish the right-of-way for the proposed Ozark Expressway.

He said no date for a hearing on the right-of-way for the Daniel Boone Expressway had been set, but that it would probably be next month.

A series of bills were introduced calling for additional compensation for widows of the four city firemen who were killed in a traffic collision Sept. 18.

The bills would give the widow of Fireman John H. Craig $4359 in addition to the compensation she gets from the Firemen's Pension Fund; Mrs. William H. Nation would get $4189; Mrs. Robert E. Geisler, $6417; and Mrs. Frank C. Jones, $8030.

The additional compensation will be equal to the amounts they will receive from the pension fund and will be paid by the city over an 18-month period. The measures were introduced jointly by Aldermen James W. Noonan, William C. Brady and Edgar J. Feely.

A bill designed to give city workhouse inmates time off for good behavior and satisfactory work was introduced by Alderman DeWitte T. Lawson. It would authorize the workhouse warden and the Director of Public Welfare to establish a system of credits for prisoners.

Another measure, introduced by Alderman William K. Gardner, would permit angle parking on both sides of Lindell boulevard and Maryland avenue in the vicinity of the St. Louis Cathedral on Sundays between 6 a.m. and 1 p.m.

$2200 STOLEN BY BURGLARS
FROM ST. LOUIS HOUSE SAFE

Thieves stole $2200 from an open safe in the manager's office on the first floor of the St. Louis House, 2345 Lafayette avenue, last night, police reported.

The burglars forced a basement door to gain entrance to the building and also a closet door in the manager's office to get to the safe, police said. They knocked the combination off the safe, even though it was open.

A German luger pistol and two watches, personal property of the manager, Adam Wekerle, also were stolen. Two offices on the second floor were ransacked, but nothing of value taken, it was reported. The burglary was discovered by a cleaning woman.

Transit Workers Vote to End Their Strike

Coach Employer, James McGinty, an international vice president who came here yesterday from Detroit; Rowland and Nicholas M. Blassie, president of Local 88, AFL Meat Cutters' Union.

Rogers told the Post-Dispatch he had advised Gov. Donnelly of the end of the walkout. He said both Donnelly and he were immensely gratified by the turn of events.

"We want to compliment the men on their manner of quickly resolving this untenable situation and to assure them their action is greatly appreciated," Rogers said.

In his law suit yesterday Dalton sued the union for $30,000 or $10,000 a day for the three full days the strike had been in effect. He did not seek any penalties against the union officers.

The King-Thompson act, under which Gov. Donnelly seized the Public Service Co. last Tuesday and ordered the men back to work, provides penalties of $1000 against any officer who calls or supports a strike against a state-seized public utility.

Meanwhile, attorneys for the union filed suit today for an injunction to restrain Gov. Donnelly and his agent in charge of the company, from taking any further steps under the King-Thompson act.

In addition to asking for a declaratory judgment that the law is unconstitutional in all its parts, the petition asked for revocation of the Governor's seizure order and restoration of the labor dispute to its status before the Governor's intervention.

Circuit Judge Robert L. Aronson refused to grant a temporary restraining order and set a hearing for next Tuesday on an order to show cause why a temporary injunction should not be issued.

Dalton filed his suit immediately after returning here from a brief speaking engagement at Drury College in Springfield, Mo. Earlier yesterday, Gov. Donnelly pointed out in a press conference that Rogers was in charge of mediating the strike while Dalton's function was to take legal steps to protect the public interest.

Rogers met last night with John C. Baine, Public Service Co. president; Gaylord C. Burke, a vice president and general counsel of the company, McGinty and East.

Purpose of the meeting, Rogers said, was to bring together company and union representatives in a conciliatory atmosphere in which mutual confidence and trust would have an opportunity to develop. It was the first time leaders of the two sides had met since the strike began. Baine has maintained the position that negotiations will not be resumed until the men are back at work.

In his suit, which is the first attempt to invoke the penalties of the King-Thompson law since its passage in 1947, Dalton declared the transit service provided by St. Louis Public Service Co. was a "life essential" as described by the anti-strike law.

When the union persisted in the strike after Gov. Donnelly by proclamation declared the interruption of service had jeopardized the public interest, health and welfare, the union became liable to the penalties of the act, Dalton alleged.

At Jefferson City early today, Gov. Donnelly said he saw no reason why negotiations should not proceed while the state was pressing its legal action against the union.

He said he had received eight or 10 telegrams from St. Louis residents urging his aid in ending the transit tie-up.

In an appearance before newsreel cameras yesterday, East listed three principal reasons for the strike. He said the men had been working without a contract since the previous pact expired last Feb. 28, that the average $1.87 hourly wage scale they men now receive is one of the lowest for comparable transit systems in the nation and that the recommendations of a public hearing panel called for a less favorable contract than the company had offered.

When the recommendations were disclosed to the men last Monday night, they rejected them and voted to strike. They had asked for a 26-cent-an-hour increase and other benefits. The panel had recommended a 12-cent rise in steps. The recommendations were not binding on either side.

A resolution expressing support of the transit union members "in their continued fight for decent conditions, their fight for their constitutional right of freedom of contract and their fight for repeal of the King-Thompson act" was passed yesterday by the AFL Food Council of Greater St. Louis.

Adopted at the monthly luncheon of the council, which consists of 34 union locals concerned with the handling or processing of food, the resolution said "the seizure of the Public Service Co. by Gov. Donnelly under the provisions of the King-Thompson act places a one-sided responsibility for continued operation on the worker."

Support of the CIO was promised the AFL operators' union in a letter sent to East by Oscar A. Ehrhardt, secretary of the CIO Industrial Union Council. "We are fully aware of the difficulties experienced in trying to bring about an equitable settlement of collective bargaining negotiations under the duress of a law of emphy against unions such as the King-Thompson anti-labor law," Ehrhardt wrote.

After declaring the law worked to the benefit of management only, Ehrhardt charged the Governor, by insisting on enactment of the law in his first term and inclusion in it of severe penalties, had shown that his interest lay with the public utilities rather than with the general welfare.

Ehrhardt said Donnelly had every member of his division will be on the street to handle the traffic.

He also said enforcement of parking regulations, suspended during the strike, will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Operators expressed mixed opinions about the end of the strike. Most were glad to be back on the payroll, but a few regretted cancellation of fishing trips they had planned.

One man said he voted to return to work in order to preserve the union. He expressed the opinion Gov. Donnelly had been out to break it.

Friendly Greetings.

The operator of one of the first Taylor buses in service received friendly greetings from passengers and persons he passed on the street. The only jarring note was a chorus from a group of Ashland school-boys, who shouted, derisively: "Strike, strike."

Automobiles were parked in many bus zones, making it necessary for passengers to walk into the street to board buses.

Operator Frank Kulikowski, 470A Morganford road, who took a Carondelet bus out of the South Broadway garage at 12:15 p.m., was cheerful as he set forth.

"My schedule calls for me to quit at 5:40 p.m.," he said. "Then I'm off tomorrow and Sunday. Boy, this will be easy."

3 NEW BRIBERY INDICTMENTS FOR CAPT. GREENSPAN

pendent from the Police Department as a result of the indictments, have applied to the Police Board for permission to accept other employment while the suspension is in effect.

Dowd told the Post-Dispatch he has corroborative evidence to support the testimony of the brothel operators in the latest indictments.

Greenspan, 52 years old, has been a police officer for 25 years. He was born in Rovno, Russia, as Wolf Grinspan, but changed his name in the 1920s after being brought to this country as a child by his parents. He was naturalized in 1944.

He is recognized in the Police Department as a keen investigator and fearless officer, but with a weakness for "night spots" and association with gamblers.

Dowd reported that an investigation he made with Maj. Thompson last month in Las Vegas, Nev., showed Greenspan's bills were paid on four occasions at a hotel there by Sidney Wyman, former St. Louis gambler.

Since Tuesday, proceedings of the grand jury have been conducted with more than ordinary secrecy. Dowd and his staff have made great effort, including the locking of many doors around his office, to prevent the identity of witnesses from being learned.

Dowd, in a talk yesterday before the St. Louis Lions Club, said some St. Louis police officers, with incomes of $4500 to $4800 a year, have been living better than persons with incomes of $15,000—a factor that has been important in the present pay-off inquiry.

"Despite pressure and resistance hard to believe," the investigation will be pushed to

U.S. BUSINESS MAN AND WIFE FREED BY REDS REACH TOKYO

KOBE, Japan, Oct. 14 (UP)—An American business man and his wife arrived in Japan today from semi-detention in Communist China and reported "serious" food shortages in Shanghai.

The couple, Howard L. (Cap) Ricks and his wife, Lydia, were the latest Americans to be freed from Red China under a repatriation plan negotiated at Geneva. They arrived here from Shanghai aboard the Dutch ship Straat Ball.

Ricks, a native of Boscobel, Wis., had lived in China for 40 years. He had operated the General Motors and Force agencies and headed Bills Motors in Shanghai until his firm was seized by the Reds in 1949. Mrs. Ricks was born in Shanghai of British parents.

They were met by their son, John, a Tokyo business man whom they had not seen since 1947. They plan to go to Wisconsin.

"The food shortage is quite serious in Shanghai," Ricks said, "but people can manage somehow. Rice was rationed but we used to eat rice frequently. We often saw children crying for food in the slums."

The circuit attorney said he had reports the inquiry was moving too slowly, but added: "To do the job right is a time-consuming procedure that will require a substantial length of time."

SEOUL, Oct. 14 (AP)—The government today said three army officers, including a reserve colonel, were among eight Koreans recently arrested for planning to assassinate President Syngman Rhee.

The public information office said the men planned the assassination for Oct. 3 or the following day when Rhee was to make speeches in outdoor ceremonies.

The army counter-intelligence corps, which arrested them, said they were planning to kill Rhee with hand grenades. The army officers involved were Lt. Col. Yoo Sung Yun, Maj. Kim Tong Hoon and Reserve Col. Kim Tong Hyuk.

Biddle Contradicts Truman, Says He Didn't Recommend Tom Clark

Former Attorney General Challenges Accuracy of Ex-President's Account of Controversial Nomination.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright, 1955, Post-Dispatch Publishing Co.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—

The accuracy of former President Truman's account of how he came to appoint one of the most controversial figures in his Administration was challenged today by former Attorney General Francis Biddle.

In the installment of the Truman memoirs published in today's Post-Dispatch the former President gives his version of the appointment of Tom Clark at Attorney General in May of 1945. Truman says he called in Biddle, who had been Attorney General under Franklin D. Roosevelt, to tell him that he wanted his own man in that job. According to the Truman version:

"Francis Biddle had been a good Attorney General and there was no ill feeling between us. I did not ask him to quit. He quit voluntarily. I do not believe that he was as well satisfied with me as a liberal President as he had been with my predecessor."

"I asked Biddle whom he would recommend to take his place and he suggested Tom Clark, who, of course, was strongly endorsed by the whole Texas delegation, including Sam Rayburn and Tom Connally. In all of which, I had the utmost confidence."

Biddle's Account.

In a statement to the Post-Dispatch Biddle said that not only did he not recommend Clark but that he indicated to the President his disapproval of Clark as his successor. Repeatedly in congressional investigations into influence peddling in the Department of Justice, Clark's name has been brought up. He was twice "invited" to testify before a House committee but as a Justice of the Supreme Court he could not be subpoenaed by a congressional committee. Clark, named to the court by Truman, declined to appear before the House committee.

In his statement issued from his summer home on Cape Cod, Biddle said:

"I have read Mr. Truman's account of the circumstances surrounding his resignation as Attorney General. About the third week in May of 1945 I got a telephone call from Steve Early, the President's press secretary, to the effect that the President wished me to send in my resignation. I saw the President the same day."

"He said to me that he was satisfied with my work as Attorney General but since the position was a personal one and particularly close to the President, he wished to appoint someone with whom he would be more intimate. I answered that I understood perfectly. I had been waiting for some time for him to let me know when he wished me to resign."

"I was Not Pleased." "I asked him if he would mind telling me who was to be my successor. He said certainly and that I would be pleased—it was to be Tom Clark. Tom Clark was one of my associates, heading the criminal division of the Department of Justice. I said that I was not pleased and that I would not have recommended him. I remember our conversation very clearly. I sent him my resignation in the next two or three days."

"The President writes that there was no ill feeling between us. That is exact. I did not know him well in those days. After I came back from Nuremberg, where he had appointed me the American member of the international tribunal we got on a very friendly footing and I grew to admire his consistent courage and liberal outlook."

According to accounts current at the time, Biddle was shocked by Truman's intention of appointing Clark and sought to dissuade him from that move. Clark had originally been put in the Department of Justice in a minor position in the bureau of war risk litigation through the influence of his Texas political friends. As a result of this same potent influence he was moved to the anti-trust division and finally promoted to be head of the criminal division.

Target of Republicans.

The Justice Department was one of the chief Republican targets in the campaign pledge of 1952 to "clean up the mess in Washington." A frequent witness was T. Lamar Caudle, the talkative North Carolinian who served as Assistant Attorney General in charge first of the anti-trust division and then of the tax division under Clark. He several times testified in connection with tax cases as to instructions given him by Clark.

While Caudle was a diverting witness, providing humor for television audiences, investigation of the Department of Justice fell short of any major sensation. The reason, Republicans have always hinted, was that Clark could not be brought to testify. Under separation of powers the legislative branch cannot compel the judicial branch to come before it. At the time that Clark declined the invitation there were many who said that he should have gone voluntarily before the committee rather than stand on his constitutional prerogative.

Truman appointed Clark to the Supreme Court in August of 1949. At 56 he is the youngest member of the court, being one year younger than Justice William O. Douglas and a few months younger than the newest appointee, Justice John Marshall Harlan.

Canada Paid Cash for U.S. Supplies, Envoy Says.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Canadian Ambassador A. D. Heene, commenting on former President Truman's memoirs, said today Canada paid cash for the help it got from the United States during World War II.

In a letter to the New York Times, made public in Washington, the ambassador said Truman had referred to Canada "as one of the countries whose soldiers were equipped by lend-lease means," and that "Mr. Truman observed that many American lives were saved by this program, even though 'we may never get our money back.'"

Heene added: "Our two countries did exchange impressive quantities of military supplies—but for cash."

TALKS TO ARCHITECTS ON AIR CONDITIONING

New York Engineer Addresses Regional Conference at Hotel Jefferson.

Space for air conditioning equipment in commercial buildings is usually poorly located and designed, Charles S. Haines, a New York engineer, said yesterday at an afternoon session of the tenth annual regional conference of the American Institute of Architects at Hotel Jefferson.

Haines, junior partner in the firm of Voorhes Walker Smith & Smith, said architects either accept dictation from the mechanical engineer as to location of the equipment or become "petulant and force the engineer to use some area that presents an unsatisfactory mechanical solution."

Walter B. Moses of New Orleans, a consulting engineer, said in a paper read by Les Roth of St. Louis, the revolutionary period of design now makes it imperative for both architect and engineer to co-operate closely in development of all mechanical and electrical services.

Moses said air conditioning has increased the cost of buildings between two and four dollars a square foot and approximately doubled the electric power and wiring requirements. Air conditioning, he said, also has imposed increased demands on the structural framework, revolutionized the economics of illumination and impressed upon both architect and engineer the importance of adequate insulation.

Moses said cost of air conditioning a building constructed in 1910 for $221,000 was $195,000 last year. There has been a tremendous increase in the quantity and quality of mechanical and electrical equipment which has brought about the disproportionate rise in the cost of engineering accessories, he stated.

At yesterday's luncheon, Henry S. Churchill of New York, member of the Architects' Advisory Committee of the Federal Housing Authority, said people will start to leave suburban slums for the amenities and comforts of the city in 15 to 20 years if city planning can be done well. Urban redevelopment now is a failure, he said.

He said FHA policies are causing more city slums than before and creating potential suburban slums by discriminating against in-city building and helping to exploit cheap suburban land without regard to neighborhood quality and community standards.

The conference will continue through tomorrow.

4 KILLED AS B-47 CRASHES WITH BLINDING FLASH

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Oct. 14 (AP)—A jet B-47 bomber crashed with a blinding flash two miles south of this city's limits toward March Air Force base last night killing the four airmen aboard.

The Air Force announced there were no survivors and that the six-engine swept-wing bomber was carrying one more than its normal crew of three. Cause of the accident was not known.

The plane crashed shortly after take-off from March Air Force base, 10 miles southeast of here. It hit with a roar into plowed ground near an old olive orchard in a sparsely settled district.

The B-47 was on a routine training mission, the Air Force said, and on such a flight would not be carrying bombs.

KNIGHT DENIES REPORTED QUOTE ON KNOWLAND

California Governor Says He Is 'Weary' of Such Reports in Political Fight.

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 14 (AP)—Gov. Goodwin Knight was quoted yesterday as saying he didn't believe either Senator William F. Knowland, California, or Vice President Nixon could win as the 1956 Republican presidential candidate.

The Republican Governor, a strong supporter of President Eisenhower but embroiled in a political fight with Nixon partisans, later denied "flatly and without equivocation" that he ever questioned Knowland's electability.

He did not reply directly to a request at a press conference to confirm he had said he opposed Nixon because "I just don't think Dick can win" if President Eisenhower does not run.

"I'm getting a little weary of being misinterpreted in this matter," he said.

"He replied, 'Oh, no,' when asked if Nixon lacked any of three prerequisites Knight enumerated for a Republican presidential nominee—integrity, stability and electability.

Charles Cleveland, political editor of the Chicago Daily News, said: "The facts are that I interviewed him (Knight) and he said everything he was quoted as saying in the story."

The Governor, in that interview, repeated that he plans to head California's delegation to the Republican National Convention next August if Mr. Eisenhower withdraws as a candidate, even if it means a primary election battle against a Nixon slate.

"If the President asks me," the story quoted him in regard to Nixon, "I'll tell him just what I'm telling you. I'll tell him that he may like the boy, but we just can't elect him."

Knight was quoted as saying Nixon "can't win votes from the other side," that "labor will spend more money and manpower to beat him than any other candidate."

Knight, increasingly cool toward Nixon, has shown nothing but friendliness for Knowland. Knight and Knowland teamed in the past to fight off pro-Nixon attempts to gain state party control.

The Governor, emphatic about Knowland, said:

"Flatly and without equivocation never at any time or place said I didn't think Senator Knowland couldn't win."

On the contrary Senator Knowland has a tremendous following in the state and throughout the country and is a highly respected Republican leader."

Californians Out for Stevenson

the line" to DeSapio at their meeting; i.e.:

1. That he personally is for Stevenson.
2. That the meeting with DeSapio might lead to increased speculation that he was swinging to Gov. Harriman.
3. That, therefore, he felt impelled to come out for Stevenson at once in order to clarify the situation.

Once he had decided to tell this to DeSapio, Ziffren called a meeting of important Democratic leaders and told them of his intentions. In effect he said to them: "I've now given my personal pledge to Adlai Stevenson. I'm going to make it public on Thursday, Oct. 13. If any of you would like to join me at that time, let me know."

Just a Few Exceptions.

The leap to the bandwagon was instantaneous, with just a few exceptions—the exceptions included a few supporters of Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee. Most of the party leaders were only too anxious to make known this far in advance that they are Stevenson people. Ziffren was delighted, and the stage was set for the DeSapio hotel meeting.

The pieces fell in place precisely as planned. One hour before Ziffren walked out of his meeting with DeSapio, party leaders in northern and southern California released their telegrams to Stevenson in Illinois. Ziffren, having gone to see DeSapio with a prepared Stevenson statement in his pocket, gave it to reporters at noon.

It said, in part:

"We are indeed fortunate that there are so many excellent presidential possibilities in the Democratic party, any one of whom I would wholeheartedly support."

But frankly I hope that the Democrats of California will not be divided by a presidential primary contest requiring us to 'choose up sides' in a way that would interfere with the growing unity of our party."

'Overwhelming Choice.'

"If, however, there were competing delegations, then in all candor I must state that personally I would ask to serve on the Stevenson delegation, since I am convinced he is the overwhelming choice of the Democrats in California, who believe as I do that America today needs his fresh liberalism as well as his deep grasp of international problems."

"Adlai Stevenson has a mature wisdom to set our path, the steadfast courage to persist in that path, and the boundless energy needed to achieve our goals."

"Finally, I must emphasize that this statement represents only my own opinions as a working Democrat, and that under no circumstances could I be critical of any of the other presidential possibilities in our party. Certainly either my good friend Gov. Harriman in New York or Senator Kefauver of Tennessee would be outstanding presidents. If we do have a contest in California I know no responsible Democrat will irresponsibly attack any other Democrat. Any differences will be matters of personal preference, inspired only because different people in good faith may have different opinions."

Slates to Be Selected.

California voters will select slates of delegations to the conventions next June. If there is a contest in the Democratic party here, different slates of delegates will be entered in the primary election, pledged to different candidates. In 1952 Senator Kefauver entered the primary with his slate and won it. It is generally agreed that should Gov. Harriman or Kefauver or anyone else win in the June primary over Stevenson, his convention chances in Chicago would be considerably dimmed if not wiped out. In 1952 he was not an avowed candidate.

With the bandwagon parade now on here for Stevenson, his adherents hope that by next June overwhelming pro-Stevenson sentiment here will discourage Harriman and Kefauver from entering the primary at all. This long-range pattern may work out as planned. But whether it does or not, there are sure to be bruises in the party as a result of this first internal clash.

Kefauver 'Not as of Now' a Presidential Candidate.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 14 (UP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, insisted yesterday he was "not as of now" a candidate for the presidency but left the matter open by saying "I have no idea what the situation might be later on."

Kefauver arrived here for a one-day visit following completion of a two-month trip to Europe and Asia.

Harriman, Kefauver Also To Speak at Chicago Nov. 19.

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (UP)—If Adlai E. Stevenson decides to announce he is a candidate for President at a Chicago Democratic meeting Nov. 19, he will have to do it in front of other possible Democratic nominees. Democratic National Committeeman Jacob M. Arvey announced yesterday that Gov. Averell Harriman of New York and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee would speak also at the $100-a-plate dinner.

When Arvey was asked if Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan would also be present, he asked "is he a candidate?" "He's supposed to be," was the answer.

"Then we'll ask him," Arvey said.

FUND FOR THE REPUBLIC DROPS HERBLOCK TV SHOW

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—A television show featuring Pulitzer prize winning cartoonist Herbert L. Block (Herblock) has been called off.

The reason: Block planned a discussion of current national issues. His sponsor, the Fund for the Republic, is prohibited by law—as a tax-exempt body—from attempting to influence legislation. Discussion of issues or pending legislation might be interpreted as an attempt to influence legislation.

The decision to cancel the TV series was described by both Block and the foundation as mutual. The Fund for the Republic said last night that Block's effectiveness as a commentator depended in large part on his complete freedom to discuss issues, so that "it would not be practical to limit Mr. Block's field... to the boundaries set by the charter of the fund."

Filming of the TV series was to have started in about two weeks.

How do you drink this different drink?

To appreciate today's magnificently dry Puerto Rican rum, you should use several approaches.

First drink it straight—or on the rocks with a twist of lemon. Savor the full effect of its superb dry flavor.

Then try it in a tall glass. See how subtly it harmonizes with your favorite mixer.

Which brand should you buy? All Puerto Rican rums are light and dry—yet each is subtly different. Try several to find your favorite. An excellent brand is Christopher Columbus.

SOCIALIST GROUPS JOIN IN ANTI-U.S. PARTY IN JAPAN

TOKYO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Warrior Socialists united today in a single party with a leftist critic of United States policy as leader and a platform opposing Japan's treaty with the United States.

Mosaburo Suzuki, 62 years old, who once pulled a rickshaw to earn his bread, became chairman of the United Socialists, who now form the second strongest party in Japan. Suzuki was head of the old left-wing Socialists.

Suzuki, who wants Japan to divorce itself from close United States ties, predicted in an interview that within the next two elections the Socialists will take over power from the conservatives.

Suzuki said he wanted a gradual elimination of United States forces in Japan, "economic independence" free of any bars on trade with Red China, and diplomatic relations with Red China and Russia. He also proposed a Far East non-aggression pact among the United States, Japan, Russia and Red China.

ADENAUER MUCH IMPROVED, MEDICAL REPORTS DROPPED

BOON, Oct. 14 (UPI)—West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer made further progress today toward recovery from bronchial pneumonia, government sources reported.

Officials said that Adenauer's condition has so improved that regular medical bulletins will no longer be issued.

Adenauer has been confined to bed at his home in near-by Rheindorf since last Friday. It is expected he will have to remain in bed for two or three more weeks.

G.O.P. GOVERNORS SPLIT ON HOW TO ASSIST FARMERS

Iowan Suggests U.S. Buy Livestock, Stockpile Food—Foss Favors Rigid Supports.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 14 (AP)—Differences of opinion as to how to solve the farmer's price problems cropped up almost as soon as Iowa Gov. Leo Hoegh's Midwest Republican Governor's conference began today.

Hoegh, in opening the one-day session being attended by the Governors of Nebraska, South Dakota, Indiana, and Kansas and the representatives of the chief executives of Wisconsin, Wyoming and Illinois called for the Federal Government to buy livestock and stockpile food for an emergency. He asked that this action be immediate.

The attitude of the Federal Department of Agriculture's representatives who were to be heard later, was expected to call for more deliberation in order to prevent a long period of expensive purchases to try to uphold the market.

Foss for Rigid Support.
Gov. Joe Foss of South Dakota raised another issue in the second speech of the session. The World War II flying ace asked for fixed 90 to 100 per cent parity.

Although the conference showed no signs of condemning Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, the Foss proposal is directly contrary to the Administration's present flexible support plan.

Foss said he "farmed back in the thirties, and I think I know something about the grass roots of this business." He added: "From the first, I have advocated rigid parity, whether it's 90 or 100 per cent doesn't make much difference."

Sales Promotions.

Donald McDowell, Wisconsin agriculture department director, cited a successful sales and promotion campaign by which Wisconsin is improving its dairy market.

Ered Hall of Kansas said he agreed with Hoegh's general statement. He added that the situation in Kansas is aggravated by drought conditions.

Hall, who said he had no specific recommendations to make, advised the conference to devote most of its time to the present price emergency problems. There is virtual agreement, he said, on the long-range need for more marketing, research and distribution efforts.

One Governor said before the meeting that he hoped it would help "the nation—and the Republican party." Democrat Midwest Governors were not invited.

Reporters Admitted.

The public was not admitted, but reporters were. About 40 persons attended the morning session. Another was to follow in the afternoon.

The purchase of livestock and stockpiling food for an emergency were two of the four recommendations by Hoegh.

He said he believed his recommendations would immediately relieve the farm price squeeze and would "give us a permanent, prosperous farm market."

Message from Benson.

The Governors met with the word from Benson that he was "looking forward to receiving the results" of the conference.

Benson has been under fire because of sagging farm prices, particularly those the farmer receives for livestock.

In his address, Hoegh said he had called the representatives of the Midwest farm states "to counsel together about one of our country's greatest and most acute problems—the problem of a faltering agricultural economy."

Governor's Suggestions.

His recommendations were:
1. "That the United States Department of Agriculture immediately go into the market and purchase for use quality livestock to bolster prices."

2. "That as a nation we establish and maintain... critical stockpiles of food as a part of our national defense, and that we place them in those parts of the country and of the world where they will serve that end to best advantage."

3. "I recommend for your consideration the possibility of creating... committees in your respective states" to promote increased consumption of meat, milk, eggs, butter, cheese "and other protective foods."

4. With an expected increase in national population in store, that a system of "reserve acres" be established to take some land out of production now and "insure for posterity bread and peace."

Hoegh's proposal for a livestock purchase program is similar to one Vice President Richard M. Nixon reportedly is pushing. Unconfirmed reports in Washington said Nixon has asked Benson to purchase hogs for the national school lunch program.

Hoegh's "reserve acres" proposal is much like the "soil fertility bank" plan favored by the American Farm Bureau Federation. It calls for the Federal Government to lease land and take it out of grain production and by planting it to soil building crops such as alfalfa.

As the Republican Governors met for their farm price conference, hog prices in Iowa dropped to the lowest levels since 1949. The top in Iowa yesterday was about $14.75 a hundredweight.

Administration Reported Leaving Farm Policy Up to Benson.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Administration leaders were reported today to have given Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson free rein to draft proposed additions to G.O.P. farm policies designed to speed recovery of farm income.

The emphasis was on the term "addition"—because Benson has declared there will be no retreat from present Republican policies which feature flexible farm price supports as contrasted with high, rigid price floors of the Truman Administration.

These reports came on the heels of a conference Benson held with Vice President Richard M. Nixon yesterday. They also followed talk in farm circles that top Administration officials were split on whether the Government was doing enough to help farmers.

Sources close to Benson, who asked that they not be identified by name, said Benson was "quite happy" with recent developments, including his meeting with Nixon.

Benson said after his session with Nixon that "there is no split" within the Administration over farm policies. "The Cabinet is solidly behind the Administration," Benson added. Nixon did not comment. He said in advance that Benson "will speak for me."

Benson himself has said he is not satisfied with present farm prices, which are 5 per cent lower than they were a year ago, and that he will have some proposals for Congress next year. But he has indicated he opposes going as far as some Republicans in Congress propose—such as raising price support levels and offering farmers substantial payments to take surplus land out of crop production until presently-held big surpluses are disposed of.

Hearings on Information Curbs.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—Congressional hearings on whether federal agencies have placed undue curbs on the amount of information they give out to the public were set today for Nov. 7-11 by Representative Moss (Dem., California), chairman of a House Government Operations subcommittee set up to handle the inquiry.

Starving Brothers, 6 and 7, Die After Days of Begging for Food

Neighbors' Complaints Bring Help Too Late—Cries of Hungry Children Disrupted Sleep.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14 (AP)—Two small starving brothers died yesterday after days of begging scraps of food from door to door and eating out of neighborhood trash cans.

Six-year-old William Baughman Jr. died with a plea for food on his lips. "Please, may I have a ham sandwich?" he murmured to hospital attendants.

Seven-year-old Lawrence, who died 12 hours later, never regained consciousness after police removed him, frail and convulsed, from the shabby, one-room apartment where the Baughmans lived with their seven children.

The five girls, ranging in age from one to nine, were placed in foster homes.

Police jailed William Baughman, a 29-year-old unemployed longshoreman, and his 38-year-old wife, booking them with criminal neglect pending formal charges.

Laboratory tests and toxicological examinations were scheduled after Dolores, the oldest girl, told police the brothers had been eating out of an empty mustard jar found under the wooden tenement. Doctors believe it was contaminated.

Neighbors Complained.

Police went to the squalid room yesterday when neighbors complained the children were out begging at all hours of the day and night and had been drinking wine from discarded bottles. One woman said she couldn't sleep because of the cries of the hungry children.

"They ate in the garbage cans . . . up and down the street," said Mrs. Evelyn Scallan, a next-door neighbor.

Offers to bury the two children poured in after Baughman said he would have to wait assistance from his father in Acadia, Tex., because a burial insurance policy had lapsed two months ago.

"I'm a sick man," he said. "I have a nerve sickness. I've been nervous since I was born."

He said he left his last job two weeks ago to seek admission to a Veterans Administration hospital.

Since then, the family lived on $7 worth of food chits provided by nuns at a nearby convent.

Wanted to Be Fighters.

The Baughmans' apartment is less than a block off Canal street, New Orleans' main business thoroughfare.

Baughman, a gaunt, thin man who looks older than his 29 years, said his sons wanted to grow up to be fighters, "like Rocky Marciano."

His wife, a frail woman in a soiled pink dress, tearfully insisted she had done her best for the children.

The family had applied for assistance from the Louisiana Welfare Department, which administers a $110,000,000 a year welfare program, one of the largest and most liberal in the nation.

Miss Lillie H. Nairne, head of the New Orleans office, said the mother gave no indication that her husband was too ill to work or that their situation was an emergency.

Miss Nairne said a follow-up letter was mailed when Baughman failed to show up for a Monday interview. Police found the letter in the mail box.

Diego Rivera Surgery Put Off.

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (UP)—Mexican artist Diego Rivera, who came to Moscow for treatment of cancer, may not have to undergo an operation, his wife said today. Mrs. Rivera said her husband was feeling better and continuing the cobalt treatment. She said a scheduled operation has been postponed.

'Private Citizen' Truman Tours U.N., Holds Press Conference

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 14—Harry S. Truman, who described himself as "a private citizen residing in the great state of Missouri," yesterday was escorted by United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld on a tour of U.N. headquarters. Accompanying him was his daughter, Margaret, and Miss Guri Lie, daughter of former Secretary General Trygve Lie.

With evident realism, Truman ended his tour at the press lounge, subjecting himself to questions from correspondents ranging in subject from international affairs to local politics, and finally to the method described in his memoirs, used by his family during his youth to preserve food in the winter by burying it in the ground.

On that topic, Peter Freukin, author, explorer, and Danish newspaper correspondent, questioned the efficiency of the practice, recalling that in his experience the edibles thus preserved became wormy or otherwise unpalatable. To this Truman replied that he himself had not continued the practice, that it had been done in a day before modern refrigeration and—with a chuckle—deep freezes.

Presidential Politics.
In high good humor which soon reflected itself in the questions addressed to him, the former President made snap reply to a double-edged question which pointed out that he was interested in the United States having a "good President" so did that mean he would run again? Truman replied: "The United States has a good President and I won't run again."

While the inquiries were still on a serious note, Truman said he was certain that the U.N. had made great progress toward international harmony and "will continue to make progress." People expected to get a quarter century of progress in about three months, he said; that was why many were disappointed in the U.N.

"The thing is to go slowly and before we know it we will have what we want before we realize it," he added. He was optimistic about the probability of working out world problems and prevention of World War III. He vigorously defended UNESCO from American Legion attack, asserting the resolution of condemnation was passed by a "bunch of eager-beaver young fellows" in the Legion.

"I know," he said, laughing heartily. "I'm one myself."

On Segregation.
He said he thought great progress had been made against the evils of segregation "due to the Supreme Court decision," that a deal could be arranged to prevent a conflagration in the Middle East because of sale by Communist countries of arms to Arabs and that advances could be made toward disarmament.

On many other inquiries concerning world conflicts, he replied that as a private citizen of Missouri he could not possibly have knowledge of the facts. "I have no Central Intelligence Agency in Independence," he said, with a laugh so infectious the entire room roared.

The remark turned questioners to national politics. Asked about his personal popularity, Truman had reporters laughing again by replying: "I don't know, but I get the heaviest individual mail in Missouri, I expect."

He said that his recent visit to New York, Gov. Harriman did not mean that he had "dumped" Adlai Stevenson as a candidate, employing the word used by his questioner. He said that both men were close friends of his, each would make a great President, that he would speak in favor of no candidate until the Democratic convention and then only as one man on the Missouri delegation.

He wondered if it was necessary for him to say he would back the Democratic selection, whoever it was. While reporters were laughing at that one, he said: "Well, I see no one is going to say: 'Thank you, Mr. President,' so I'll say it myself." With that, the mass interview terminated.

Those reporters, especially in the Soviet bloc section, who facetiously said they were attending the press conference only to see Margaret, were disappointed. She had an appointment which compelled her to leave the tour before the private citizen from Missouri arrived at the press lounge. Mrs. Truman awaited its conclusion in the corridor outside with Hammarskjöld.

BABY BORN IN HELICOPTER, BELIEVED FIRST SUCH CASE

PENSACOLA, Fla., Oct. 14 (AP)—The Navy believes it has a new claim—the first recorded case of a child born in flight in a helicopter.

It happened in recent rescue operations by the carrier Salpan off flood-stricken Tampico, Mexico.

Lt. John E. Gregory, Hickory, N.C., a helicopter pilot, spotted some natives marooned on a dike about 10 miles from Panuca, south of Tampico. He landed to take them aboard and saw a woman in labor.

Gregory took the 14 aboard and headed for Panuca with the throttle wide open. The baby was born en route.

The pilot said the mother walked away from the helicopter unassisted.

$100,000,000 AIR FORCE ORDER FOR LOCKHEED JETS
BURBANK, Calif., Oct. 14 (UP)—The Air Force has placed a $100,000,000 order with Lockheed Aircraft for its new F-104A jet fighter, the company said today.

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, described the plane as possibly "the fastest, highest-flying fighter in the air anywhere." It first was flown in February 1954, and since has been undergoing tests at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif., and Palmdale, Calif.

The company did not disclose the number of planes involved in the contract.

PRINCESS SLIPS AWAY TO DINE WITH TOWNSEND

weekend," Townsend said. A covey of newsmen followed him in wild pursuit to the country home of Mrs. John Willis, Margaret's cousin and intermediary in their crisis.

The Willis estate is close by Windsor Great Park, along whose bridle paths he first taught Margaret to ride and where he apparently won her love.

Policeman at the Gate. At the gate, a big policeman said, "I can't tell you anything, gentlemen."

Then, in a confidential tone and with a cherubic smile, he added:

"There's no way to get in or out of this place except these gates. So you don't have to worry about the group captives escaping. And you don't have to worry about getting in either, Guv'nor."

Thus, the 15-room Willis house set in 50 acres of Woodland was a refuge for the weekend.

At Kingswood in Somersetshire, 160 miles from London, Townsend's mother, gray-haired Mrs. Gladys Townsend, refused to receive visitors in the little family cottage called The Linhay.

Her big black French poodle barked at anyone who approached. From behind the closed door, Mrs. Townsend said, "I cannot say what Peter's intentions are."

"If there is an announcement to be made," she said, "then we had better wait until that day. Then we shall know."

Prime Minister Eden let it be known he would call on Queen Elizabeth Tuesday. It is his regular day for paying his weekly call on the sovereign. But, under the present conditions, it will inevitably be associated with Margaret's future.

Eden and the Queen returned to London Monday. He was at his country residence today. The Queen was in Scotland.

A prompt statement following the meeting of Margaret and Townsend would have prevented the rash of anticipation that swept through the empire today.

Buckingham Palace has an easy route by which it can deny—without even taking official cognizance of them—any rumors that embarrass the royal family. That is by giving off-the-record "guidance" to the two reporters regularly stationed at the palace for Britain's two domestic news agencies.

These two men, the only journalists attached to the palace, then write on their own authority that there is no truth or foundation to the report in question.

No Dumper on Romance. At no time since the Townsend-Margaret reports began two years ago have the two palace correspondents ever been counseled to go easy on a romance. Most significantly, they had no negative guidance today. The inevitable happened. Shocker headlines in the morning newspapers chronicled Townsend's call at Clarence House the same day she returned from Scotland and the day after he returned to London from his air attaché post in Brussels.

By the Associated Press. Townsend's unheralded visit to Clarence House last night lasted an hour and 20 minutes. So far as was known, it was the first meeting of the Princess and Townsend since he was named British air attaché at Brussels. Before that they saw each other nearly every day for 10 years while he was a royal equerry.

Both Margaret and her mother were at Clarence House when Townsend arrived. He drove up alone in his car along the tree-lined Mall and parked in the courtyard of St. James's Palace, across a side street from Clarence House.

Running Interview. When Townsend emerged, a running interview ensued, with these questions and answers:

"Did you have dinner with the Princess and Queen Mother Elizabeth?"

"I can say nothing."

"Did you meet Princess Margaret?"

"I can say nothing."

"Do you expect to know soon what the future holds for you?"

"I cannot say."

"You realize how excited the public is about all this?"

"You can't imagine the state I am in myself."

"Will rumors of a royal romance be cleared up by the time your leave has ended and you return to Brussels?"

"I do not know."

"Are you happy tonight?"

"Yes."

Minister Who Criticized Duke's Polo Hopes Princess Marries. EDINBURGH, Scotland, Oct. 14 (UP)—A Scots minister, who severely criticized the Duke of Edinburgh for playing polo on Sundays, said today he hopes Princess Margaret will marry Capt. Peter Townsend.

Prof. J. B. Inglis, moderator of the Free Church of Scotland, said he could see no theological bar to the marriage.

"We have no policy against divorced persons in the Free Church," he said. "One must always judge the moral values in cases like this."

MRS. LUCE THANKS ITALIANS IN EISENHOWER'S BEHALF

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP)—So many get-well messages for President Eisenhower have flooded the United States Embassy here that Ambassador Clare Boothe Luce went on the national radio network today to thank the Italian people.

She said that on the President's sixty-fifth birthday she wished to thank "both great and small" who wrote they were praying for Mr. Eisenhower's recovery.

An Embassy spokesman said no exact count was made but hundreds of messages were received from all parts of Italy.

EISENHOWER 65 TODAY, HIS SPIRITS ARE HIGH

reflected awareness of Mr. Eisenhower's affection for his farm home at Gettysburg, to which he will return, probably early next month, for further convalescence.

The White House staff gave Mr. Eisenhower a garden of flowering plants and shrubs which will be planted inside the semi-circular driveway leading up to the Gettysburg home.

Members of the Cabinet and other top Government associates who attend Cabinet meetings gave their chief a lane of flowering quince trees which will be planted along the driveway.

The Republican state chairmen gave 48 young Norway spruce trees, also to be planted along the driveway. The two kinds of trees will be alternated.

Smiling broadly, the President listened to a brief tape recording of a musical "Happy Birthday" greeting from reporters covering the summer White House. Later Hagerty told the correspondents the president said it was "the sweetest music he has heard since he's been in the hospital."

The correspondents also gave Mr. Eisenhower a pair of bright red "labor-saving" pajamas with five gold stars on each shoulder and on the shirt pocket.

The President told Hagerty he would wear the pajamas the next time he is visited by Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist who has been called in as a consultant.

Mrs. Eisenhower received a black silk shawl from the reporters, and there were two other presents for Mr. Eisenhower from the correspondents—a gray muffler and two Davy Crockett ties.

Mrs. Eisenhower's eighth-floor room was roses and other flowers from his mother's garden at Abilene, Kan. The flowers were sent by Emmett Graham, an official of the Eisenhower foundation, of which the President's family home is a part.

Other flowers—65 American Beauty roses—were on the way from the White House staff in Washington, which traditionally gives the Chief Executive one rose for each year of his life.

Hagerty said Mrs. Eisenhower asked that one of the roses be placed on each of the hospital's 16 yards and that some of the many other flowers received be distributed to patients after they are shown to the President.

Waves to Patients. At 11 a.m. Mr. Eisenhower, wearing his new muffler, was wheeled out on the sundeck adjoining his room. He remained outside 40 minutes, the longest time to date, and again waved cheerfully to patients grouped on the lawn below.

Earlier, the President dictated a letter to James Rowley, chief of the White House Secret Service detail, who also celebrated a birthday today. Mr. Eisenhower sent birthday greetings and his "warm thanks for everything you do for me."

For his birthday breakfast, Mr. Eisenhower had cantaloupe, bacon, hominy grits, whole wheat toast and guava jelly, a glass of skimmed milk and, for the second day, a cup of black coffee.

Members of the President's immediate party were in his room at various times in the morning to wish him a happy birthday.

Otherwise, the day's routine was little changed by the anniversary. Mr. Eisenhower's physicians gave him his usual examination this morning.

There were indications Mr. Eisenhower was anxious to do as much work as his physicians would allow. He met Tuesday for the first time with a member of his Cabinet, Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, to draft a reply to Soviet Premier Bulganin's letter on disarmament.

Humphrey Has Appointment. Tomorrow a second Cabinet member, Secretary of the Treasury George M. Humphrey, has an appointment with Mr. Eisenhower, presumably to discuss the 1957 budget. Next Monday, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson and Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, will arrive here.

In addition, Mr. Eisenhower has conferred frequently with his chief assistant, Sherman Adams, and has signed several official papers.

WINDS AND HEAVY RAINS STRIKE EASTERN SEABOARD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—A storm with 30-to-40 mile an hour winds whistled up the eastern seaboard today and the weather bureau said some areas might get as much as five inches of rain.

The anticipated path of the storm lay through Pennsylvania, New York state, across Lake Ontario and into Canada, the bureau said. New England and a corner or northeastern Ohio were expected to be affected.

A steady five-hour downpour brought 3.16 inches of rain to the Washington area by 1 a.m. After that the fall was lighter but shortly after daybreak the reading was 4.54 inches, the highest for a similar period since Hurricane Connie brought 5.44 inches of rain to the capital Aug. 12.

At far north as Elmira, N.Y., 2 1/2 inches of rain had fallen by mid-morning.

WEST BEATEN IN U.N. ON COLONIAL ISSUE

Asian - Arab - Latin - Soviet Coalition Votes for Human Rights Debate.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 14 (AP)—The General Assembly social committee, continuing a battle over colonial affairs that has split United Nations blocs from the first of this session, yesterday beat down attempts to delay debate on the right of peoples to self-determination. It also handed to U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarhjold his sharpest setback.

An almost solid Asian-Arab group, a strong Latin American bloc, and the Soviet bloc voted through a proposal to begin discussing proposed human rights treaty drafts with the self-determination issue. The vote was 36 to 18, with three abstentions.

The committee junked without further hearing a proposal by Hammarhjold that the self-determination question be skipped, handed to a committee and finally referred to the General Assembly for a declaration of principles.

Delegates during yesterday's discussion said Hammarhjold had no right, under the charter or any other authority, to intervene in any question being debated by a committee.

Some delegations, on a suggestion by India, proposed that there be a delay in deciding how the treaties should be debated. In that time, delegations could get instructions from their home governments, India said.

However, India later voted for the resolution to go ahead with the debate.

The proposed treaties, worked on by U.N. human rights commissions since 1947, deal with fundamental rights to live, work, get living wages, vote, have decent housing, education and similar goals. They were all contained in a declaration of human rights pronounced by the U.N. in 1948. The Assembly last year instructed the social committee at this session to act on the finished treaty products.

Mrs. Mary Lord, United States delegate to the Human Rights Commission, announced in Geneva two years ago that the United States would not sign any international treaties governing these rights because it thought they were better obtained by education and example than by law.
Mrs. Lord left the committee before yesterday's vote. Her deputy explained to the committee that the United States still believes in self-determination of peoples, but thought the debate on the language in the

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—

STRIKE GUARDS COSTING INDIANA $10,000 A DAY

Martial Law in Perfect Circle Violence Expensive—Union Also Digs for Funds.

NEW CASTLE, Ind., Oct. 14 (AP)—The CIO United Auto Workers and the Indiana State Budget Committee dug deeper today to pay the costs of a 12-week-old strike at the Perfect Circle Corp. plants in eastern Indiana.

Maintaining nearly 1000 National Guardsmen on duty, as the result of a riot last week at the firm's New Castle foundry, is costing the state between $10,000 and $11,000 a day. The figure came from Horace Coats, executive secretary to Gov. George N. Craig.

The State Budget Committee yesterday authorized use of the state's general contingent fund of $75,000 for Guard expenses. One week of Guard duty had exhausted the state civil and military contingent fund, which is set up on a basis of $75,000 a year.

The UAW wasn't saying how much strike benefits it was paying or how many strikers were drawing them, but it has a $25,000 special strike fund. Perfect Circle's normal production force at New Castle, at Hagerstown and Richmond totals 1300, but some are not UAW members.

The union has another weapon in the bitter strike—influence.

The Taft-Hartley Act bar on secondary boycotts prohibits the UAW from striking against another company in an effort to prevent it from using Perfect Circle products, but the UAW considers itself within the law in asking the big auto companies not to use them.

"There is blood on those products," said a UAW spokesman at Detroit, referring to the outbreak of violence last week

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH EX-P.O.W. DENIES WRITING ARTICLES FOR RED CHINESE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Cpl. Thomas Bayes Jr. denied at his court martial today that he ever wrote pro-Communist articles for Chinese newspapers.

The Flat Lick, Ky., soldier declared he had seen his name signed to stories in the Shanghai News, People's China and China Review but said: "I never gave permission to anyone to use my name with the articles."

Bayes, now 32, is charged by the Army with helping the enemy after he was captured by the Chinese during the Korean war.

While in a prison camp, he said, he faked three autobiographies for his captors, but he did not explain why.

This was the third day on the witness stand for Bayes, who testified that he "cussed" his captors for letting fellow war prisoners "lay around and die."

In which both strikers and non-strikers were wounded.

Chrysler Corp. confirmed that its Plymouth plant began using piston rings from another source after its employees balked at handling Perfect Circle products. General Motors and Ford still are said to be accepting shipments from Perfect Circle.

Reopened Wednesday.

The foundry in New Castle resumed production Wednesday, and a company spokesman said its volume should reach 50 per cent of normal by the first of next week. C. B. Juday, plant manager, said 119 reported for their jobs at New Castle yesterday of a normal 250 workers.

The plant produces rough castings which are processed into piston rings by the Hagerstown and Richmond plants.

The latter plants have operated with reduced force throughout the strike. Petitions to decertify the UAW at both Hagerstown and Richmond are pending before the National Labor Relations Board.

The strike began July 25, with the union demanding a 21-cent hourly wage increase, a union shop and a layoff pay plan. Perfect Circle offered 11 cents. Present wages range from $1.21 to more than $2 an hour.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

Cabinet Reorganized—Morgenthau's Resignation Accepted on Issue of His Plan to Pastoralize Germany.

By HARRY S. TRUMAN
Thirty-third President of the United States.
EIGHTEENTH ARTICLE
© 1955 by Time, Inc.
(Publisher of "LIFE")

EVERY President must have a Cabinet of his own choosing. But in time of national emergency continuity helps a succeeding administration to maintain the existing contacts with Congress. That is why, at my first meeting with the Roosevelt Cabinet, I asked all the members to stay on. Eventually there had to be changes. I needed time to get to know each member who had agreed to stay on. I also needed time to familiarize myself with all the urgent business confronting the government.

I knew that several members of the Cabinet had planned to leave even prior to the death of Roosevelt. I knew others would prefer to leave now that Roosevelt was gone, because of the special relationship they had established with him.

Rise of Robert E. Hannegan.

The first Cabinet member whose resignation I accepted was Frank C. Walker, the Postmaster General. I announced his retirement, to be effective June 30th, and appointed Robert E. Hannegan, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, his successor. Walker had wanted to quit long before. As a matter of fact, before I was elected Vice President, Walker had asked me to come down to the Postmaster General's office one day. He told me that President Roosevelt wanted me to be Chairman of the Democratic National Committee and asked me if I would take it.

I told Walker that I was in the United States Senate and was Chairman of the Special Committee to investigate the national defense program, which I thought was making a contribution to the winning of the war. While the offer was a great compliment, I did not feel that I could accept it.

Roosevelt had promised to let Walker quit and said he would appoint Hannegan in his place. Hannegan had been Chairman of the St. Louis Democratic Committee, and when a vacancy came about in St. Louis for a Collector of Internal Revenue, Bennett Clark and I discussed the idea of recommending him to President Roosevelt. After Hannegan had been Collector for some time, Morgenthau selected him as Commissioner of Internal Revenue, calling him the best Collector of Internal Revenue in the country.

Therefore, when Walker insisted on retiring after President Roosevelt's death, I decided on Hannegan to succeed him.

Three More Changes in Cabinet.

On May 23 I announced three additional changes in the membership of the Cabinet: The resignation of Francis Biddle as Attorney General and the appointment of Tom C. Clark to succeed him; the resignation of Frances Perkins as Secretary of Labor and the appointment of Lewis B. Schwellenbach to succeed her; and the resignation of Claude R. Wickard as Secretary of Agriculture and the appointment of his successor, Clinton P. Anderson.

Miss Perkins was among the first to come and tell me that she no longer wanted to stay in the Cabinet. She said that she needed a rest. I told her that I would be happy to have her remain. She was a very able administrator. I always thought she made a good Secretary. She was liked very much and trusted by labor, and she was also well thought of by many of the industrialists.

Lewis Schwellenbach was a Federal judge in the state of Washington when I asked him to head up the Department of Labor. He had been a Senator from 1935 to 1940, and at the time of his appointment as Secretary of Labor, he seemed to me to be the best man for that office. I told him that I wanted to make a real Labor Department and that he was going to have plenty of work and trouble to deal with. A great many of the Labor Department functions had been absorbed during the war, and I was anxious to restore it to the place for which it was originally intended. Schwellenbach was in agreement with me on this. He was an able lawyer and Federal judge, a good Senator, and a real, honest-to-goodness liberal. We saw right down the same alley on public policy.

Francis Biddle had been a good Attorney General, and there was no ill feeling between us. I did not ask him to quit. He quit voluntarily. I do not believe that he was as well satisfied with me as a liberal President as he had been with my predecessor.

Texasans Recommend Tom Clark.

I asked Biddle whom he would recommend to take his place, and he suggested Tom Clark, who, of course, was strongly endorsed by the whole Texas delegation, including Sam Rayburn and Tom Connally, in all of whom I had the utmost confidence.

When I conferred with Clark regarding his appointment, I expressed to him my ideas of how I wanted him to run the Department of Justice. I emphasized to him the need to be vigilant to maintain the rights of individuals under the provisions of the Bill of Rights. I asked him to call a meeting of the District Attorneys of the United States. I told them, when we met, that while they were enforcement officers of the government, it was their duty to see also that the rights of the citizens were protected. I pointed out the danger of prosecuting officers becoming persecuting officers. They are there not only for the purpose of enforcing the law in the interest of the government of the United States, but also to be sure that the rights of individuals under the Constitution are fully protected. I emphasized this so much that Tom Clark thought I was "hipped" on the subject—and I was.

The appointment of a new Secretary of Agriculture became necessary when I appointed Claude Wickard to be head of the Rural Electrification Administration. He had told me he would like to be head of the REA and did not want to remain any longer as Secretary of Agriculture. I was very much surprised that he asked for the new office, and I gave it to him because I knew he was well fitted for it.

Clinton Anderson was on the Special Committee of the House of Representatives to investigate food shortages and had been instrumental in the passage of a great deal of legislation in the House. I invited him to breakfast at the White House one morning and asked him if he would consider being Secretary of Agriculture, and he accepted.

Unprecedented Geographical Distribution.

The reconstituted Cabinet resulted in an unprecedented situation in that five members were from west of the Mississippi. These included Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace, Iowa; Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach, Washington; Attorney General Clark, Texas; Postmaster General Hannegan, Missouri; and Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, New Mexico.

Two more important changes, the fifth and sixth in the Cabinet following my accession to the Presidency, came about at the end of June and during the first days of July. These were the appointments of James F. Byrnes to succeed Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., as Secretary of State, and the appointment of Fred M. Vinson to replace Henry Morgenthau, Jr., as Secretary of the Treasury.

Stettinius had submitted his resignation at the close of the San Francisco Conference, and I persuaded him to become the United States member of the Security Council of the United Nations.

I announced the appointment of Byrnes as Secretary of State on June 30th. Byrnes took the oath of office three days later in my office at the White House.

Morgenthau Plan—and the End of It.

Secretary Morgenthau called upon me at the White House on July 5th to submit his resignation. His letter of resignation and my reply were made public later that day at a press and radio conference. The previous fall he had attended the Quebec meeting of Roosevelt, Churchill and Mackenzie King, and had worked on a plan to eliminate the industrial potential of Germany by making Germany strictly a pastoral and agricultural community. This is what became known as the Morgenthau Plan. Those of us who looked into it did not think much of this plan. I did not like it. When he found out I was going to Potsdam in July, Secretary Morgenthau came in to ask if he could go with me. I told him I thought the Secretary of the Treasury was badly needed in the United States—much more so than in Potsdam. He replied that it was necessary for him to go and that if he could not, he would have to quit.

"All right," I replied, "if that is the way you feel, I'll accept your resignation right now." And I did. That was the end of the conversation and the end of the Morgenthau Plan.

No announcement of a successor to Morgenthau was made immediately, as it was intended that this should be withheld until my return from the Potsdam Conference. I decided, however, to make the announcement shortly before leaving the White House on the night of July 6th that Fred Vinson, the Director of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion would be nominated upon my return from Europe.

A second letter from Morgenthau was later transmitted to me at Potsdam by wireless. In that letter Morgenthau urged that the appointment of Vinson be made without delay. As a result, I ordered the nomination of Vinson sent to the Senate on July 16th.

Highly Appreciative of Vinson.

I had not been very closely associated with Vinson until after he became an Assistant to President Roosevelt as head of OWMR. I knew Vinson socially, but after I went down to the White House and became better acquainted with him, I became highly appreciative of his capacity as an administrator and of his ability to see clearly through a situation as it arose. I valued his judgment and advice very highly, and, until he was appointed to the Supreme Court, Continued on Page 11, Column 4.

GEN. PHILLIPS

Air Force Is Feeling Effects Of Cut-Backs Begun in 1953

Belief That Russia Is Beginning to Surpass U.S. in Air Power Widespread—Wilson Deserts Budget Cutters.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.

WHEN the Soviet Union displayed its latest advances in military aviation in practice flights for the May Day celebration this year, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson was inclined to play it down. They only showed us, he said, what they wanted us to see.

Our own aviation and intelligence experts took quite the contrary position. They reasoned that the display of more advanced aircraft than anything we had, except medium bombers, in numbers that indicated they had been in production for some time was a favorable indication that the United States was being overtaken in quality of aircraft—we were always short of quantity—and had already been surpassed in quality and quantity in some important categories.

In contrast to the position of the Secretary of Defense, Adm. Arthur W. Radford was deeply concerned over Soviet progress and what it boded ultimately for United States superiority. The Secretary was unable to believe that the tremendous sums the United States was spending for aircraft and the skill and experience of our industry were being outmatched by the Soviet Union. At that time he continued to be primarily interested in reducing expenditures.

Since then, the Killian report, further intelligence and unanimous evaluations by the major intelligence agencies concerned, have convinced the Secretary that our supremacy in military aircraft is by no means assured in the future.

The Killian Report.

The Killian report, so called after Dr. James R. Killian Jr., president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who was chairman of a committee consisting of prominent scientific and industrial leaders, was made to the President at the request of the National Security Council in July after a year of study. Some of the conclusions and information about the report were first made public by columnist Joseph Alsop Sept. 19.

The report confirmed the contention of our air intelligence that Soviet aircraft are catching up with ours fast in quality and are in the process of surpassing ours.

According to Air Force thinking the threat to the United States can only continue to increase until 1964. This is due to the cut-backs instituted in 1953 just at the time when our aviation and guided missile programs should have pressed with renewed vigor.

It is even more urgent today to press these programs, the Air Force believes, due to the loss of lead to the Soviet Union during the past three years.

Direct evidence of the change in Wilson's thinking was given in the latter part of September when he sided with the service secretaries and the Chiefs of Staff in resisting the efforts of the Secretary of the Treasury to reduce military spending by an additional billion dollars. Not only did Wilson refuse to go along with the Secretary of the Treasury on additional cuts, but he added $500,000,000 to his previous estimate of military spending during the current fiscal year.

Tip-off by Radford.

The tip-off, however, had been given by Adm. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, in two addresses, Sept. 15 in Atlantic City and Sept. 25 in Chicago.

Whereas in the past Radford has been content to reassure the nation that the military program would assure American superiority, now he was warning in very cautious language that we must maintain our superiority.

"It is mandatory," he declared, "that we look to the continued improvement of our forces in the future... our whole future depends on it."

At another point he said: "We have watched the greatest job of aggressive expansion ever recorded. Without committing a soldier to battle, the Soviets

Our Strike-Bound Behavior

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
St. Louis, which has a sterling public transportation service, owes much, I suggest, to its public transportation workers for the success of that service.

St. Louis has a tradition which I respect, a maturity in its unions, and a community recognition of this maturity.

St. Louis is, to its Southern neighbors, a model in its intelligent bargaining with and studied appreciation of good labor relations.

I hope that the citizens of St. Louis (happily, as we can tell only by press wire photos, by the material inconvenience of Gravois avenue traffic jams) will consider their own inconvenience a minor affliction. The city's integrity, which we here respect, will be best shown in the impartial attitude its people pursue in this situation.

What St. Louis does in its treatment of its transport system will guide us, doubtless, in our own behavior.

In judging your transportation employees, please bear the lower South (which ain't blessed by the stability which unions lend) in mind.

ALLEN JOHNSON.

Oversight?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The County Council in its ordinance against noisy animals overlooked creatures that bray. Probably thought such a rule might halt its weighty discussions.

FARMER JOHN.

An Expensive Subterfuge

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Cigarette distributors were clearly thinking about expending their money when they attempted to defeat Referendum No. 1 at the Oct. 4 election. No group of persons would permit a tax to be levied on their business without putting up a fight.

However, since the cigarette tax has been approved by the people, the wisdom of expending additional money to test its validity in the courts might well be questioned.

The law governing a teacher's contract states "the contract shall be signed by the president of the board." When a president of a board refused to sign a contract the court declared that the statute requiring a teacher's contract to be signed by the president of the board was unconstitutional. A teacher's contract otherwise properly executed is not invalid because of the omission of the president's signature.

As the president of a school board cannot nullify the will of the majority, then the school board is the speaker of the House can defeat the will of an overwhelming majority of representatives by withholding his signature.

It is alleged in the suit that there is no provision in the Constitution for the taking of action on an "authorized and certified copy of an original bill." In a court of justice, substance rather than form is likely to be the main consideration. Is the meaning and substance of the certified copy the same as that of the original?

The courts of Missouri are not likely to be a party to a subterfuge in defeating the will of the overwhelming majority of the House of Representatives. It is a well known fact that after the original bill was referred to the committee of governmental reorganization, the bill "disappeared" and was not re-discovered until after the final adjournment of the General Assembly.

I am not an attorney, just a citizen who tries to keep informed and believes in the fairness and greatness of our American way of life.

T. DEAN ADAMS.

Purity Will Prevail

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
After reading the article by Robert E. Hannon on "Simon Pure Football" in the Oct. 9 PICTURES section I devised a scheme which will, if adopted, improve the gridiron performances of the Washington University team. Let each team member solemnly say before each game, "My strength is as the strength of 10, because my heart is pure," and no foe can hope to prevail against them.

ROBERT G. LANGE.

Too Little Time

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
It is indeed a shame that the Veiled Prophet ball was allotted only five minutes of network television time. It is heartening, however, to know that General Manager George M. Burbach of KSD-TV reports that hundreds of letters and cards have been received from throughout the United States and Canada. And the nicest surprise is that these five minutes brought responses from states as far away as California, Florida and Rhode Island.

I hope that next year our wonderful Veiled Prophet will strive to attain more network television time. Why, with as little as 10 minutes more, he would no doubt receive letters from even more distant states—Oregon perhaps or even Maine!

JAMES P. RYAN.

A Bad Choice

The presidential appointment of a lame duck from Montana, former Representative Wesley A. D'Ewart, as Assistant Secretary of Interior for Public Land Management, is a remarkable development. The Portland Oregonian, from the home state of Secretary of Interior McKay, comments on its remarkableness in an editorial reprinted under the caption today.

Mr. D'Ewart as a member of the House was one of the most eager errand boys of the stockmen in their effort to grab the public range of the West for their private use. His appointment as the guardian of the very lands he has been trying so assiduously to despoil looks like a case of the fox set to guard the chickens.

It follows the appointment of a partisan of private power as chairman of the federal agency to regulate private power companies, and a spokesman for telephone companies as chairman of the agency to regulate telephone companies.

The appointment of Mr. D'Ewart was considered of so much importance by somebody that it was one of four which Sherman Adams, the President's chief assistant, flew to President Eisenhower's bedside at Denver Oct. 5 for his signature.

Mr. D'Ewart took up his new office under the recess appointment Oct. 6. Chances are now that the Senate will refuse confirmation if the President sends the appointment to the Capitol next year, George H. Hall, a Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, reports. Senator Murray of Montana, whom Mr. D'Ewart tried unsuccessfully to unseat last year, and Senator Neuberger of Oregon are leading the opposition.

As special assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Benson since the first of this year Mr. D'Ewart had already prepared a new grazing lands bill for which he was seeking approval and which had reached as far as the desk of Sherman Adams, our correspondent reported.

In its report of the matters, including the D'Ewart appointment, which Mr. Adams flew to the President's bedside Oct. 5, the Associated Press said that the discussion was limited to "non-controversial matters with which the President was familiar" already.

Yet Mr. D'Ewart is about as controversial a matter as they come, and one of the strongest controversies over him is that between Secretary of the Interior McKay and Secretary of the Interior McKay. As The Oregonian notes in its editorial reprinted today, the Secretary now terms Mr. D'Ewart "a man of very, very good judgment." But when one of Mr. D'Ewart's range-giveaway bills was pending in the House two years ago, Secretary McKay described it as "lousy," and said in an interview at Denver:

"The D'Ewart bill would give cattlemen vested rights to their grazing permits. I'm confident we'll live up to the campaign pledge and do something for the cattleman, but not at the expense of all the rest of the people. There's going to be no giveaway program on the public lands. We're going to protect our natural resources."

How does Secretary McKay square this estimate of Mr. D'Ewart and his attitude toward the public lands with the estimate now that he is "a man of very, very good judgment," and with having him in a post where he can work the most effectively for a giveaway program at the expense of the people?

One Road to Wareagle

On the weekend of Oct. 21, when the maples will be flaming under the high Ozarks of northwestern Arkansas, one road will lead to Wareagle, pop. 24. The road is State Route 12, which is best located, as they say in the hills, where the rises may not be so high but the draws are mighty deep.

Now St. Louis has little trouble advertising itself at the drop of a shoe or a beer keg. But Wareagle would have difficulty making itself heard above the splash of the War Eagle river even if all its residents sang in chorus. Nevertheless, Wareagle promises to be a busy hamlet for two days, and expects several thousand visitors. The reason for this will be the annual Ozark Arts and Crafts Fair, which the Northwest Arkansas Handweavers' Guild created to display and protect the mountain arts.

Every Wareagle pitches in for the bee. The result is a demonstration of weaving and spinning, plus ceramics, hand-painted china, quilting, doll-making and leather and metal craft. Out on Elliott's sheep farm, in a log building removed from the sheep, stew and cider and doughnuts will be served. Maybe the Arkansas traveler's road did not start anywhere and did not go anywhere, but Route 12 goes to Wareagle.

Eisenhower to Bulganin

It is obvious that President Eisenhower has had little opportunity for detailed consideration of Premier Bulganin's letter on disarmament.

He received the letter the day before his heart attack. His brief reply, drafted Wednesday at a 25-minute conference with Secretary Dulles, thus could do no more than offer courteous acknowledgment and express the hope that some way could be found to combine his plan for aerial reconnaissance with the Soviet plan for key-point ground inspection.

When the President does get the chance to go into the matter in more detail, he may well find that the disarmament discussion now needs another stimulus as powerful as the one he gave it at Geneva with the aerial inspection proposal. For the discussion is pretty much on dead center, and the feeling is growing that at this particular stage the Russians may occupy a stronger position, in the eyes of the world, than we do.

As things stand, the United States wants to start immediately the exchange of military information, reciprocal aerial surveillance of each country's territory, and perhaps inspection on the ground at key points. But our government is not ready yet to sign a disarmament agreement setting definite ceilings on armed forces and a definite time schedule for other stages of disarmament, including the ultimate outlawing of atomic weapons.

The Russians, on the other hand, say they are ready to agree now on armed forces levels, a schedule for atomic disarmament, and the establishment of international inspection at key control posts. But they decline to accept the exchange of military information and the aerial inspection plan unless an over-all disarmament treaty is first agreed to. Even then, they are vague as to when these steps would be taken, whereas it was the essence of the Eisenhower plan that they should be taken at once, without waiting for a general disarmament treaty.

There is plenty of reason for doubting whether the Russians are sincere when they seem to press, as Premier Bulganin did in his letter to President Eisenhower, for prior agreement on a general disarmament pact. Yet in the eyes of the world they probably have strengthened their position, because they have adopted, on important phases of the problem, the views previously supported by the United States, Britain and France. Surely it is possible for creative statesmanship to find a way of bridging this gap between Moscow and Washington. If the Russians really want a disarmament pact, and if the West really wants a breakdown of secrecy as a preliminary to disarmament, it is tragic irony for both to be stalled by an argument over which comes first, Mr. Eisenhower could find no problem worthier of attention as his recovery proceeds.

Now Settle the Differences

The AFL union's strike of streetcar and bus employees against the St. Louis Public Service Co. has ended the way it was virtually inevitable for it to end. After Attorney General Dalton filed a $30,000 penalty suit under the King-Thompson law, the employees voted overwhelmingly to go back to work. Under mediation procedure, the company and the union will resume collective bargaining over wage differences.

If the employees of the Public Service Co. have special obligations as public utility workers, and there can be no argument about that, so do the company and its officers also have special obligations.

The main obligation of the company is to keep on providing service for the public just as it is the obligation of the employees to keep on working while differences are adjusted.

The purpose of the King-Thompson law is to find a way to protect the public so that the people's public utility needs will be met while labor negotiations continue.

Were the law to be used by a company as something to fall back on—as a kind of cushion on which the employer could sit in relative comfort after the State of Missouri took over, it would do a disservice to collective bargaining.

Bargaining, in short, must be in good faith on both sides under the King-Thompson law. The law seeks to discourage strikes and it presupposes just as much willingness on the part of the company as of the union to discuss the issues.

The King-Thompson law has not been a cure-all. In the eight years since it became effective there have been, counting this one, three transportation strikes in St. Louis. In 1947, before the law took effect, a dispute arose over a wage award and for two weeks the city was without busses and streetcars. The loss to St. Louis was estimated at $25,000,000.

Five years ago Gov. Smith attempted to head off a strike by seizing the company under the law. That sparked a wildcat strike. In that instance the company turned thumbs down on wage recommendations submitted to the parties by a panel after public hearings.

The third strike since the law became effective, also a wildcat affair, came in 1953. It lasted only two days and there was no seizure.

One of the difficulties is that the validity of the King-Thompson law has never been tested finally by the courts. A case on the question of liability of the operator of a public utility vehicle is now in the judicial mill. In fairness to those who are asked to abide by the law, it is not too much to expect that the statute would be tested in five years to the satisfaction of all concerned including the public.

If the block to this kind of test is the fact that the test case disappears as soon as the employees return to work, then the company should join the union in finding the means to a test that will resolve in the courts this question of validity. It is not good enough to leave the legal situation as it is.

Cheers!

In the nature of things there are thousands of men and women and boys and girls in the United States with birthdays on October 14. When we count in the whole world, the number with birthdays on October 14 runs into mighty big figures. Yet all the other October 14ers, we are sure, will understand when we say there is one birthday this year that stands out above all others. It stands out so much that no one needs to name its owner or say in what hospital he now grows better by the hour. So—happy birthday and many, many, many returns!

Inefficiency by Law in St. Louis

Mayor Tucker started his personal participation in the campaign for a new city charter by emphasizing the administrative inefficiencies now forced on the municipal government. As an example, he cited the Department of Public Welfare created by the 1914 charter—which is still the last word for St. Louis.

"It is the largest city department, with more than 4200 employees," said the Mayor. "It includes such unrelated functions as the operation of hospitals, the city workhouse and jail and the public defender bureau. Also in this department is the division of parks and recreation, which certainly has no relation to the others."

Saying it was all but impossible for any individual to satisfactorily supervise such diverse functions, the Mayor went on to point out inefficiency: the collection and handling of city funds by four different offices, those of the revenue collector, license collector, treasurer and comptroller.

Thus without even mentioning the more serious issue of home rule, Mayor Tucker made a good case for a new charter. Just in terms of the money it spends in a year, St. Louis government has become more than four times as big and complex as it was in 1914. The Model-T charter which was good enough then is obviously inadequate now.

Our Poets Have Their Day

By proclamation of Gov. Donnelly this is the season when we all should pay special heed to Missouri poets. Actually the state's chief executive at Jefferson City is moving in concert with a good many other Governors who are timing their proclamations to coincide with what seems destined to go down on the calendar as National Poetry Day this Saturday.

While there is little reason to believe that Shakespeare was moved to his best sonnet by royal proclamation setting aside some one day, history does tell us that not a few poets enjoyed support from the kingly throne. Thus protected against the wolf at the door, they then were free to put their minds on literary endeavors. We owe no little to this ancient system of poetic price supports.

Lacking a system of public subsidies for poets, we can at least turn an ear to them when they gain the favor of a gubernatorial salute. Here in St. Louis there are exhibits at the Public Library and a series of open meetings including a scheduled report next Sunday afternoon in the Children's Room by Charles Guenther on his recent visits with poets Ezra Pound and Chris Bjerknes. Down at Springfield, the Writers Guild is holding a competition for Ozark versifiers. And why not? When an entire hand, has been warm and sunny, with only occasional light showers to remind us that this is Scotland.

HAVING GOOD DAYS AND BAD DAYS

Hardly at Home on the Range

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Secretary McKay's new Assistant for Public Land Management is former Congressman who tried to turn over public land to stockmen, Oregon paper recalls; doubts sponsor of 'infamous' bill of 1953 will seek multiple use of the public domain.

An Editorial in the Portland Oregonian

Secretary of Interior Douglas McKay's penchant for baring his neck on the political guillotine baffles us.

The latest incident is his praise of Wesley A. D'Ewart of Montana as Assistant Secretary of Interior for Public Land Management. The odds are that the Democratic Senate never will confirm this appointment when it meets in January. It should not.

As a Representative in Congress, Mr. D'Ewart was the warm friend and spokesman for a group of big-game cattlemen who have been trying for years to rewrite the laws that give the lands acts to give them feudal rights in the public domain.

In 1953, the bill he introduced at the request of the cattlemen, known as the D'Ewart bill or the "stockmen's grazing act," aroused a nation-wide storm of opposition from conservationists.

In defense of the rights of 30,000,000 Americans who use the public domain annually, as well as in the interest of conserving watersheds on which urban life and cropland farmers depend for water and power, and in opposition to the demands of 14,830 ranchers who have permits to graze cattle and sheep in the national forests, The Oregonian said at that time:

"In brief, the bill would give ranchers a vested right to national forest grazing lands which now they use as a public privilege. The right would be perpetual, in virtually all cases. Grazing lands would become, in effect, a part of the rancher's property, without the cost of taxes and administration and for payment of a low fee.

"They could be sold with the home ranch to a new owner and handed down to descendants. Wealthy ranchers could buy other 'base property' strategically located to give them a monopoly on all the grazing lands they could use. A reasonable supposition is that the result would be larger and larger ranches, and fewer smaller ranches."

The D'Ewart bill was defeated by the Republican Congress and Representative D'Ewart himself was defeated in his race for the Senate against Montana's Democratic incumbent, James E. Murray, by 128 votes. A new grazing bill was written by James E. McCardle, chief of the Forest Service, and introduced as the Hope-Aiken bill.

The new proposal eliminated many of the bad features of the D'Ewart bill. But conservation interests divided on it, and the Democratic attacks carrying over from D'Ewart's efforts obscured its good features.

Democratic candidates in 1954 tried to paint the stockmen's bill as an Administration raid on the public lands for private interests, treating the vicious D'Ewart bill and the reasonably fair Hope-Aiken bill as one and the same.

What will they say now that administration of interior's public lands has been turned over to Mr. D'Ewart? Politics aside, we cannot agree with Secretary McKay.

An Issue of Integrity

From the Washington Evening Star

It would be hard to think of a graver accusation than that which Harry Truman has made, rather casually, against James F. Byrnes in the former's memoirs.

As Mr. Truman relates the story, Mr. Byrnes telephoned him at Independence, Mo., in July, 1944. Mr. Byrnes said that the President had decided on him as the vice presidential nominee for the forthcoming election, and he wanted to know if Mr. Truman would put his name in nomination. Mr. Truman agreed. It became clear later, of course, that Mr. Truman was the President's choice, and he was nominated.

In Mr. Truman's account, however, he says he learned some time later that the President had called a meeting, far in advance of the Democratic convention, to discuss with party leaders the selection of a running mate.

At this meeting, according to the memoirs, the President said he preferred Mr. Truman, and Frank Walker, former Postmaster General, was instructed to notify Mr. Byrnes of the decision.

"I believe, therefore," Mr. Truman wrote, "that Byrnes knew that the President had named me at the time he called me in Independence and asked me to nominate him at the convention."

This, to repeat, is about as serious an accusation as one public figure could make concerning another. For Mr. Truman is saying that Mr. Byrnes, one-time Congressman, Senator, Supreme Court Justice, Secretary of State and Governor of South Carolina, deliberately and knowingly deceived him.

It is hard to believe that this is true, especially since, on its face, it makes little or no sense. How could Mr. Byrnes have expected to get away with such a deception as Mr. Truman imputes to him?

There is nothing in Mr. Truman's account of the incident to indicate that he ever tried to confirm or verify his belief. And Mr. Byrnes, "for the present," is having nothing to say. (Mr. Walker recalls that he delivered the message to Mr. Byrnes. It is not clear, however, whether this was before or after the Byrnes phone call to Independence.)

But the issue of integrity which this account raises is too serious to be left permanently unresolved and buried in a seemingly casual paragraph in any one's memoirs.

Film Hit From St. Louis

Cecile Starr in The Saturday Review

EDINBURGH, Scotland. Those who have attended the Edinburgh Film Festival regularly in the previous eight years tell me that two things are unusual about this year: the films and the weather. The films are said to be only fair in comparison to past years. The weather, on the other hand, has been warm and sunny, with only occasional light showers to remind us that this is Scotland.

Of the American films only about one half have been shown widely in the United States. Aside from three theatrical UFA cartoons which were loudly applauded the most talked-of film was a documentary entitled "The Big Issue" (14 min.), an eye-opener about municipal deterioration for which the film urges immediate reform and reconstruction. Made by Charles Guggenheim Associates in St. Louis, it was in the social-documentary tradition so nearly defunct all over the world.

Birth Pangs of Jewish State

SOUND THE GREAT TRUMPET, edited by M. Z. Frank. (Whitaker Books, 415 pp., $5.)

Through the eyes and pens of Israel's most gifted writers the reader is led along the dolorous path from the early days of Jewish colonization in the beginning of the century through the war against the Arabs—and it is usually a sad sound which speaks of sufferings and frustrations.

And yet, out of the sufferings and heartbreaks the Jewish state was born, a fact which hardly any of the older writers represented in this book would have dared to believe they would live to see.

"The purpose of this book," explains the editor in his introduction, "is to give the reader a series of pictures of life in Israel during the decades it evolved from a wilderness into a modern state, and the years following the establishment of the state. The selections are taken from the records of men and women who participated in the effort."

It seems that the book achieves its purpose well enough. The atmosphere of the various periods is genuine, and it is recaptured in both factual accounts and fiction. The reader, from the start, is enveloped in the dramatic events and is kept in suspense, even though he knows already the outcome.

Many episodes of Israel's modern history come to life again in this book. One of the most gripping stories is that of the refugee ship which in 1948 tries to run the blockades set up by the British, just as hundreds of other ships attempted to do.

Crammed with 2000 refugees, the ship is surrounded by British destroyers as soon as it approaches Palestinian waters. The British captain tries to persuade them to surrender peacefully so they can be deported to Cyprus under the laws of the mandate power.

The answer is the singing of the Jewish national anthem. Everybody is defiant, although it is clear that the refugees do not have the ghost of a chance. Again and again, the British try to persuade the Jews to give up.

Finally they use tear gas. Men, women and children are nearly suffocating, but they do not come out voluntarily; they have to be carried off the ship one by one. With the Promised Land in their plain view, "we were dispatched to a new exile," as the author, Moshe Carmel, says.

It is the same spirit of confidence in their ultimate fate that led the Israelis to victory in their fight for survival against overwhelming Arab manpower and arms.

A number of stories in this book recapture the solidarity and the spirit of self-sacrifice on the part of soldiers and civilians alike, which made it possible to accomplish the impossible. Probably the most astounding feat of that war was the "Burma Road" which the Israelis cut through the mountains to relieve Jerusalem. A story by Menahem Talmi tells of the difficulties of the task and the final triumph.

Santanya's English Lectures

CHARACTER AND OPINION IN THE UNITED STATES, by George Santanya. (George Braziller, $2.75.)

At a time when Europeans are falling over each other to pass judgment on the American character and achievement, it might be salutary to turn instead to this considered appraisal by a European who lived most of his life in America and came to know it as well as we do ourselves.

The lectures by George Santanya collected in this volume were originally delivered in England, but they are concerned with fundamentals rather than externals and are as valid today as when they were written. Santanya admired America's vitality and perennial spirit of youth, but regretted its tendency to nourish the finer things in life without sufficient grace and lightness.

Storm Over 'Non-Controversial' Job

WASHINGTON

THE INTERIM APPOINTMENT of former Representative Wesley D'Ewart (Rep., Mont.), as Assistant Secretary of Interior was among four commissions signed recently by President Eisenhower which were described as "non-controversial" by White House aides at Denver.

To apply the "non-controversial" label to the D'Ewart appointment was found quite ironic by Democrats and conservation groups. In fact the immediate reaction among them was to start preparing a fight against the nomination if it is submitted to the Senate for confirmation in January when Congress meets. The controversy is likely to be noisier than any thus far in the Eisenhower Administration. In the Eisenhower campaign, the D'Ewart nomination was a major issue. The controversy is likely to be noisier than any thus far in the Eisenhower Administration. In the Eisenhower campaign, the D'Ewart nomination was a major issue.

D'Ewart

Consequently, it is being freely predicted at the capitol that the Vice President and his 1954 campaign will somehow get into the public hearings over the D'Ewart nomination, especially since the Vice President now is first choice in the Gallup poll for the Republican presidential nomination if the President isn't a candidate.

Murray Points to Record.

The President also got into the 1954 Montana campaign with a speech at Helena where he went no further than to call Mr. D'Ewart his "good friend," the stock practice for a President when he mixes into congressional elections.

In a statement here, in which he said he had never been vindictive against political opponents in his 20 years in the Senate, Senator Murray cited the legislative record of former Representative D'Ewart which is familiar here to those who follow conservation policies as the basis of his opposition to confirmation.

He mentioned first the bill sponsored by Representative D'Ewart to give cattlemen vested rights for grazing in the public domain which, as recalled by those covering the public hearings, brought conservationists from over the country upon the capitol in vehement protest.

Also, as pointed out by Senator Murray, that measure was bluntly called "lousy" by Secretary of Interior McKay and it was killed.

Another bill listed by the Montana Senator, for which Representative D'Ewart was floor manager as committee chairman though not the author, would have permitted timber operators to swap private holdings for timber in national forests.

After a baptism of denunciation from the House floor, where another Montanan, a Democrat, Representative Lee Metcalf, described it as a measure to allow big timber operators to exchange stumps for trees, it was sent back to committee.

Senator Murray also pointed out that the National Congress of Indians adopted a resolution last month at Spokane urging the President not to appoint Mr. D'Ewart because his record "showed him unsympathetic toward the Indian people and their efforts to maintain their diminishing land base."

Before Mr. D'Ewart took his important Interior post he was an assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Benson.

CHURCHILL WRITES ST. LOUIS LAWYER

Replies to Invitation to Westminster College Inaugural Ceremony.

Sir Winston Churchill, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, praised the "continued co-operation" between the United States and England in a letter to John Raeburn Green, St. Louis attorney, in answer to an invitation to him to attend inauguration ceremonies at Westminster College in Fulton, Mo., tomorrow.

Robert L. Davidson will be inaugurated as the fifteenth president of the college in the ceremonies starting at 10:30 a.m. on the campus. Glenn R. Morrow, 1914 graduate of Westminster and at present Adam Seybert professor of moral and intellectual philosophy at the University of Pennsylvania, will deliver the installation address.

Churchill wrote that it would be impossible for him to attend in person the ceremonies at the college where in 1946 he made his famous "Iron Curtain" address. He said there had been many changes in the world, but "we still require that constancy of mind and persistence of purpose which I described to you in 1946. The years that have passed since then have also seen continued co-operation between our two great English-speaking peoples."

"It is not only for itself that I value the invitation," he wrote, "but also as a symbol of the close relationship between the

Among the banned "Ave Maria" versions are those by Schubert and Bach-Gounod. The cardinal's proclamation said the ban was mandatory and "no deviation will be permitted."

NEW ROUTE NEEDED TO LITTLE AMERICA

Coast Guard Capt. Charles W. Thomas Says Bay Is Gone.

Navy Task Force 43, scheduled to sail next month for the Antarctic to establish bases for "Operation Deepfreeze," must find a new route to Little America, Capt. Charles W. Thomas, task force chief of staff, said here yesterday.

Capt. Thomas, former commander of the Second Coast Guard District here, spoke before the Armed Forces Council of St. Louis at Hotel De Soto.

A new route is necessary because the Bay of Whales, used by R. Adm. Richard E. Byrd and others on earlier expeditions, has disappeared as a result of the movement of huge masses of glacial ice, he explained.

Capt. Thomas has been lent by the Coast Guard to the Navy for its part in the Antarctic phase of scientific projects in which the United States will participate with 38 other nations during the International Geophysical Year, 1957-58.

The group plans to set up bases on Little America, Marie Byrd Land and at the South Pole. Navy Sea-Bee construction battalions will establish airfields at Little America and the Air Force will fly planes from New Zealand to the base, Capt. Thomas said.

At the base at the South Pole, 20 men will be stationed for at least a year to make scientific studies of the polar region. The task force will consist of three icebreakers, two fleet tankers and necessary supply ships.

Capt. Thomas, author of a book on Arctic exploration, has been commander of the icebreaker, "East Wind," since leaving his command here in 1951. Adm. Byrd is commander-in-chief of the expedition.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR THOMAS T. POLEMAN

Funeral services for Thomas T. Poleman, president of the First National Bank of Clayton from 1947 to 1949, were held yesterday at Oak Grove Memorial Mausoleum, 7809 St. Charles road, Overland.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Jimmy Carter to Try For Fourth Title

JIMMY CARTER, that much-cussed and discussed lightweight from New York, will try next Wednesday night to set another new record in boxing when he attempts to win the lightweight championship for the fourth time. Jimmy has already won it, and lost it three times.

Now he will try to dethrone Wallace (Bud) Smith of Cincinnati in a 15-round contest at Cincinnati Gardens. Smith won the crown from Carter last June 20, on a split decision. Previously, Carter had defeated Smith in a non-title contest.

The bout will be telecast nationally, over Station KTVI (Channel 36) in St. Louis at 8 o'clock and broadcast over KNOK.

Carter, a smooth-boxing Negro with a punch, is 35 years old. He turned professional in 1946 and in 98 fights he has won 70, lost 19 and drawn in nine.

Jimmy has been accused widely of exerting himself only when he felt like it and he has been accused, too, of taking too lightly even in title bouts when he thought a loss would mean only another well-paying gate for the return.

Be that as it may, his career has been one of peculiar ups and downs.

Carter won the title the first time in May of 1951 when he knocked out like Williams in the fourteenth round. He lost it to Lauro Salas the following year, May 14, on a 15-round decision in Los Angeles. Then he regained it from Salas, Oct. 15, 1952, on a 15-round decision at Chicago.

On March 5, 1954, Paddy DeMarco won the title from Carter on a 15-round decision in New York and on Nov. 17 the same year Carter regained the championship when he stopped Paddy in 15 rounds in San Francisco. The latter was a bitterly fought contest which followed several postponements due to illness and injury to DeMarco.

Split Decision.

CARTER won a decision from Smith in a non-title bout, then they were matched for the title over the 15-round route last June 20. The bout was fought in Boston and Smith gained the verdict on a split decision which was objected to strenuously by Carter and his handlers.

The rematch is in accord with an agreement made before the title bout.

Whether Jimmy will be as successful this time as he has been in the past in regaining his lost laurels is anybody's guess, but prior to losing the title to Smith he had been defeated by Orlando Zulueta and held to a draw by Tony DeMarco in previous bouts this year.

It seemed to be the consensus of viewers after his defeat by Smith that he had come to the end of the road and would find it very difficult at best to win the return bout.

Carter knocked out Charley Riley at the Arena, June 2, 1954, the bout following one of the postponements of Carter's return go with Paddy DeMarco. That finished Charley's 10-year career.

Smith No Great.

SMITH is no ball of fire himself, although he did win the National A.A.U. lightweight championship in 1948 before going into the money ranks.

He has had 48 professional bouts, winning 31, losing 11 and drawing in six. He has knocked out 18 opponents and has been knocked out once himself — by Joe Miceli in five rounds in 1954.

Two of his losses were at the hands of Virgil Atkins, now new welterweight hope of St. Louis. Virgil defeated Smith twice in a two-week period in 1951, both bouts being fought here, the first on April 4, the second on April 17.

Smith, 28 years old, is married and the father of three little girls. He graduated from the same high school in Cincinnati—Woodward—from which Ezzard Charles graduated.

In high school, he was on the baseball, football and track teams. He began boxing in 1945 as an amateur and won 65 of 70 bouts.

Neither of the principals in the title match can compare to the mighty warriors of yesteryear who held the 135-pound championship, like Benny Leonard, Henry Armstrong, Joe Gans, Battling Nelson or Ad Wolgast.

The lightweight division, now, like most of the other weight classes in boxing, is not what it used to be.

Carter, probably, is a lot better boxer than his record shows, but he has never put himself out, particularly to act and fight like a great champion.

If he does not receive the credit which he may think is his due, he has nobody to blame but himself.

Drake, Baldoni Bout

Tonight on KSD-TV

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 14 (UP)—Middleweight Ray Drake of Far Rockaway, N. Y., a slick boxer, is favored at 8-5 to beat slugger Tony Baldoni of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., tonight in their TV-radio fight at War Memorial Auditorium. (The fight will be telecast by KSD-TV.)

Drake, 25 years old, and Baldoni, 23, are trying to crash into the top ten ratings among 160-pound contenders, and an impressive victory by either might turn the trick.

Mizzou Must Get In and Pitch to End Stumbling at Ames

Lorenzen Cyclones' Top Star

By Bob Broeg

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

EN ROUTE TO AMES, Ia.,

Oct. 14—Unless there's a last-minute change of condition that would enable Jimmy Hunter to play, Missouri is likely to have to rely on a precarious game of pitch-and-catch to beat Iowa State tomorrow.

Time was—and so recently—when the Cyclone was only a gentle sycamore in competition against the Tigers. The Scarlet and Gold is on the upswing now, make no mistake about that, but Ol' Mizzou has had an even greater drop to accommodate 'em.

Especially making Iowa State troublesome for Missouri in the last few years, however, has been a sudden M.U. ineptness at Clyde Williams Field and, on the other hand, a spirited team effort by the kids in the tall corn country.

Smashing Upset in 1953.

Defeated at Ames four years ago when a freshman-laden Tiger eleven won only three games, one of them on a technicality of ineptness, Don Faurot's athletes also were beaten at Iowa State two seasons back. That was a smashing 13-6 upset.

So not since 1949 when a Gator Bowl-bound team used a long touchdown run by John Glorioso on the first play as the springboard to a 32-0 triumph, has Missouri prevailed in the modest little Iowa State stadium where the 1955 Tigers will begin Big Seven Conference competition tomorrow.

Although still seeking a victory after four rugged non-league games, Ol' Mizzou will be favored—Iowa State hasn't won, either—but, as mentioned, probably will have to rely on an uncertain pass attack to move and score. Without Hunter operating Faurot's Split-T, the Tigers just don't go on the ground. And there's extreme doubt Hunter even will be in uniform.

Doane Connects 24 Times.

Therefore, it's the Dave Doane-to-Hank Burnine battery that will have to be zeroed in, as Coach Vince DiFrancesca and his Iowa State aids are aware. Burnine, the willowy end whose 17 receptions lead the country's major colleges at the moment, is a talented target, and Doane has hit on 24 of 51 aerials for 354 of Missouri's 462 yards passing. But it's a sobering fact, too, that nine Tiger tosses have been intercepted.

Of the face-lifted foe they'll meet — Recruiting Sergeant DiFrancesca has gone far afield to gather a predominantly sophomore squad — the block-busting Max Burkett won't be at fullback for the first time in four years. But 204-pound Donn Lorenzen, shifted from fullback, has red with the old Burkett ability and has averaged better than six yards a carry.

Missouri's interior line, tough from tackle to tackle, is apt to tie up Lorenzen, but can the Tigers' own running game get out of its own way without Hunter?

Veterans Lopat and Joost Are Given Unconditional Releases

Red Sox Call Up 8 Players

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (UP)—Ed Lopat and Eddie Joost had their press clippings—and that's just about all—left of their big league careers today.

The veteran pitcher and shortstop, both of whom overcame physical shortcomings to become stars, were released yesterday by the Baltimore Orioles and the Boston Red Sox.

The Orioles announced that they were asking waivers on the 37-year-old Lopat in order to give him his unconditional release. The Red Sox, meanwhile, announced they had given the 38-year-old Joost his outright release. It'll be a surprise if either catches on with another big league club.

It wasn't long ago, however, that both were stars of the first rank.

Relied on Soft Stuff.

Lopat, a medium-sized southpaw never possessed a "big league fast ball" nor a fast curve, but he got by on a combination of guile and a variety of soft, low-breaking curves.

Acquired from the Chicago White Sox in 1948 on Joe DiMaggio's recommendation, Lopat appeared in five world series for the New York Yankees and compiled a classic record of 4-1. With Vic Raschi and Allie Reynolds, he formed the "Big Three" of five straight world championship teams from 1949 through 1953.

Lopat had successive records of 15-10, 18-8, 21-9, 10-5 and 16-4 for those teams. He was especially effective against the Cleveland Indians, compiling a 40-13 lifetime mark against them. He won 166 big league games and lost 112.

Joost, a star infielder despite the handicap of wearing glasses, was a weak hitter when he broke in with the Cincinnati Redlegs in 1936. After nine seasons in the National League, he dropped back into the minors in 1946 but then returned to the big time with the Philadelphia Athletics.

With a revised stance that reduced his "strike zone" to what amounted to his "power zone," Joost became a dangerous long-ball hitter in the American League for seven years. He then managed the Athletics before they were transferred to Kansas City.

The Red Sox picked him up as a free agent last spring but he hit only .193 in 56 games for them this year.

Sox Bring Up Eight.

The Red Sox also announced the transfer of catcher Guy Morton to Louisville in the American League and the purchase of eight minor leaguers. They were shortstop Don Budinger, pitcher Jerry Casale and outfielders Marty Keough, Bob Jenkins and Gordon Windhorn from Louisville and pitchers Joe Albanese and Roy Tinney and catcher Gerald Zimmerman from Greensboro.

The Cincinnati Redlegs also announced a deal—the purchase of former minor league strikeout marvel, Bill Kennedy from Seattle in the Pacific Coast League where he had a 1.91 E.R.A. in 51 games. Kennedy, now 34, struck out 456 batters in the Coastal Plain League in 1946. Kennedy was a member of the old St. Louis Browns in the late '40s.

The world champion Brooklyn Dodgers called up seven players from their minor league system and sent catcher Dixie Howell to St. Paul. Called up were first baseman Jim Gentile, pitcher Bill Harris and outfielder Bob Wilson from Montreal; shortstop Jasper Spears and catcher Mike Napoli from St. Paul and outfielder Dick Williams and third baseman Dick Gray from Fort Worth.

The Kansas City Athletics purchased pitchers Carl Duser and Allen Romberger from Columbus. Duser had an 8-7 record and Romberger a 7-4 mark this year.

That's Our Boy!

CHICAGO, Oct. 14 (UP)—Frank C. Lane, retiring general manager of the Chicago White Sox who has signed for the same job with the St. Louis Cardinals, held a farewell luncheon yesterday for press, radio and television friends.

The gathering was interrupted six times by phone calls to Lane.

They were from: Buzzy Bavasi of the Brooklyn Dodgers; Horace Stoneham, owner of the New York Giants; Muddy Ruel of the Detroit Tigers; John Quinn of the Milwaukee Braves; Joe Cronin of the Boston Red Sox; Larry MacPhail, formerly of the New York Yankees.

Lane was given a $225 wristwatch. The watch was presented by Jim Enright of the Chicago American, chairman of the Chicago Baseball Writers' Chapter. It bore the inscription: "To Frankie from Chicago's scribes—1955."

Red Smith Resigns as Toledo Club President

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14 (AP)—Richard (Red) Smith, president of the Toledo baseball club, submitted his resignation to John Quinn, general manager of the parent Milwaukee Braves.

Smith said he was "severing connections because his plans did not contemplate moving with the Toledo franchise."

The Braves recently announced they were withdrawing from Toledo where they had operated an American Association team.

Collinsville to Send 'Scoring Twins' Against East St. Louis

Collinsville High followers are convinced tonight is the night for the Kahoks to get their football revenge on mighty East St. Louis when the East Side powers collide at Collinsville.

Kickoff for the Southwestern Conference contest will be at 8 o'clock. Alton will be host to Granite City in a league game scheduled to start at 8:30.

Collinsville's hopes for victory are high, based on a terrific scoring punch in Sherwin Whitlow and Capt. Al Sonnenberg. "Whit" has 60 points on ten touchdowns and Sonnenberg has 59 on nine TDs and five conversions. Their combined efforts have produced 119 of the Kahoks' 150 points in their four one-sided triumphs, including one in conference competition.

Vergil Fletcher's Kahoks defeated Gillespie, 39-0; Belleville Cathedral, 45-7 and Edwardsville, 26-7, outside the conference and Granite City, 40-12, in their lone league engagement.

Collinsville was considerably heartened when the East St. Louis string of victories was halted by a 12-12 tie with St. Louis U. High last week. Prior to that Fred Cameron's Flyers had posted three victories this fall, which, with the 32 registered under the tutelage of Wirt

Feller Denies Report He'll Quit Indians to Manage Seattle Club

CLEVELAND, Oct. 14 (UP)—Bob Feller denied yesterday a rumor he will quit the Cleveland Indians and replace Fred Hutchinson as manager of the Seattle Rainiers.

"Somebody sent me a clipping from a Seattle paper which stated Phil Rizzuto and I were in line for the job," Feller said before leaving town for a week's vacation in West Virginia.

Ducks Filtering Into Missouri

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 14 (AP)—Ducks and geese are filtering into Missouri and it looks like waterfowl hunters will have plenty of targets when the season opens Oct. 28.

An airplane survey of northern Missouri, the area that gets the first flights each fall, showed this week that the front of the migration has reached here but that the major invasions are still ahead.

A most heartening sight was the wheeling mass of geese—Canadas, blues and snows—congregating on the federal Swan Lake near Sumner, Mo. Jay Morrow, assistant director of the Missouri Conservation Commission, estimated there were between 60,000 and 75,000 birds resting at the feeding station. Many of them will spend the winter there.

100 State-Run Blinds.

Many more will fall before the guns of hunters using the commission's first public goose shooting area that bands the refuge. Through a federal-state agreement, 100 state-controlled blinds will be used this season, occupying the outer edges of the refuge area.

Beyond that band will be the blinds of hunting clubs and farmers. They'll kill hundreds of honkers that feed on private land outside the refuge—as they have in the past.

The commission's plane flew low over the other federal refuge at Squaw creek, near Mound City in northwestern Missouri. But surveys saw fewer birds there. It appeared most of the geese using that area so far are snows.

Some Ducks on Missouri.

The plane flight then swept down the Missouri on its return to Jefferson City. That survey showed the migration of ducks is only starting. A few bunches of "black ducks," ringnecks and ringbills—huddled in tight clusters on the water. A scattering of mallards were strung out along the bars emerging after last week's high water levels.

But the duck population was ferred the job and wouldn't take it if I were," said Ralph Robert. Feller, who joined the Indians in 1936, has held hope for "a few more years" with the Tribe, though his services weren't much in demand during the past campaign.

He started 10 games and appeared often in relief, usually when the heat was off. But he did score a relief win over the Yankees in a game which appeared to be lost.

Feller admitted "how I feel about pitching another season... and how other people feel are two different things," but emphasized he wasn't ready yet to consider a managerial post.

Duck Season Opens In Illinois Tomorrow

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 14 (AP).

A 70-day waterfowl season will open tomorrow as a half hour before sunrise in Illinois. Upward of 125,000 ducks already are in the state and the outlook is for the best shooting since 1952.

However, state game experts said that unless there was a turn from fair temperature to blustery, cooler weather, the first day's shooting would be slow. The bag limit is four ducks a day and eight in possession.

Goose shooting, which used to run concurrently with duck shooting, has been curtailed. This year it will start Nov. 5 and end after 40 days.

light. Even the commission's duck shooting area, Fountain Grove, is currently hot to only a few mallards and a thin spatter of geese.

Morrow also found only a scattering of mallards and other ducks along the Mississippi from Clarksville to St. Louis on the second day of his plane survey.

His survey showed that hunters mean business this year. Winkups of more permanent blinds already have been set up on the bars and islands of both the Missouri and Mississippi. A casual check of Squaw Lake, near St. Joseph, showed 42 blinds already up on that water.

Morrow, optimistic after his trip, said: "Looks like we picked the right day in selecting Oct. 28 for the opening of our season."

Sooners' Rough Play Deplored By 2 Writers

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 14 (AP)—Football officiating, especially in last week's Texas-Oklahoma game at Dallas, was raked over the coals by a couple of sports writers today. The officials denied that anything was wrong.

Mark Batterson, sports editor of the Austin American, said he was shocked by some of the things "which apparently only bored the referees on the field" in the Texas-Oklahoma game, saying movies of the contest showed that two Texas players, taken off the field with brain concussions "owe their injuries to Sooner activities which should have been policed by the referees on the field."

Batterson said that "very clear in the movie, for instance, is a stiff uppercut delivered on fullback Larry Graham. As for Halfback Mickey Smith, who was released from a Dallas hospital only Wednesday, his head injury was caused by a Sooner who kneed him in the head after he was tackled."

At Fort Worth, Sports Editor Flem Hall of the Star-Telegram commented that "thousands of spectators in the west stands of the Cotton Bowl stood up and booed Saturday when Mickey Smith, 170-pound Texas sophomore halfback, was disabled by a knee blow to the neck while he lay on the ground. No foul was called. There were other fouls that went uncalled."

Hall, in his column, "The Sport Tide," said "the football officials who have worked in games we have watched this season have not done their duty. They haven't given the players the protection they deserve... Games we have attended were Kansas at T.C.U., S.M.U. at Notre Dame, T.C.U. at Arkansas and Texas vs. Oklahoma in the Cotton Bowl. Officials in those games may have done competent jobs insofar as the mechanics of play were concerned. Only their bosses, Commissioner Howard Grubbs of the Southwest Conference, and his assistant in charge of officials, Abbe Curtis, and a handful of qualified experts, such as coaches and scouts and other officials, will know about that. But, in every game, players suffered punishment because officials didn't enforce the simple rules against unnecessary roughness."

At Norman, Coach Bud Wilkinson of Oklahoma declined comment on the charges while at Little Rock, Cliff Shaw, referee of the Oklahoma-Texas game, disclaimed any knowledge of upstrokes and kneeling. "I had no idea that plays like that occurred," he said, "and I still don't." He added that both coaches "made a point of coming to us after the game. They said it was as well-worked a game as they had ever seen."

At Dallas, Curtis said "I haven't seen any plays that looked particularly rough to me" and that he saw none in the Texas-Oklahoma game. However, Curtis said he left at the half and didn't know about the rest of the game but that "we have received no complaints." Curtis saw the T.C.U.-Kansas game and said he saw nothing rough in it.

Mathews in Hospital

For an Examination

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 14 (UP)—Eddie Mathews, hard-hitting third baseman for the Milwaukee Braves, yesterday entered Milwaukee hospital for diagnosis of a back ailment. The examination occurred on Mathews' twenty-fourth birthday.

He said he had been bothered by a pain in his back for about a week and Braves officials urged him to undergo a complete physical examination by Dr. Erwin Schultz.

Mathews, a native of Santa Barbara, Calif., now lives in Brookfield, a Milwaukee suburb.

Minor League Meeting Rated Most Important

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 14 (UP)—More than 1000 minor league baseball officials are expected here next month for the "most important" convention in the minor's history.

"The subjects to be discussed will be quite varied," President George M. Trautman of the minor league organization said Thursday in announcing plans for the annual convention opening Nov. 28.

Trautman said the agenda hasn't been completed. He indicated transfer of minor league clubs and the televising of major league games in areas where there are minor league clubs would occupy much of the convention's attention.

"We are now receiving legislative proposals which will be given consideration at the meeting and we believe, and I believe, this will be one of the most important meetings in our history," Trautman said.

Representatives of the major league clubs as well as the minor league teams will attend the week-long convention. Trautman said he expected minor league executives here from South America, Cuba, Mexico, Canada, and the United States.

The player draft by the major league clubs is being returned to the convention. It had been a part of the meeting for years but last year was held in Commissioner Ford Frick's New York office.

The draft is a system whereby teams may draft a player from a league of lower classification under certain conditions. Baseball executives say this is the heart of organized baseball and its answer to charges that players are sometimes side-tracked in the minors and denied advancement.

The major leagues will make their picks of minor league players on the opening day. The Pacific Coast League, and the Triple A International League and American Association, make their selections Wednesday. Business sessions will be held Wednesday afternoon.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 14 (AP)

CHAMPAIGN'S High School football team scored five touchdowns in six plays in the third quarter in its game with Danville last night.

The touchdown parade started when Halbaek Bill Ohls returned the third quarter 91 yards. Then followed touchdowns on 43 and 46 yard passes, a 50 yard sprint around end and a romp of 32 yards on an off tackle play.

The final score was Champaign 53, Danville 0.

Thursday and Friday during which the minors will act on any proposed changes in their agreements with the major leagues.

Clinics for minor league business executives, umpires, and scorekeepers will be conducted by Robert Finch of Trautman's office.

Nashua to Face Four Rivals in Gold Cup Race

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Mighty Nashua and four rivals were named today for the $75,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup Stakes tomorrow at Belmont Park.

The two-mile race will be the last of the year for the Belair Stud's Bullet, winner of the Preakness and Belmont Stakes and conqueror of Swaps in the $100,000 match race at Washington Park.

The other entries are Christiana's Thinking Cap, winner of the Travers and Lawrence Realization; Mrs. Herard Smith's Sweet Chariot; Grandview Stable's Mark Puzzle and the Foxcatcher Farm's Chevation.

As three-year-olds, the first four won carry 119 pounds while Chevation, an older horse, will tote 124.

Nashua will go to the post a solid favorite, although it's the greatest distance he has run. Strongest rivals are expected to be Thinking Cap and Chevation. With Eddie Arcaro riding, Nashua has been impressive in workouts at Belmont this week. He did the mile and three quarters in 3:03, streaking the last quarter in 24 2-5 seconds.

After this race, Nashua will be taken to the Belair Farm in Maryland to rest up for the winter racing season in Florida.

Roberts Set Gopher Ball Mark,
But Hacker Had Worse Average

Just as Freddie Hutchinson, the new Cardinal manager, pitched his way into the American League record books in 1948 when he was hammered for 32 home runs, Robin Roberts smashed the National League mark by allowing 41 home runs this season.

In both cases, however, the "home run king" title is unjustified. They happened to be workhorses and their home runs-off average per inning is really the important thing.

For instance, by pitching 305 innings for the Phillies, Roberts actually yielded only one four-bagger every 7.4 innings. The No. 2 man, who really should be No. 1, Warren Hacker of the Cubs, gave up "only" 38 homers. However, he hurled only 213 frames, and thus was touched for one home run every 5.6 innings.

Even Don Newcombe, third with 35 home runs-off, had a worse mark than Roberts, giving up one four-bagger per 6.6 innings. Another important item not shown in the home runs-off figures is the total of runs the opposition scored on those homers. With Roberts walking so few, he obviously was hurt less by home runs than many other pitchers.

When Murry Dickson, then with the Cardinals, set the old mark of 39 home runs-off in 1948, his average was 6.5—far better than Hacker's 5.6 this season.

By yielding 185 homers, the Cards' staff in 1955 broke the league record of 179 set by the Cincinnati hurlers. The Cardinal throwers thus retained their National League title. They allowed 170 four-baggers in 1954.

The Kansas City Athletics easily cracked the American League mark of 154 set by Detroit. The 1955 A's yielded 174 homers. In 1948, Hutchinson's 32 home runs came in 221 innings, for an average of one per 6.9 innings. Of the eight who yielded the most homers this season in the A.L., four allowed four-baggers more often than Hutchinson did in his record year at Detroit.

Steve Gromek of Detroit repeated as A.L. "champion," giving up 26 homers in 181 innings. Washington's Johnny Smit allowed only eight in 165 innings. Bob Buhl of Milwaukee only 13 in 202 innings. The Dodgers and Cardinals each hit nine homers off Roberts, Stan Musial and Ernie Banks getting four apiece. The Yanks whacked 10 off Gromek. The figures were compiled by the Associated Press.

Aga Khan's Horse Is Stakes Race Victor
NEWMARKET, England, Oct. 14 (AP)—The Aga Khan's Hafiz II took the lead 50 yards from the winning post and ran on strongly yesterday to win the mile and a quarter Champion Stakes by two lengths.

Hafiz II, trained in France by Alec Head and ridden by French jockey Roger Poncelet, is a three-year-old chestnut colt by Nearco out of Double Rose. He started at betting odds of 100-30.

English-trained Darius and Irish-trained Panassipper were in a photo finish for second place. The judges gave Darius, 11-4, the verdict by a neck. Panassipper was an even money favorite.

There were five-runners. Italian thoroughbred Botticelli was scratched from the race because of a suspected leg ailment. Hafiz II won the first prize of $6498 in a time of 2:15.64.

RAILS STRONG AT END OF QUIET, MIXED DAYMore Stocks Down Than
Up at Finish—Dumont Strong Feature.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—

The stock market went through a quiet mixed session today with rails showing strength at the finish.

Price changes amounted to two points either way with the Pont outside that range up 3/4 at 216 1/2. It has been quiet in recent sessions on Wall Street rumors of a split. The steels held to modest gains while some rails did quite well, as did a number of individual issues.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 10 cents at $165.70 with the industrial component up 10 cents, rails up 70 cents, and utilities off 30 cents.

Despite the advance in the average price, there were more losers than gainers in the list of 1123 issues traded—516 down and 364 up. Ten issues hit new highs for the year and 34 touched new lows.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 444.68 off .23 of a point at the close after a loss of 2.95 in the first hour. The 20 rail index was up .53 to 148.47 and the 15 utilities 61.48 down .39.

Volume dwindled down to 1,640,000 shares. That compared with 1,980,000 shares traded yesterday when the market was a shade lower.

The United Press said that the "early decline reflected a further tightening in interest rates by New York City banks which raised their prime interest rate to 3 1/2 per cent against 3 1/4 per cent charged previously.

For the past three Mondays since the President's illness, the stock market had dropped abruptly. In Wall Street there was a crossed-fence attitude about next Monday. Selling, therefore, was expected on the part of those who just didn't want to hold stocks for two days and run the risk of unexpected news.

National Automotive Fibres jumped ahead after directors declared a 10 per cent stock dividend. A block of 1000 shares traded at 19 1/2 up 1 1/2.

The aircrafts derived some strength from the $269,000 order for jet transports placed by Pan American City banks which was a crossed-fence attitude about next Monday. Selling, therefore, was expected on the part of those who just didn't want to hold stocks for two days and run the risk of unexpected news.

Republic Steel was favored by third quarter earnings equal to $1.43 a share as against 68 cents a year ago.

U.S. Economy Today

PRICE SETTERS LOOKING FOR A DANIEL

By Sam Dawson

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP).

THE DELICATE QUESTION facing business today is where to set prices. And price news—whether to "fair trade," consumer reaction to price hikes, the prospects of another dose of inflation—is all over the lot this week.

The question is delicate because the urge to raise prices is strong just now with many a manufacturer—and because the power of the consumer to pick and choose in many a competitive market is unquestioned.

The conflict has had a spectacular outburst in the battle between the old-line merchants and the discount houses.

"FAIR TRADE" CONFLICTS POP UP sharply this week. "Fair trade" is the practice, backed by laws in many states, of a manufacturer setting a fixed retail price for his products. Retailers are told they mustn't sell for less.

Two big electrical appliance manufacturers have been having trouble with this practice. Westinghouse has abandoned list prices on some of its electric housewares as unworkable. General Electric is stopping efforts to enforce its "fair trade" contracts in Indiana, awaiting a court ruling on the validity of the state's law. An adverse ruling in Michigan caused G.E. to drop the pricing practice there.

BUT RONSON CORP. OF NEWARK, N.J., says it will step up efforts to enforce "fair trade" pricing of its products: lighters and electric shavers.

The price question is to the fore in other ways this week, too. The new auto models are coming out almost daily now. And most of them carry higher "suggested" price tags than last year. It's up to the dealer to decide how much of this to try to pass along to the motoring public.

In steel centers there's talk of higher prices on some steel products. The price went up at the time higher wages were granted last summer. But steel mills say that didn't cover all their increased costs. They note there was little signs of price resistance by their customers, most of whom are clamoring for earlier deliveries rather than dickering over price.

FOR MANY MANUFACTURERS THERE'S little doubt that operating costs are rising. Many are paying higher wages. Those who use metals in their products are paying more for materials. The increased costs will have to come out of profits or be passed along as higher prices on finished goods. But if these higher prices should dry up some consumer demand, the lower sales totals could cut into profits even deeper.

What consumer resistance can do is being pointed out this week at the meeting in San Francisco of the National Coffee Association. A survey, said to represent 11,000,000 households, showed 23 per cent cut their coffee buying when the price soared.

Retail prices are beginning to go up on some items, both hard goods and soft. Some electrical appliances, as well as autos, cost more now. Wholesale prices are up on some items of boys' clothing, on foam rubber pillows, some bedding—and on ranch mink coats.

CONSUMER RESISTANCE ISN'T IN EVIDENCE yet. Retail sales volume tops last year by a nice figure. In New York on Columbus day store sales were 5 per cent above the semi-holiday of a year ago. The lure, however, admittedly was promotion-priced goods.

A gloomy prediction that the country is in for "another dose of inflation" comes from Chicago. F. W. Hubell, outgoing president of the American Life Convention and head of Equitable Life Insurance Co. of Iowa, tells the insurance men at their meeting: "Whether the dose is a mild one or a strong one depends on the reaction of the buying public."

It's doubt over which way the public will jump that makes the pricing question so delicate for business men just now.

BANKS OF COUNTRY BOOST PRIME RATE

Cite 'Severe Shortage' of Funds Together With Strong Demand for Funds.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—A number of major New York banks announced today a boost in the prime interest rate from 3 1/4 to 3 1/2 per cent, effective immediately.

Prime rate is the interest banks charge their biggest borrowers with the best credit rating. This rise will be reflected shortly in higher interest costs for all business since rates for the smaller, less known companies are always scaled up from that charged the big borrowers.

The banks announcing the hike today, included First National City, Irving Trust, Guaranty Trust Co., and Chase Manhattan. Others were expected to follow.

The last increase in the prime interest rate was Aug. 1 when it was increased from 3 to 3 1/4 per cent.

Banks in other cities, including St. Louis, Philadelphia and Cleveland, announced similar increases in their prime interest rates.

Bankers attributed a "severe shortage" of funds together with a strong demand for credit as reasons for the latest rise.

"We're just bringing the prime rate into line with other rates which have moved up steadily in the past few weeks," one banker explained. He noted there had been recent increases in commercial paper rates and in bankers' acceptances.

Today's action had been forecast for some time in financial circles. In the tightening money market, banks have been increasingly hard-pressed for funds. This gradual hardening of term money rates is in line with the Federal Government's policy of "mild restraint" against inflation.

"We'll have to re-examine our policy early next year," said a spokesman for one big bank, especially if the Federal Reserve alters its current credit restraint policy.

St. Louis major banks have followed eastern banks in raising prime interest rates. One quarter percentage point to 3 1/2 per cent from 3 1/4 per cent, it was reported in financial circles.

GOVERNMENT BONDS SHOW IMPROVEMENT

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Industrial convertibles continued to show improvement today. A narrow market developed a tendency toward the downside late today.

U.S. Government bonds held their own in quiet over-the-counter dealings. Long range Treasury obligations were unchanged while the intermediate added 1-32.

Japanese and Australian dollar bonds were irregular in a slow foreign section.

Commercial banks throughout the country followed the lead of major New York banks in boosting prime interest rates from 3 1/4 to 3 1/2 per cent today. The latest boost reflected tighter credit conditions and a shortage of funds for loans by big lending institutions.

Mergers With Local Broker. Kramer-Gardner Co., brokerage firm, with offices in Burlington and Waterloo, Ia., is joining Dempsey-Tegeler & Co. of St. Louis, it was announced. Operations of the two offices under the St. Louis firm's management will begin Oct. 15. The merger brings to 17 the number of branch offices maintained by Dempsey-Tegeler & Co.

Elected a Director. Len C. DeVoto, an officer of Cicard Bros. Fruit & Produce Co., was elected to the board of directors of the St. Louis Produce Market, Inc., succeeding the late Alex Lifka.

Odd Lot Transactions. NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd lot transactions by principal dealers on the exchange for Oct. 13: Purchases of 231,610 shares; sales of 165,692 shares including 1578 shares sold short.

took over control, directly or indirectly, of several sovereign nations and millions of people who once were free."

What is the meaning of present Soviet measures? According to Radford, "We cannot overlook the possibility that the current Soviet attitudes represent only a change in tactics, a change designed to weaken the position of the West by undermining Western public support for unity and defense."

Are we ahead today? Measuring his language carefully, Radford said: "Based on the evidence we do have, our judgment is that we are ahead. This conclusion must be tempered, however, both with a growing he was in on nearly every conference on every subject. By mid-July all that remained of the Cabinet which had served under President Roosevelt were four men: Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace, Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Navy James Forrestal, and Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. At this time my Cabinet was made up of men who had had Government experience and most of whom had had political experience along with it.

The TRUMAN MEMOIRS

I consider political experience absolutely necessary, because a man who understands politics understands free Government. Our government is by the consent of the people, and you have to convince a majority of the people that what you are trying to do is right and in their interest. If you are not a politician, you cannot do it.

Mr. Truman's Views of Cabinet Functions.

I had previously outlined to the members of the Cabinet my views as to the position I believed they should occupy in the administration of the executive branch of the government. I explained that, in my opinion, the Cabinet was like a board of directors appointed by the President to help him carry out policies of the Government; that in many instances the Cabinet could be of great help to the President by offering advice, whether he liked it or not.

At a meeting on May 18th I related a story about President Lincoln and his Cabinet. In a discussion of the Emancipation Proclamation, all of the members of Lincoln's Cabinet opposed the issuance of the Proclamation. Lincoln put the question to the entire Cabinet, and they voted "No." Lincoln told them that was all very well, but the President voted "Aye," and that was the way it was going to be.

Lincoln had a great deal of trouble with his Cabinet because some of them got it into their heads that they, and not the President, were the policy-makers. James K. Polk had the same difficulty with his Cabinet. Franklin Roosevelt never had any difficulty with his Cabinet for the simple reason that he himself, in my opinion, spent too much time doing the work that should have been delegated to the Cabinet. He was his own Secretary of State nearly all the time he was President. He was his own Secretary of the Treasury. And when it came to the operation of military affairs, he was his own Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy.

Roosevelt had his own way of working with his Cabinet. All Presidents have. Roosevelt liked to meet with individual members before a full Cabinet meeting. He frequently discussed the same matters with two or more Cabinet members individually even though they were not responsible personally. This was his way of obtaining different views, but it often engendered rivalry and conflict within the Cabinet.

Full Discussion at Cabinet Meetings.

I believed that the best way to obtain different views, without encouraging rivalries among individual members, was to have complete airings in the open at full Cabinet meetings. When such airings arose among members of the Cabinet, I had those difficulties brought out frankly and settled.

I believed that members of the Cabinet were there for a purpose and that when the President outlined his policies to the Cabinet, it was their business to carry out his directions. I initiated that plan, and it worked reasonably well.

When a Cabinet member speaks publicly, he usually speaks on authorization of the President, in which case he speaks for the President. If he takes it upon himself to announce a policy that is contrary to the policy the President wants carried out, he can cause a great deal of trouble. I was always careful to discuss all matters of policy in open Cabinet meetings where all members were present, but when it was necessary to elaborate on anything special, they had access to me at any time.

However, once a policy is established, it is the policy of the President of the United States and nobody else. That is the way it has to be if the operation of Government is going to be orderly. The President is elected for that purpose; his office is a Constitutional one. He is the Chief Executive of the Republic and Commander-in-Chief of the armed forces.

Cabinet positions on the other hand, are created by law at the request of the President to help him carry out his duties as Chief Executive under the Constitution. It is a very satisfactory arrangement. If the President keeps his hands on the reins and knows exactly what goes on in each department, that he has to do if he is to be successful.

Difference Between Presidential Advisers.

There is a difference between Cabinet members and Presidential advisers. The President may have an adviser who is not a Cabinet member, although all Cabinet members are advisers. There are some special issues on which the President needs detailed information from experts, and it is customary to try to discover the man who is best informed on these detailed matters. For instance, when we set up a scientific commission of any sort, it is necessary to find out the scientists who are best informed on the subject. Then it is necessary to find administrators who understand administration and who are willing to take advice from scientists who are doing the work. The President naturally has to consult with them. Sometimes the Congress makes an effort to rob the President of his appointive powers. I would never stand for it.

In one instance, I had interviews with a Senator on that very subject, and I told him that unless legislation was drawn up in such a manner as not to infringe in any way on the powers of the President, the bill would never be signed. He made the statement that I didn't have the education to know anything about science.

"Well," I said, "I think I know a little more about the Constitution than you do, Senator, and as long as I am here, I am going to support it as I have sworn to do." I got the bill in the form I wanted, and then I signed it, but it took a long time.

The most important Cabinet officer is the Secretary of State. He is the direct representative of the President for all foreign ambassadors. He is also in charge of American ambassadors to foreign countries. He must not only be well informed on world affairs, but he must be a man who can distinguish the wheat from the chaff in the reports that come from all these countries.

President Must Support His Aids.

The President, of course, must be prepared to support his Cabinet members when they need backing. This is especially true with regard to the Secretary of State. It is immensely important that these two men—the President and the Secretary of State—understand each other completely and that they know what their respective roles are. The Secretary of State should never at any time come to think that he is the man in the White House, and the President should not try to be the Secretary of State.

On July 3rd, the day after I went to the Senate to submit in person the United Nations Charter, I wrote a letter to Mama and Mary:

"I went to the Senate yesterday, and you should have seen the carrying on they did. I could hardly shut 'em up so I could speak. And they did the same thing after I finished. Some said the Senate never did carry on so over a President or anybody else. Well anyway, I believe we'll carry the Charter with all but two votes. Hiram Johnson and Curly Brooks, I believe, will be the only ones against it. Won't that be great?"

"I am getting ready to go see Stalin and Churchill, and it is a chore. I have to take my tuxedo, tails, . . . preacher coat, high hat, low hat and hard hat as well as sundry other things."

"I have a brief case all filled up with information on past conferences and suggestions on what I'm to do and say. Wish I didn't have to go, but I do and it can't be stopped now."

"Hope you are both well. I sent a check today. Will leave Friday night, but you can keep on writing to me; they'll send me a pouch by air every day."

"Love to you both."

SUNDAY: Mr. Truman tells of his first meetings with Winston Churchill and Joseph Stalin at the Potsdam Conference.

awareness for the current trends, and with a knowledge that we do not have all the evidence."

Read carefully and knowing that this address was approved by the Secretary of Defense, it is apparent that Radford is warning the nation that while we may be ahead today, "current trends" make it doubtful we shall be tomorrow.

These developments will influence the 1957 budget which is now being prepared. Radford, by a slip of the tongue in Denver, after seeing the President before his illness, gave away the present status of the 1957 budget requests. He had been asked about spending for 1956, but instead of the then assumed $4 billion dollars, he gave the figure $37,500,000,000.

This is reported to be the amount to which the Defense Department controller had so far reduced the requests of the services for 1957. In the process, it is reported that the Air Force request of about $19,600,000,000 had been reduced by about $3,000,000,000.

Delays in Production. This means that the super-sonic fighters, interceptors and night fighters now in the prototype or limited manufacture stage, and needed to cope with the new Soviet jet bombers, will be delayed for full production until late 1957 or 1958. It means that the badly needed super-sonic bomber will not be rushed.

It means also that some most hopeful prospective improvements from research and development also will not be followed through with urgency.

Two which pay for themselves a hundred times over might be mentioned:

1. There is every prospect that high energy airplane fuels can be developed that will so increase the range of aircraft that in-flight refueling will no longer be needed by our bombers. This would do away with the expensive requirement for hundreds of jet tankers and would be an invaluable asset for all aviation.

2. There is every prospect that military aircraft may be launched and landed from runways of a few hundred yards instead of two miles.

An F-84 has already been launched into the air from a stationary mount somewhat similar to that used to launch the Matador pilotless aircraft. The possibility of short landings includes extension of the carrier type of arresting gear as well as jet brakes and improvements in wing brakes. From this development would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

ARABS REPORTED TO HAVE VETOED U.S. WATER PLAN

Israel May Develop Jordan by Itself and Add to Middle East Tension.

By JOHN A. SCALI

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—The American-backed Jordan river development plan, conceived as a formula for ending Arab-Jewish strife, is reported on the verge of collapse.

Diplomatic officials fear that renewed Arab opposition may have killed the ambitious undertaking—at least for the time being. That raises the prospect Israel will go ahead to develop the river in the face of violent Arab protests.

Any such Israeli move would be virtually certain to add new tensions in the region already seething with excitement over Egypt's plans to buy arms from Communist Czechoslovakia.

Hope Not Given Up.

The Eisenhower Administration has not given up hope that Arab countries, led by Egypt, will reconsider their newest objections. The American plan would have linked four Arab states, Lebanon, Syria, Jordan and Egypt, with Israel in a joint $121,000,000 dam building and irrigation project which would have permitted all to share the Jordan waters.

Eric Johnston, President Eisenhower's ambassador in charge of promoting the plan, apparently has been unable to persuade Arab countries to back the idea.

The Arab countries asked for more time to study the proposal. But diplomatic circles familiar with the background said today this amounted to a thinly-disguised turn down, even though Johnston said afterward he hoped difficulties could be resolved in the near future.

Johnston left Tel Aviv today for Washington after conferring with Israeli Prime Minister Moshe Sharett and other officials. The American termed his visit to Israel "rewarding" and said problems with regard to Israel "have been narrowed down to inconsequential technical differences."

What most officials fear now is that Israel will resume the Jordan river development project within its own borders which it abandoned two years ago after Syria threatened to protest to the United Nations Security Council.

River Diversion.

With two weeks intensive work it is believed, the Israelis could completely divert the Jordan river from flowing into the neighboring country of Jordan. Ironically, Jordan is reported to be the one Arab country in favor of the Johnston plan for dividing the Jordan river waters.

The apparent breakdown in negotiations has added to the growing alarm within the State Department over the possibility of a new outbreak of fighting between Israel and its Arab rivals.

Israel has already warned top American officials it will not sit idly by and permit Egypt and other Arab states to build up their armed forces with big quantities of Communist weapons.

Egypt, in defending its deal for arms purchases from Communist Czechoslovakia, said they are necessary to protect the country from attacks from Israel's bigger and better equipped army.

If a new and bitter dispute over Jordan waters is added to this present tension, officials fear the Palestine truce may explode into a new Middle East war.

15 Democratic Congressmen Urges U.S. Arms for Israel. WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (UPI)—Fifteen Democratic Congressmen from New York called on the Administration yesterday to ship jet planes and tanks to Israel to offset the heavy arms Egypt is getting from Communist Czechoslovakia.

They also urged that the United States embark immediately on the "establishing of a security pact with Israel guaranteeing the integrity of its borders and that of its Arab neighbors."

The group, which recommended that credit be extended Israel if it has no cash, said the twin actions would serve as a warning to Egypt that this country will not tolerate any violation of Israel's sovereignty.

Red China Iron to Egypt. CAIRO, Oct. 14 (AP)—A Commerce Ministry spokesman said last night Egypt has concluded a deal to import iron worth $5,600,000 from Red China. The deal comes under a three-year general trade agreement signed in Peking in August.

SOVIET HOUSING MEN ARRIVE IN SEATTLE

They Are Convinced Mid-West Looks Like Siberia From Air.

SEATTLE, Oct. 14 (UP)—Eleven tired Russian housing officials arrived here last night convinced that the Midwest "looks like Siberia."

"We realized that when we crossed what you call your 'plains' and from 15,000 feet it reminded us of spots in Siberia and Kiev," said V. S. Tomofeyev.

"From that high altitude your Mississippi and Missouri rivers look like the Volga," said V. N. Galitzky.

Sixth City. Seattle is the sixth city visited by the delegation studying United States methods of housing construction.

I. K. Kozullia, head of the delegation, who was in the United States from 1945 to 1947, said he did not notice any drastic change in housing construction during this visit. He said the builders in this country seemed to be concentrating on interior decoration.

"So are we," he added. Although here to study construction methods, the group has observed other facets of life in the United States.

When asked about food and American menus, A. V. Vlasov said, "I'm at the ripe age of 55, and my concentration is not in eating, but in trying not to overeat. Everywhere we landed we were escorted and royally welcomed and naturally the best of liquor and food was served."

Visit to Architect. The highlight in Vlasov's journey so far was meeting Frank Lloyd Wright in a special trip to Madison, Wis. Vlasov is president of the Academy of Architecture.

The Russians confessed they had observed American women, too.

"All women of the world appreciate cosmetics and use them to their advantage," V. S. Tomofeyev said, "and American women are elegant."

The group will spend two days studying logging and building methods in the Pacific Northwest.

'MONTH'S JOB' TAKES FIVE AT PENTAGON

'Co-ordination Still Being Finalized' on Papers Concerning MacArthur.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP)—More than five months have passed since Secretary of Defense Wilson said that the Pentagon would make public secret information relating to the controversy over whether Gen. Douglas MacArthur had urged Russian entry into the war against Japan.

In answer to a question about the World War II documents today, a Pentagon spokesman said that "co-ordination is still being finalized."

This, it was indicated, meant that more time—anywhere from a week on—would elapse before the Pentagon was ready with material it feels is relevant to the case.

The question arose last

March when statements were made that the former supreme commander in the Pacific had proposed, prior to the Yalta conference, that Russia enter the campaign in Manchuria. MacArthur took issue with this and reporters asked the Pentagon to make the documents public.

On May 10 Wilson was asked again about the material. His answer then was "maybe another month sounds like a long time, but it oughtn't to take much more than that."

Pentagon officials contend that the only thing holding up

M'CARTHY ASSAILS HARVARD PRESIDENT

Concludes Testimony in Contempt of Congress Trial of Leon J. Kamin.

BOSTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (Rep., Wisnoin, concluded his testi- of Congress trial of Leon J. Kamin, former Harvard re- search aid, with a denunciation of Harvard President Nathan A. Pusey.

McCarthy declared from the witness chair:

"I have no respect for a man who will harbor Fifth Amend- ment Communists . . . I think a man who does this should not be a college president. Pusey should be exposed. An educa- tional institution which harbors Communists should be ex- posed."

The Wisconsin Republican said his first contact with Pusey came in 1952 "during my cam- paign, and I've had no particu- lar love for the man since."

Pusey, then president of Lawrence College in Appleton, Wis., had opposed McCarthy when he successfully sought re- election to the Senate.

Pusey refused to comment on McCarthy's testimony about him.

At another point, Calvin Bart- lett, attorney for Kamin, asked McCarthy if he felt Harvard was a Communist sanctuary and he replied:

"I am not sure sanctuary is the right word. There was a statement by the Harvard presi- dent or someone that they would not eliminate Fifth A m e n d m e n t Communists. I guess that would make them a sanctuary."

McCarthy uses the term "Fifth Amendment Communist" to describe any witness who in- vokes his constitutional right not to be forced to give testi- mony against himself.

Kamin, now engaged in re- search at Queens University, Kingston, Ont., is charged with contempt of Congress for re- fusing to name Communist as- sociates when he testified in January 1954 at a Boston hear- ing of the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee which McCarthy then headed.

Kamin had admitted he was once a Communist but balked when asked to name others with Red connections.

McCarthy said he could not answer yes or no to whether he had evidence Kamin was engaged in defense work at Harvard.

He added: "I know Kamin had been engaged in radar work. Whether Harvard had that con- tract at that time I don't know."

ELECTRONIC BRAIN TO KEEP TRACK OF U.S. CHECKS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—The Government is going to install a high-speed electronic brain—replacing 450 employees—to keep track of the 350,000-000 checks the Government is- sues annually.

A joint announcement by Sec- retary of the Treasury Hum- phrey and Comptroller General Joseph Campbell said today the move will save $2,250,000 a year.

They said the change from human to electronic check han- dling would take a year and that they hoped most of the workers whose jobs will be abolished "will be taken care of by transfers in filling vacancies which occur in the normal turn- over of Government agencies."

The changeover is expected to make a direct saving to the Treasury of $1,750,000 and to save $500,000 additional in operating costs of the Federal Re- serve System.

The "brain" will not write checks, but will take over the complex disbursing and audit- ing accounting, which go before and after the issuance of a check by the Government.

The Treasury said the equip- ment will be leased from In- ternational Business Machines Corp. at a cost of approximately $900,000 a year. However, it will replace other equipment al- ready being leased at a cost of approximately $725,000 a year. So the net additional cost will be approximately $175,000 a year.

The elder Hoover, in accept- ing for his absent son, com- mented:

"There is nothing that makes a father's heart grow warmer than the accomplishments of his son."

The Board of Trade also pre- sented awards to former British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippine am- bassador to the United States.

SHOW 'ANGELS' FIRMS ACCUSED OF FRAUD

Investors Were Told Their Money Was to Be Put Into Broadway Plays.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—Attorney General Jacob K. Javits yesterday charged two corporations with having defrauded about 4000 investors of $400,000 by claiming that their money would be invested in Broadway productions.

Javits said he will seek a temporary injunction today against Broadway Angels Inc., Hollywood Angels, Inc., their president, Wallace G. Garland, and other officers of the corporations to stop them from engaging in the securities business in this state.

Investigation by the attorney general's securities bureau disclosed, Javits said, that from about June 1951 to the end of the 1954, Garland had sold 800,000 shares of Broadway Angels stock, which had a par value of one cent a share to about 4000 investors for 50 cents a share.

Of the $400,000, Javits alleged, less than $5000 was invested in hits, from which investors received no dividends, and $18,000 was invested in "flops."

Javits charged that Garland, who was known as a "youthful financial wizard" in the early 1930s before he was convicted in 1937 of using the mails to defraud in the public sale of stock, misrepresented the company's "mature" investment in successful plays.

8 CONNECTICUT REDS SEEK NO-JURY TRIAL

They Say Public Feeling Against Communism Would Prejudice Panel.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 14 (UP)—The conspiracy trial of eight Communist party leaders began today under the shadow of a possible mistrial ruling.

Although the trial proceeded with the impaneling of a jury, United States District Judge J. Joseph Smith at Hartford was considering the Communists' demand for a trial by the court alone.

If Judge Smith agrees with the Communists, a three-judge committee will be called from the second circuit to decide whether the motion for a court trial should be granted. Should it be granted, Judge Robert P. Anderson, who is hearing the case here, would have to declare a mistrial.

The Communists alleged that they could not get a fair trial before a jury because of public feeling toward Communism. They said they were being denied their constitutional rights in not being allowed to select the manner in which they are to be tried.

Seven of the eight accused are leaders of the Connecticut Communist party. The eighth, Miss Partha Stone of Paterson, N.J., was identified as the former chairman of the New Jersey Communist party. All have denied that they violated the Smith Act which prohibits teaching or advocating the violent overthrow of the Government.

Their arrest in the spring of 1954 ended a long investigation by the FBI. Three of the Connecticut members were arrested while attending what the FBI called a secret party meeting in New York City. The others were arrested at their homes. The Connecticut defendants are: Sidney Silverman, New Haven, state party chairman and former Communist candidate for various local offices in New Haven; Joseph Dimow, New Haven, press director of the party and its former New Haven chairman; James Tate, Hartford, a member of the state committee of the party and its former organizer in Chicago; Jacob Goldring, Trumbull, secretary of the Stamford branch of the party; Alfred Marder, New Haven, secretary of the party in New Haven and former chairman of the Hartford-New Britain branch, and Robert Ekins, Old Saybrook, secretary of the state party committee.

Conviction carries maximum sentences of five years in prison and $10,000 fines.

Coltish Antics.

RUSHVILLE, Nebr. (UP)—Rancher Art Roosevelt will think twice before parking his car in a horse pasture again. Colts rubbed the paint from the entire rear end, dented the body with their teeth and chewed on the upholstery through an open window.

American Legion Indorses U.N. Following Vote Against UNESCO

Unwilling to Go Along With Illinois Move for Complete Break—Miami Convention Ends.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 14 (AP)—American Legionnaires headed for home today after attending a convention that voted to do away with UNESCO, but just as overwhelmingly indorsed the United Nations in principle and approved United States membership.

The Legion Wednesday called for Congress to repeal the laws creating the United States Commission for UNESCO but was unwilling to go along with an Illinois move yesterday for a complete break with the U.N.

Then the legionnaires wound up their annual convention by electing J. Addington (Add) Wagner, Battle Creek (Mich.) attorney, as national commander of their 3,000,000-member organization.

Other Officers.
 Other national officers elected by the Legion:
 Vice commanders, from five geographic regions: Guy Stone, 59, of Glenwood, Ga., a cotton planter and World War I flyer; John H. Van Horn, 32, of Sitka, Alaska, a World War II Air Corps sergeant; L. Everett Page, 41, of Carthage, Tex., an insurance man who was a Navy flyer in World War II; Gilman Stordock, 60, of King, Wis., World War I top sergeant and present commander of the Grand Army Soliders Home; James V. Day, 41, Kennebunk, Me., head of a wholesale electrical supply house and World War II Army veteran.

Chaplain—The Rev. Joseph MacCarroll, pastor of the Ewing Presbyterian Church, Trenton, N.J., who received four Battle stars and one Bronze star as a chaplain in Europe.

The American Legion Auxiliary elected Mrs. Bowden D. Ward of Kingwood, W.Va., president.

Legion's Demand That U.S. Quit UNESCO Called 'Absurd.' WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (UP)—The United States National Commission for UNESCO yesterday branded as "absurd" an American Legion demand that the United States pull out of the United Nations Agency.

Gen. Milton G. Baker, commission chairman, said the Legion resolution "indicts the patriotism and the loyalty of a noted group of Americans who have given selflessly of their time and their considerable talent to the national interest in peace and security."

The national commission serves as an advisory body to the State Department. Bill Mauldin, national chairman of the American Veterans Committee, called the Legion action "shameful." He said, "This outrageous attack by Legion leaders, although directed at UNESCO, is truly aimed at the United Nations itself."

Dr. Luther Evans, director general of UNESCO, denied the Legion's charges that his agency was out for world government. Evans, a former librarian of Congress, said UNESCO's only aim is to "bring together the peoples of the world in the fields of education, science and culture" for better mutual understanding.

In circulating knowledge of the schools and libraries and scientific institutions of the United States, he added, the agency publicizes American democratic principles.

 An income tax lien totaling $167,958 was filed today in Clayton against Clyde L. Powell, former St. Louisian who was assistant chief of the Federal Housing Administration and figured in a Senate investigation of windfall profits in apartment construction following World War II.

The same lien has been filed against Powell in United States District Court in Washington. It involves an alleged $8847 income tax deficiency for 1945; $36,905 for 1946; $35,814 for 1947 and $86,392 for 1948. The lien was filed here on the possibility that Powell may own some property in St. Louis county.

RELATES HUMANITIES TO THE COLD WAR
 Speaker at Washington U. Says U.S. Needs to Develop Creative Ideas.

America must develop creative and critical humanistic ideas if it is to combat Communist propaganda that it is only a country of technology, Philip Blair Rice, associate editor of the Kenyon Review, told a Washington University audience today.

Rice, speaking at a one-day conference on "The Scientific World Picture and the Humanities," said the humanities and science should supplement each other. Science is necessary for survival, he declared, and the humanities bring man to peaks far above the survival level.

The scientific viewpoint can aid humanists in collecting and analyzing precise information necessary as a basis for the generalizations which are the final end of the humanists, he said.

NASSER QUOTED AS CHARGING PLOT BY ZIONISTS IN U.S.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14 (AP)—Egyptian Premier Gamal Abdul

Nasser told the New York Post in an interview published today that he believes the Arab nations are up against a "Zionist conspiracy" rooted in America. "Nasser was quoted in the story from Cairo as saying: 'All the Arabs are feeling that America is under the guidance and domination of strong Zionist organizations to help Israel against us.'"

"The Jewish influence in the United States is an obstacle between the Arabs and the Americans. It is the feeling of everyone in the Arab countries that all our efforts in the United States will be in vain because of the Jews."

Nasser, an army general who seized power in Egypt in 1952, said that he made his deal to obtain armaments from Communist Czechoslovakia only because he could not get help from the United States.

Approximately 400 attorneys from many parts of Missouri were here today attending the concluding sessions of an institute organized by the Bar Association of St. Louis for a study of new probate code adopted by the Legislature last year. The meeting was at Hotel Jefferson.

After four lectures on specific areas of probate requirements to become effective Jan. 1, following a similar series of talks yesterday, the speakers sat as a full panel to answer questions.

The code was revised and modernized after several years of effort by the Missouri Bar, and the speakers described in detail the improvements expected to simplify and speed up many legal procedures in disposing of estates.

HITLER'S DEATH CERTIFICATE TIED TO P.O.W.'S RETURN

BERCHTESGADEN, Germany, Oct. 14 (AP)—A magistrate's court here announced today it will postpone issuance of a formal death certificate for Adolf Hitler until all 9626 German prisoners whose freedom has been promised by the Russians are home. The date the Russlans gave for completion of the movement was Oct. 20.

The court had been expected to issue a death certificate soon that the fuhrer committed suicide in his Berlin air raid bunker April 30, 1945. Hitler's valet, Heinz Linke, and pilot, Hans Baur, who have returned to West Germany in recent P.O.W. transports, have given eyewitness accounts of the fuhrer's last hours.

$20,000,000 IN ARMS JOBS FOR EMERSON

Defense Contracts for Coming Year Include Supersonic Bomber 'Sub-System.'

Defense contract for a total of $20,000,000 in military goods to be produced in the coming year are held by Emerson Electric Manufacturing Co., 8100 West Florissant avenue, the company announced yesterday.

W. R. Persons, president, said the latest major job to be undertaken is a "sub-system" in production of the Convair B-58 supersonic bomber for the Air Force. Emerson is one of seven firms engaged in developing various sub-contracted systems and producing the component parts that go into them.

Other major items in the backlog are the "Honest John" artillery rocket, airplane gun turrets and a variety of electronic and aiming devices.

The rocket is in large-scale production. It is 27 feet long, weighs about three tons, and is fired like artillery, with a range similar to that of medium to heavy guns. It is designed to carry either a conventional or nuclear explosive.

The company's major defense business in World War II was in gun turrets, and it is making them now mainly for Navy patrol bombers.

HUMPHREY REPORTS PEACE GAINS, CURBS ON INFLATION

BOSTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey says President Eisenhower has completely reversed the direction of government from war to peace without repercussions, and checked inflation at the same time.

He told a $100-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner last night that economic conditions throughout the free world, "with few exceptions, are very good."

Reviewing events since President Eisenhower took office, Humphrey said:

"We reduced government spending by more than 10 billion dollars. We curbed inflation. During the last two and one-half years the cost of living has risen only one-third of one per cent."

Pilot Error in Vienna Crash.

VIENNA, Oct. 14 (AP)—The crash of a Yugoslav airliner on a fog-shrouded Vienna hill Monday was apparently caused by an error of its pilot, a joint Austrian-Yugoslav investigating commission said yesterday. Seven of the plane's 29 occupants were killed in the crash, including three Americans.

MOSCOW PAPERS TURN GUNS ON THE WEST AGAIN

Attack NATO as 'War-like,' Say Iran Pact Is 'Directed Against U.S.S.R.'

LONDON, Oct. 14 (UP)—Moscow's two leading newspapers blasted the West today for allegedly trying to sabotage the spirit of Geneva.

Both Pravda and Izvestia published long editorials attacking the North Atlantic Treaty Organization as a "warlike grouping" and charging that such acts as Iranian adherence to the Middle Eastern defense pact were "fanning the cold war."

The tough tone of the editorials, broadcast by Moscow radio, contrasted sharply with the moderate Soviet criticism of the West which followed the Geneva summit meeting.

Pravda's editorials charged bluntly that "the aggressive Baghdad pact is directed against the U.S.S.R." It said Iran's joining the pact was "in glaring contradiction to the spirit of Geneva."

Pravda also said that a "prophecy of pessimism" was being spread by the West "as a smoke-screen" to undermine the forthcoming Geneva foreign ministers meeting.

"The propaganda campaign is inspired by the same circles who hate the spirit of Geneva because it hinders them from continuing the arms drive, preparing atomic war and strengthening and expanding aggressive military groups," Pravda said.

Izvestia charged that "NATO generals are fanning the cold war." It singled out the recent briefing of NATO defense ministers in Paris by Supreme Commander Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther as proof that "certain circles . . . are taking corresponding action directed toward making international tension more acute."

Peiping Says Dulles Tries to Undermine Geneva Spirit. TOKYO, Oct. 14 (AP)—Red China today accused United States Secretary of State John Foster Dulles of "undermining the cordial international atmosphere created by the Geneva summit conference" as it answered Dulles's speech Monday before the American Legion in Miami, Fla.

Peiping radio, quoting an editorial from the official newspaper People's Daily, said Dulles "wants to prepare the way to obstruct and sabotage the four-power foreign ministers conference" beginning Oct. 27.

The broadcast accused Dulles of insincerity in urging renunciation of force and said it is not Red China, but the United States, which is using force to win its goals.

County Police in Winter Uniforms

MAN'S CLOTHES CATCH FIRE, 2 POLICEMEN AID HIM

Two police officers riding in a cruising patrol came to the assistance of Gilbert Bates of Caseyville, Ill., when Bates's clothing caught fire as he was attempting to start his automobile in the 3200 block of Penrose street yesterday.

Bates had raised the hood of the stalled machine and was pouring gasoline into the carburetor. The gasoline became ignited by the warm engine and flared up. Bates was enveloped in flames when the officers, Cpl. Frank Combest and Patrolman George Lask, saw him.

Lask slapped out the flames in Bates's clothing with his hands while Combest used an extinguisher on the automobile. Bates was pronounced suffering from superficial burns of the body at City Hospital where he remained for treatment.

H. V. KALTENBORN PREDICTS PRESIDENT WILL RUN AGAIN

H. V. Kaltenborn, news commentator for the National Broadcasting Co., speaking at a meeting of the Ambassador Club at the Sheraton Hotel last night, said that President Eisenhower will run for a second term.

He said that Mr. Eisenhower, like thousands of others who have had heart attacks, will recover and be in good health by the end of the year. Kaltenborn said the President would be happier in office than out of it.

Kaltenborn left St. Louis today for his home state, Wisconsin, to turn over to the Wisconsin Historical Society the thousands of manuscripts he has used since he began broadcasting 33 years ago.

SERVICES HALTED OVER NEGRO PRIEST

New Orleans Archbishop Acts After Congregation Bars Pastor.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14 (AP)—Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel has suspended services at St. Cecilia Catholic mission at Jesuit Bend because parishioners refused to permit a Negro priest to celebrate mass.

The archbishop reduced services at Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church at Belle Chasse and at St. Joseph mission at Myrtle Grove. All three churches are across the Mississippi river from New Orleans.

In a letter to members of the church and missions, Archbishop Rummel said he addressed "with sentiments of deep sorrow . . . the first communications of its kind in the long experience of 27 years during which we have been entrusted by the Holy See with the episcopal office."

The letter told of the arrival of the Negro priest at Jesuit Bend Oct. 2, and added: "He was approached by several members of the congregation and informed politely but in unmistakable language that he was not to celebrate holy mass in that mission chapel."

"The only reason alleged for the unwarranted interference with the discharge of his duty was the fact that he is a member of the Negro race."

The archbishop called the incident "clearly a violation of the obligation of reverence and devotion which Catholics owe to every priest of God, regardless of race, color or nationality."

"Under these circumstances," the archbishop's letter concluded, "and because the shortage of priests is such that we cannot replace the reverend father in question at the present moment, we hereby declare religious services suspended in the Mission chapel of St. Cecilia at Jesuit Bend, and likewise the services at Belle Chasse and Myrtle Grove reduced to one mass until the members of those communities express their willingness to accept for service in these churches whatever priest or priests we find it possible to send them."

The letter said one group of Catholics at Myrtle Grove had expressed their sympathy and regret to the Negro priest for the incident.

The Rev. Clement Meyer, pastor of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, identified the Negro priest as the Rev. Gerald Lewis of St. Augustine's Seminary, Bay St. Louis, Miss.

ARCHBISHOP BEING RELEASED, REDS SAY

But Hungarian Radio Indicates He Is Being Put Under House Arrest.

VIENNA, Austria, Oct. 14 (AP)—Hungary's Communist government says it is releasing Roman Catholic Archbishop Jozsef Groesz from prison, but it indicates he is being put under house arrest.

The Budapest radio announced last night "Dr. Groesz will take up residence in an ecclesiastical building to be assigned to him." Such announcements from the Communists usually mean the churchman is not allowed to resume his church office and is restricted to the residence assigned him.

The broadcast said the archbishop's 15-year sentence for plotting to overthrow the Communist regime was being "interrupted" at the request of Dr. Gyula Czapiek, archbishop of Eger and acting head of the Roman Catholic Church in Hungary.

The announcement added that the prison terms of four other Catholic priests would be annulled. They were identified as Dr. Mutka Imre, Janos Horvath, Janos Korpan and Jozsef Bardos. Their terms were not specified.

Archbishop Groesz was Hungary's highest ranking Catholic prelate after Cardinal Josef Mindszenty was imprisoned in 1948 on a treason charge. Archbishop Groesz was sentenced in 1951 in a continuing wave of Red attacks on the church. His release had been expected by Western diplomats since the Budapest radio announced Archbishop Czapiek and other church leaders had called on Premier Andras Hegedues Wednesday.

Last July the Communists announced they were releasing Cardinal Mindszenty from his life sentence, but nothing definite has been heard of his whereabouts. The Vatican expressed belief the announcement was propaganda for foreign consumption.

SAYS ECONOMIC STRENGTH HELPS ISRAEL KEEP PEACE

An economically strong Israel can meet any threat to peace, and purchase of State of Israel bonds helps keep the nation strong, Mrs. Avis Shulman, New York, former national officer of the Israel Bond group, told a group of St. Louis women yesterday at a reception at the Congress Hotel.

Mrs. Shulman, addressing the women's division of the 1955-56 Greater St. Louis Israel Bond Drive, presented "Chen Charm" awards to local women who had sold more than $2500 of bonds. Recipients were Mrs. William Pultman, Mrs. Morris Kraines, Mrs. Jacob Martin, Mrs. Ben Shanfeld, Mrs. Mendelson Bach, Mrs. Herman B. Mayer, Mrs. Philip Kopitsky, Mrs. Paul Lys and Mrs. Abraham Simon.

The goal for this year's drive here is $500,000. More than half of this has already been met.

There has been heard of his whereabouts. The Vatican expressed belief the announcement was propaganda for foreign consumption.

UNION SUE FOR STOPPAGES ON ILLINOIS CONSTRUCTION

Suit for $500,000 damages has been filed in Federal Court at East St. Louis by L. R. Young Construction Co. of Olney, Ill., against a Centralia local and national union for work stoppages which allegedly prevented the company from completing a project on time. It was announced yesterday.

In the petition, the company said contracts were signed by Jack Geilhausen, secretary of Local 653 of the AFL United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the Plumbing and Pipefitting Industry of the United States and Canada, and Martin P. Durkin, national president, stating that work would not be halted during the life of the contract.

The company, contended that afterward there were work stoppages and unauthorized strikes between Aug. 6, 1952, and Aug. 31, 1952, which delayed completion of the job, prevented the company from making normal profit and prevented machinery from being used on other projects. Geilhausen was fined $1000 and placed on probation for three years last May after he was found guilty of labor racketeering.

OPEN LETTER TO THE PUBLIC

Dear Friends:

We know that you would like a late model used car but possibly feel that your budget cannot handle it at the present time.

Now, if you think you do not have a sufficient down payment or that you owe too much on your present automobile to make a deal, we have a plan that will suit your needs. Wright Motor Co. has arranged to loan qualified customers up to $350 for a down payment or to help clear most of their present balance on the automobile you now own, making it possible for you to trade. This cash that we can loan to you WITHOUT INTEREST is strictly on your signature. It is not a furniture loan or a co-maker loan and will not affect the remaining balance that we can finance through our banking connections.

Our used car stock consists of trade-ins on new automobiles, and our automobiles consequently are above average condition. Any car traded in to us that we feel is not deserving of our written one-year warranty, is immediately disposed of through other channels, because our one desire is to satisfy our Customers.

So, regardless of your financial status, come in and discuss your problems. We feel sure that you will be a satisfied customer with payments that may be arranged to suit your budget. If you desire, you may call for a confidential appointment to discuss your financial problems with any of our courteous, thoroughly trained salesmen. These men plus our finance executives have had years of experience helping customers with knotty problems of financing.

Select below the salesman you want and contact him confidentially by phone if you so desire.

Sincerely,

Macaroni and Beef Quickie

Sauté 1 small garlic clove, minced, and ¼ cup chopped onion in 2 Tbs. shortening in large skillet till browned. Add ½ lb. ground beef. Brown. Add ¾ tsp. salt, dash pepper. Mix in undiluted contents can of Heinz Vegetarian Soup and one can Heinz Macaroni in Cheese Sauce. Heat. (Serves 4).

Jiffy Chicken Divan

Place 1 package frozen broccoli, cooked and drained, on bottom of square baking dish. Spoon contents 4 cans of old-fashioned Heinz Chicken Stew with Dumplings over broccoli. Sprinkle with 3 Tbs. grated Parmesan cheese. Broil 6 to 8 inches from heat 10 min. or till browned. (Serves 4 to 6.)

Hearty Ham Grill

Broil a ½-inch thick slice of cooked ham 5 to 10 min. Turn once. Cover ham with undiluted contents of one can of either Heinz Cream of Mushroom or Cream of Chicken Soup (both are extra rich and expertly seasoned). Top with slices of tomato. Broil till tomatoes are done. Garnish with parsley or Heinz Pickles.

This familiar fellow, the Heinz "Aristocrat", is the world's most famous tomato. He's one reason Heinz Ketchup, Chili Sauce, Cream of Tomato Soup and others of the 57 Varieties taste so wonderfully tempting.

You Know It's Good Because It's Heinz!

FIGHTERS IN FAR NORTH

Wintry sunshine gleams over snow-covered airfield at Goose Bay, Labrador, as Air Force F-86 Sabre Jets warm up for the flight to Narsarsuaq, Greenland, trailing whirls of mist-like snow behind them. The Sabres, part of the Twenty-First Fighter Wing, were making the 6000-mile trip from California to Europe by way of Labrador, Greenland, Iceland and Scotland. They arrived at their new base in France last month to join the air arm of NATO, bolstering the defenses of Western Europe.

CLOSE CONTACT

Britain's Lord Ismay (left), secretary general of NATO, who presided at this week's 15-nation session, appears to be nose to nose with Gen. Pierre Billotte, French defense minister, in this candid picture made at the conference. The delegates met at the Palais de Chaillot in Paris to discuss development of atomic war power.

—Associated Press Wirephoto.

CONCENTRATION

Clement Attlee, head of the British Labor party, is a study of deep concentration as he listens to proceedings at a session of the party's annual conference in Margate, England, Wednesday. In the discussion, delegates defeated an amendment to a resolution that would have committed the party to support Moscow's policy on Germany.

—United Press Telephoto.

FACES IN FREEDOM

The faces of repatriated German prisoners-of-war, freed under the recent German-Soviet agreement, reflect years of hardship in Soviet prison camps as they applaud with set expressions to a welcoming speech by West German Chancellor Franz Bluecher. The men had just arrived at the Friedland repatriation camp in Germany.

UNWELCOME VISITOR

A runaway tractor-trailer vehicle, careening down a steep hill in Pittsburgh, Pa., yesterday, rammed this bus into the porch of home owned by Edward Schatzman. One person, the only passenger aboard the bus at the time, required hospital treatment. Schatzman (center) is shown surveying the damage to his property.

Lots of Commercials For 'Mickey Mouse'

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.

I TOOK AN impartial survey of the three children in my living room on the subject of the "Mickey Mouse Club." What did they think?

"We don't like it," was the response. Why? "They just keep telling us what to do," said one child. "And there aren't enough cartoons," said another.

JOHN CROSBY

TO PUT my finger on just what is wrong, I should like to quote from Television Magazine. "No such co-ordinated pitch for small fry commerce has been made before. . . . The network's (ABC-TV) billings from 'Mickey Mouse' will be not much less than half of the web's total 1954 receipts—and almost a fourth of the estimated gross for 1955. This is an amazing return from one hour a day of Class B time."

Yes, it is an amazing return, but what it adds up to, in simple lay language, is an awful lot of commercials. When my children say the program is always telling them what to do I think they mean that they are incessantly being asked to go buy something. And I mean incessantly. In one hour I counted 16 commercials, and I think I missed a couple.

Our children were asked to buy Mickey Mouse dolls, Sugar Jets, burp guns and heaven knows what else on the average of every four minutes. Now kids, as I guess we all know, seem to enjoy commercials. But to spray plugs at a child in this quantity amounts to—if I read my child's mind at all correctly—a form of nagging. Get this. Get that. A child can take only so much—and this is too much.

AND ON A DIFFERENT LEVEL of inquiry, I oppose this dunning into the minds of the nation's children the idea that the acquiring of material things—candy bars, burp guns, or Mickey Mouse dolls—is the chief purpose of life. The kids already get too much of this, and "Mickey Mouse Club" just adds an intolerable extra burden of demands in the minds of an estimated audience of 13,000,000 children.

Unlike "Disneyland," which can be enjoyed by children of all ages, "Mickey Mouse" is aimed at the small fry exclusively. The filling of five hours a week of entertainment is a massive enterprise which only the Disney empire could contemplate with equanimity. It's been tackled with great ingenuity. There's a little bit of everything here. On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, for example, there is a Mickey Mouse Newsreel which is a newsworthy account of the activities of children around the world.

On Tuesdays there is "Let's Go," which is a travelogue. On Thursdays there is "Circus Day." Every day there is "What I Want to Be," concerning children's ambitions, or "Spin and Marty," outdoor boys' adventures, or "Border Collie," a sheep dog's adventures, or some other serial. (That's a long time to wait for the cartoon which is what the kids mostly want.)

DISNEY HAS SAID that "Mickey Mouse Club" will be instructive as well as entertaining, and the show is studied with tidbits designed to enrich little minds or improve little characters. One time I looked, a pair of young children were at an airport, the boy going through all the motions of being an air-line pilot, the girl learning all about being an air-line hostess. I found it an interminable bore, but perhaps the small fry like it.

The cartoons from Disney's vast treasure trove are enchanting. And many of the other features are good clean fun. But, oh, those commercials.

Age 10 and Teacher

By Frances Ilg, M.D., and Louise Ames, Ph.D. of the Gesell Institute of Child Development

HOW does the teen-ager and the pre-teen-ager feel about his teacher (or teachers, if he has more than one)? Of course this answer varies a good deal from one child to another. And naturally it depends a good deal on the teacher. Some teachers are almost universally popular. Others almost universally disliked.

But, as in most other kinds of behavior, we do find very definite age changes which very generally hold true.

Thus it is our finding that most 10-year-olds describe their teacher as "OK," "nice," "marvelous." In fact some feel so at home with her that as they address her in class, an occasional "Mummy" slips out instead of "Teacher" or "Miss Jones." A few even go so far as to be described by their parents as thinking she is God—her word is Law. Some even go to bed at the hour she sets.

THEIR DESCRIPTIONS of their teacher are extremely frank and factual, usually based on her physical characteristics. "She's a little bit fat and not too tall," or "She's old and dyes her hair and she's small," or "She's got white hair and she's thin and she's got blue eyes. Sometimes if the children are bad she hits them."

Some children are, rather maturely, beginning to criticize the teaching. "Monotonous." . . . "Makes sense." . . . "She gives us lots of good tips."

They very much appreciate any leeway given by the teacher. "She's good. She lets us whisper." "She gives us easy work and lots of time to play." . . . "She buys us ice cream." . . . "When we make a joke, she laughs."

ONE THING that they insist on is that the teacher be fair and not have pets. They want her to like all the children and to be the friend of all. They express affection quite easily and naturally toward a teacher and can accept expressions of affection from her.

Teacher is so important to most that they can be considerably upset by any criticism from her. However, at the same time they like and respect a firm teacher who can keep things in order.

If there is to be any punishment or discipline, it usually works out best if it is delivered right on the spot. Ten does not respond well to long-time deprivation.

A Choice of Weather in 50 Years

Expert Foresees Man's Control of the Elements by the Year 2000

By Mary Kimbrough

IF you don't like our weather, friend, don't get mad and move away. Hang around for another 50 years and maybe we'll trade it for California's.

Word comes from one of the country's top weathermen that bargain day on the climate counter may not be too far away. Already, scientists have conducted experiments to increase rainfall. Even more drastic weather control may be just around the corner.

Fact is, we may have to have a general election along about the year 2000 and let the folks decide what brand of weather they'll take—nice and balmy, snow-bound and icy, or maybe a combination of both.

Our informant is Capt. H. T. Orville, U.S.N. (ret.), who has been doing something about the weather as well as talking about it for the past 30 years or so. In fact, he has done so much that he now heads the President's Advisory Committee on Weather Control, an 11-man group charged with the responsibility of studying and evaluating public and private experiments in weather control and to determine just what the Federal Government should do in future weather modification activities.

Capt. Orville, who lives in Baltimore where he is consultant to the Friez Instrument Co., part of the Bendix Aviation Corp., came to town this week to address the joint convention of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies and the Federation of Mutual Fire Insurance Companies. His subject, naturally, was the weather.

The captain, a baldish, stocky man who readily warms up to his favorite conversation subject, happens to prefer the four-seasons variety himself, but he says it's every man to his own taste. The only trouble as he sees it, is getting the skiers and the beachcombers, the skaters and the swimmers to agree on what makes good weather. In fact, he admits it probably will be far easier to change the weather than to make everybody happy about it.

"But that's 50 years or so in the future," he said. "I expect that within another decade or two we'll be able to pin-point weather forecasts to such an extent that we can say it will start raining at 10:26 tomorrow morning and stop at 4:28 in the afternoon."

Right now, weathermen are working on radar systems which can give ample warning of approaching tornadoes. Already developed is a combination of radar and aircraft activity which can pin-point the location and velocity of hurricanes.

"It's unfortunate, however, that we haven't learned yet to harness the energy of hurricanes such as have done so much harm in the past months," he said. "Why, the energy generated by a hurricane—just one, mind you—would provide enough electrical power for the United States for 1,000,000 years. The energy generated every single minute equals the power of several hydrogen bombs and that generated every second equals the power of several atom bombs."

CAPT. ORVILLE, an Annapolis graduate with a master's degree in science degree in meteorology from Massachusetts Institute of Technology, developed his interest in winds and weather when he became a balloon pilot back in the early '30s.

CAPT. H. T. ORVILLE HAS BEEN TALKING AND DOING SOMETHING ABOUT THE WEATHER FOR 30 YEARS.

ing and stop at 4:28 in the afternoon."

That was in the heyday of the lighter-than-air ships such as the Hindenburg, the Macon and Shenandoah, and he was elected to be a weather observer on the Hindenburg's maiden flight.

The subsequent destruction of the big ship at Lakehurst, N.J., along with the tragic fate of nearly every other dirigible of that type made Government officials realize they were impractical, Capt. Orville said. Designed for more speed than an ocean vessel, and more comfortable than the airplanes of that day, they were supposed to be a popular addition to passenger travel. However, Capt. Orville doesn't expect them to return to the skies, especially since planes have become not only faster but more elaborate and comfortable.

His journey on the Hindenburg was without incident but he wasn't so fortunate the time he tried to pilot a balloon over the Baltic and was forced by capricious winds to land near Moscow.

"The Russians thought we were German spies at first and put us in a stockade until they could clear our story," he related. "But I will say that they gave us plenty to eat—in fact, we ate every two or three hours—and assigned a Russian colonel as an aide to each of us on the two-man team. The idea apparently was to play us with vodka until we would open up and give them our scientific data. But the plan wouldn't work and in about five days they sent us back to Poland by train."

SUCH an adventure was far from the ex-Wyoming ranch boy's wildest imaginings when he first started thinking about weather and its effect on the lives of people. A native of Saratoga, he began to delve into the subject when he was 8. Riding a horse back to the house after helping his father, he was lost in a severe storm and only by chance did his father find him and take him home. The weather, he realized, could be a friend or formidable foe.

He attended Saratoga public schools, then enrolled in the Army-Navy preparatory school before entering the United States Naval Academy where he graduated in 1928. Married to a former Annapolis girl, he has three sons, Tom, Dick and Harry, who longed to follow their dad into the Navy but because of less-than-perfect vision couldn't enroll at Annapolis. Capt. and Mrs. Orville and the youngest son—the others are married—now make their home on a six-acre farm, "Drop Anchor," near Baltimore.

Now slowing down a little because of a heart attack in 1951, Capt. Orville gave up his title of director of engineering for the Friez division and instead became a consultant. During World War II, he served as a weather consultant, for the Secretary of the Navy, retiring voluntarily in 1950.

In St. Louis, Capt. Orville met a friend and fellow weather forecaster, William J. Hartnett, president of the Weather Corp. of America. Hartnett couldn't help reminding him of the "worst forecast you ever made."

"It was back in 1943 when I was commissioned an ensign at the University of Chicago and you were giving the commencement address. Remember? You told us you could predict that we would all be stationed here in the states."

"You didn't know that at that very minute I had my orders in my pocket. They sent me to Guam."

Furniture and the Room

By Elizabeth Hillyer

S MALL furniture for a small room, and large furniture for a large room. Sounds logical enough, but it isn't always the best idea. Some of the most successful furniture designed for today's small dining rooms is pretty big.

The old buffet, china cabinet and server, no matter how they might shrink, would be more than most present dining rooms could take. They'd clutter and crowd the room certainly if they could be tucked in, but usually they're out of the question because there's by no means enough wall space. Thus the solution is one of beautiful sideboard tables that provides storage on a single wall.

Extra pieces aren't missed, so well is the one big piece planned, with drawers generous enough to hold plenty of silver and place-mat-wide, with compartments for linens, trays and holloware, sometimes even a drawer for the table leaves. Tables are small to clear all possible floor space, but they know how to grow upon occasion. Chairs, however, widen their seats and offer more back rest area, which means more comfort at table and enough of it to be used as pull-ups in other rooms. (Furniture by Brown-Saltman.)

MISS E. W. "Which color is easier to use when planning an area for warmth and unity—gray or beige and brown tones? Can black be used with the beige and brown tones?"

In general, the brown and beige tones have it slightly over the gray for warmth; but, of course, a cool beige is less warm than a warm gray. The shade makes the difference, and you would be wise to look at many of them before making your decision. Unity comes not from the color but from the way it is used. Black is effective with beige and some brown; but again, it must be well-used, and this combination is aided by metal touches, gold, or brass.

MRS. A. H. "Our ceilings are very high. Would one color for an entrance and two connecting rooms, for both walls and ceiling, be too drab?"

White or a light, fresh color would not. The danger lies in choosing a drab color or a dark one and paying too little attention to lighting. The deeper the color, the more advisable a white or very light ceiling would be.

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

That Longest Word.

A source of unending interest to just about everybody who can read and write is the "longest word in the language." Youngsters of 5 or 6 delight in the riddle whose answer is "Smiles—because there's a mile between the first letter and the last." Teen-agers and adults generally believe the word to be "antidisestablishmentarianism"—and the recent success on a TV jackpot program of a youngster who spelled this jawbreaker correctly will probably reinforce this popular belief.

However, as Basil Davenport, writing in the Book of the Month Club News, recently pointed out—and as this column noted more than a year ago—the Oxford dictionary contains a word just one letter longer. It is floccinaucinihilipilification—29 letters long. It means "the act or habit of estimating as worthless" and comes from the Latin words flocci, nauci, nihili and pilli "words signifying 'at small price' or 'at nothing' enumerated in a well-known rule of the Eton Latin Grammar."

Davenport notes further: "I have used the word occasionally but, as with a rare book, a really fine specimen like that is not so much to use as to admire."

It can be used, though, and in a way that makes sense—at least to anyone with an Oxford dictionary in hand to translate. Here's a sentence using the word: "I loved him for nothing so much as his floccinaucinihilipilification of money!"

There are, of course, many scientific compounds—especially in the field of chemistry—which run longer than 29 letters in length. However, it's my guess that Mr. Davenport's lollipop word will merit the blue ribbon at least until some equally assiduous word student digs even more deeply into the lexicons.

There is another special class of ultralong labels—Welsh place names. Recently we cited

Secrets of Charm Stand and Sit Erect

YOU MAY LOOK OLDER THAN YOU ARE.

VERY young girls are always being told to sit up straight and to throw their shoulders back. This is good advice all your life. It may be even more important to follow it when you are older than when you are younger.

What more distressingly condemns her to the look of old age—than the drooping shoulders, hanging head and unnaturally rounded back of a mature woman?

And posture like this is inexcusable—at least until you are ninety. It's true that there's a tendency toward a settling down into your bones when you are really old, but you certainly can avoid looking as if you had been one that runs to 45 letters—and a reader notes another 58 letters long. But the composers have suffered enough for one day, so that one will have to go over until another day.

Always keep yourself pulled up to your full height, both standing and sitting. Pull your chest out of your waist, square your shoulders, hold your head high, chin in. If you have posture faults now, correct them without delay.

Statefulness becomes you more and more as you grow older, and stateliness has no slump or droop about it. Neither has any other becoming, graceful or impressive pose throughout your life.

Completely Crazy

WHEN Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland did "The Major and the Minor" in 1942 and Ginger posed as a little girl who was befriended by a major from a military school, it would have seemed the farcical aspects of the contrivance had been stretched far enough. But now we have Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis redoing it as a musical, "YOU'RE NEVER TOO YOUNG," showing at the FOX THEATER, with Jerry forcing his tall and angular frame into a sailor suit, complete with water pistol, balloons and pigeon toes, and posing as an 11-year-old boy who is taken into Diana Lynn's stateroom on a train because she thinks he is lost and frightened, and who somehow ends up at a smart girls' finishing school.

Jerry's caricature is so ridiculous it is funny, and all reasonableness has to go out the window. Dean Martin aids and abets him as dryly and smoothly as usual, so the net result is a pretty fair sample of the comedy duo's talents. There is an opening scene where Jerry, as a continental type of elegant barber tosses Dean about in a collapsible, self-rising barber chair that achieves some hilarious slapstick. The chase at the end, when a screaming Jerry is attached by water skis to the speedboat of the villain, a murderous jewel thief, and Dean and the police pursue in a melange of crisscrossing speedboats, is one of the funniest, craziest and most exciting ever devised. It recalls the lost glories of Mack Sennett and W. C. Fields in "The Chase," the finest of visual comedy institutions.

I doubt if you'll remember the songs by Arthur Schwartz and Sammy Cahn long after you hear them, but they pass the time pleasantly. The photography is in crystal clear VistaVision.

Courtroom Dramatics

In "THE GREEN SCARE," at the PAGEANT and RICHMOND, Michael Redgrave gets behind a bushy beard and some crusty mannerisms to make like Paul Muni in "The Dreyfus Case."

In this English courtroom drama laid in France, Mr. Redgrave is a famous attorney who defends an author of a best seller who is deaf, mute and blind and who is accused of murdering his wife's American lover on a French ocean liner. Mr. Redgrave makes quite a showy thing of the role, roaring, crouching, sniffing, peering over half-moon spectacles, shaking a shaggy head like a worried bull, and, incidentally, doing so much of the testifying himself and drawing conclusions out of the air with such psychic perception that it would seem the court involved had tossed out all the rules of evidence for the benefit of the drama.

In addition to Redgrave, there is a touching scene on the witness stand, with flashbacks, in which Leo Genn as a priest tells how the defendant was sent to his school for the retarded as a frightened boy and how he was taught Braille and finger speaking through the love of the girl who later was to become his wife. Kieron Moore gives a sensitive and strong performance as the defendant, and Ann Todd, always an excellent actress, is the wife. However much of the work of this first-class English cast is wasted on a plot so patently contrived that towards the end the human values are lost in the mechanical uncovering of the facts of the murder, and in a rather trite solution.

Cloak, Rapier and Intrigue

"THE KING'S THIEF," at the ORPHEUM at least has lots of action in its ingredients and the minimum of intrigue necessary to sustain a cloak and sword melodrama, so it's lively enough, although pretty shallow. It follows the rules for plot pretty faithfully: (1) a disadventurously ironic king; (2) a scheming prime minister, here called the Duke of Brampton (David Niven), who is framing all the king's most devoted nobles on treason charges so he himself might seize the throne; (3) a beautiful lady (Ann Blythe), the daughter of the executed Lord Overden, seeking to expose Brampton; (4) a dashing adventurer (Edmund Purdom), a highwayman who is something of a gentleman and soldier, who comes to the lady's aid. There are a couple of escapes, one an ingenious one from Newgate gaol, a couple of duels, and an attempted theft of the crown jewels. The first three actors are up to snuff, but I wouldn't say that Purdom could swash a buckler with the best of them; on the cool, rather pompous side, he doesn't have that verve, that elan, that devil-may-care froth to give him a high average in the Doug Fairbanks league.

Education Needed

By Angelo Patri

"DAD, can I drop math?" "What's this? Drop math? What's the matter with you? If you drop math, you drop your whole course—and I understand you intended to go to college."

"Well, I really don't have to go to college. I can get a job." "What job? What job can you get today without a high school diploma—which you want to throw away. The time is coming, young man, when you will want money and plenty of it. You'll want a house like this, or better. You'll want a shiny car. You'll want and want, if I know anything about you—and I think I do."

"You will want to associate with the lads and lassies who have those things you want. But to get them and to live beside and with your friends, you'll have to know just a little more and be able to do just a little more than the next one. That means you study, and you read, read, read. And you work at the job of learning. What does your teacher say?"

"HE SAYS I'M A FOOL to talk about dropping out. Says I'm lazy. Says I'm going to be a dead-end. Things like that. I hate school, anyway."

"You're going to hate a lot of things you're going to do before you are a man, and there will be no chance to drop out, either. I'm telling you."

"Times are changing. Your generation will have to train your brains if you want what you say you want—a top job. The best jobs, the highest paid ones, will be technical jobs. You'll need your math. And how you'll need it! And your English. You'll have to be able to talk and write. And your foreign languages. Hasn't anybody told you that a plane rounds the world one-two-three? Go get busy. I'll see your teachers tomorrow. Drop out! You'll drop nothing but your crazy idea of going to sleep."

THAT'S ONE LAD who won't drop out.

The boys and girls in secondary schools today are going to live in a world that we know little about, so it behooves them to take thought now and prepare themselves for what they will have to do, what they will be able to enjoy.

They will need to have a sound cultural background; to know the literature, language and history of other countries than their own. They will need technical knowledge, mathematics, mechanics, physics, sciences. They must learn that they may KNOW. Don't let's hear of any dropping out.

St. Louisan's Busy Mission Work Year

Ethel Hilgeman Started Selling Refugee Goods, Went Around World, Got Engaged to Minister

By Clarissa Start

THE year from November, 1954, to October, 1955, has been quite a momentous one for Ethel Hilgeman. A year ago, Ethel was a pretty blonde chemical technician, a good church worker who taught Sunday School and belonged to several young peoples organizations in her church. Then someone mentioned her name to someone else as a possible mission work volunteer.

In the intervening months, Ethel has set up a one-woman enterprise which is contributing to the livelihood of several colonies of Chinese refugees. She has taken a trip around the world to see her missions, a trip which was considerably enlivened by anti-Greek riots, in which she was held prisoner at Istanbul, and by typhoon Kate in Hong Kong.

She is still a pretty blonde, maybe a little prettier and with an added glow now. She's engaged to marry one of the ministers she met while doing mission work. After her marriage she expected to continue her project, which involves the sale of refugee-made articles through church groups.

"The people we're helping," Ethel says, "are not a lazy people. They want to work for their food. And every $5 that we're able to send them feeds one person for an entire month in the refugee camp."

Ethel's work has been done through the China Refugee Development Organization, Promoters and Distributors of Refugee Cottage Industry. Its advisory committee consists of Church World Service, the Catholic Welfare Committee of China, Maryknoll Mission, and Aid for Refugee Chinese Intellectuals, Inc. Although her work has been an interfaith project, Ethel's own church affiliation is with St. Jacob's Missouri Synod Lutheran Church in Jennings.

Ethel and her parents, who have been her assistants, live at 8729 Clifton avenue—a big comfortable white frame house where she was born. She attended St. Jacob's School, Jennings High School, took some courses at Washington University, and 13 years ago went to work at Mallinckrodt Chemical Co. as a technician. Her extracurricular activities included Sunday School, the Waltham League and the Lutheran Business Women's Club.

"Then last year, Anna Beck of the Lutheran Community Center gave my name to Dr. Martin Simon of Highland, Ill.," Ethel related. "He was taking care of the sale of Chinese articles for his sister, Gertrude Simon of Hong Kong. I went to see him and got very interested in the work."

Miss Simon came home on furlough and talked to Ethel some more about the possibilities of the project. Her brother, editor of two religious magazines, was too busy to handle it and she was anxious to set up headquarters with someone in St. Louis.

"I told my mother about it," said Ethel, "and she said, 'Why don't we set it up here?' So we started in last November."

Within a short time, Ethel had made traveling saleswomen of all her friends, and was spending every spare time hour, handling shipping and sales. She had first cleared with Jennings authorities and found she could handle the sale of the merchandise through her home and by mail.

"Then I set about letting the churches know of the articles I had for sale," she says. "In St. Louis I gave slide lectures on Hong Kong and sold articles through church groups. Outstate, I sent cards to ministers and they distributed the goods through their women's organizations. When a church contacted me, I made up a sample box including one of each item. They would take orders, send them to me, I would fill them, collect the money, and send it to Hong Kong. We've sent $1375 so far to the people who work at the missions."

The articles Ethel sells are all handmade, many of them exquisite in their workmanship. They include dolls (the traditional mother doll with a baby strapped to her back), pillows, cushions, bookmarks with Bible verses worked in Chinese lettering, guest towels, tablecloths. There are beautiful embroidered silk blouses, plaques ("I saw the very old man who makes these," Ethel explains), needlepoint pictures made of unbelievably tiny stitches ("and you should see how fast they work cross stitch"), a bed-spread in pictures that tell a story.

The more she found out about the missions where the work was done, the more Ethel wanted to visit them.

"ABOUT every other year I take a vacation trip to some other country," she says. "I'd been to Hawaii, Cuba, Mexico, Canada, and I'd thought of the Scandinavian countries this year, but after I got into this I changed my mind. I inquired at the airlines and they told me it wouldn't cost much more to visit other countries along the route, so that's how I happened to take a trip around the world."

On Sept. 2, Ethel left for New York, thence to London and Istanbul.

"I arrived on a Monday night," she describes her stay there. "Tuesday afternoon I went on a tour. Tuesday night at 7, anti-Greek riots began. I don't know they were even going on. The Hilton Hotel where I stayed is next to an outdoor theater where they have sports events and I thought it was a sports event, although it seemed awfully noisy. The next morning I went out on the veranda and saw the troops guarding the hotel and found we couldn't leave. Then a group of Americans who'd arrived the night before told us of the sights they'd seen—store windows smashed, things thrown into the streets, buildings burned."

"We were held at the hotel until Thursday and all tours were canceled. On Thursday they escorted us to the airport and I was glad to leave. I'd seen enough of Istanbul."

From there, Ethel went to Beirut, took a tour of the Holy Land, went to New Delhi, saw the Taj Mahal at Agra, then Calcutta, Bangkok, and Hong Kong. She spent five days there, part of it on the island of Macao where one of the refugee colonies is in operation.

"I visited many of the homes and saw the extreme poverty," she says. "In one home, there were 11 people living in a room seven by nine feet. They all slept on a bamboo frame on stilts. Tuberculosis is prevalent and is spreading rapidly because of the crowded conditions."

"They had a reception for me on Macao and I had to make a little talk. It was translated into Cantonese by a missionary and then a little girl who understood Cantonese translated it into Mandarin, so everyone could understand."

THE other mission she visited was Rennie's Mill camp in Hong Kong and she was there when typhoon Kate hit destroying many of the tar paper shacks in which refugees live. Here she visited with Wei Po Liang, Catholic representative, and Martha Boss, Lutheran missionary, who, with several other Protestant representatives are in charge of work at the mission.

"All the refugees I met were so grateful," she says. "They wanted to give you something in return, if it was only a cup of tea. They were so pleased because I learned to say 'Thank you' in Chinese. I came back, feeling that the work was even more worthwhile than I had thought before."

Back home (by way of Tokyo, Honolulu, Los Angeles), Ethel has taken up her mission work again, with her helpers, her friends who do the selling, her mother who does the packing, her father who does the shipping.

"I handle the clerical work," she says, "and it isn't so bad because I do chemistry during the day and this is a complete change. Perhaps if I were a stenographer I wouldn't enjoy it as much. Besides, we make a regular family project out of it."

In what spare time is left, Ethel is sewing on her bridal gown and her trousseau. Next April she'll be married to the Rev. Norman L. Bultman, Missouri Synod Lutheran minister from Jefferson City, who now has a congregation at Jarvis Hill, Mo. They met through one of those postcards she mailed out last year.

The wedding will have an international flavor. Ethel's wedding dress material came from Beirut, her lace veil from Mexico, her bridesmaids' gifts from Japan, and she's ordered flowers to be sent from Hawaii.

"I don't know where we'll go on our honeymoon," she says. "My fiancé says he doesn't know where to take me—I've been everywhere."

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

ANY fair-to-middling partnership would get to six hearts on the North-South hands below, but the question is, how many declarers would bring home that contract?

West, dealer.

Neither side vulnerable.

The bidding (rubber bridge):
West North East
4♠ Dbl. Pass 5♥
Pass 6♥ All Pass

West elected to lead the deuce of spades, and South saw that he would not have a walk-over. There was all too much chance that the lead was a singleton, which meant that the spade suit couldn't be set up in any routine way. But South, an expert, knew that West must have a tremendous number of diamonds, so there was a strong probability that East, besides his long spades, had the only club stopper. If that was true South could see some light.

Putting up the spade ace, South drew trumps and cashed the diamond ace, then ruffed a diamond and ran off two more trumps, leaving this position:

Now South cashed one more trump, throwing the low club from dummy—and East was fixed. If he gave up another club, South would cash the ace and king, then produce the nine of clubs for the fulfilling trick; and when East actually discarded a spade, South led the spade seven and soon could ruff out East's last spade stopper, leaving a good spade in dummy.

Patching Holes in Walls With Gypsum Lath.

NOT SO many years ago, any plaster wall had wood lath in back of the plaster and when a hunk of plaster broke out, the lath was still around to serve as a base for a patch. Today, little if any wood lath is used. Instead, either metal or gypsum lath is used as a base for plaster.

Now if you drive a hole in a plaster wall with gypsum lath, and you drive a hard hole, the chances are that there will be a hole through the lath as well as through the plaster. This complicates the job of patching because there is nothing in back of the plaster to which the patch can hold.

Fortunately, there is a way to get around this problem and here is how it's done. First of all, take a sharp knife or chisel and cut back the edges of the old plaster around the hole so that they slant inward. Next, get hold of a piece of metal lath or wide mesh screening and cut it so it's somewhat larger than the area of the hole. Now you take a piece of string and you tie it to the middle of the lath or screening and then you slip the screening or lath through the hole and then pull gently on the string. If all goes well, the string will pull the lath over the back of the hole so that it completely covers the opening.

Now you wet down the edges of the surrounding plaster and keeping pressure on the string, apply the patch. Get some in-lay to hold the end of the string or tie it to some object to hold the lath in place until the patch is dry. Then, cut the string off flush with the surface of the patch, sand lightly and you're ready to touch things up with paint.

My Day Christmas Card Fund For Children

By Eleanor Roosevelt

ST. PAUL, Minn.

TWO international artists—Edy Legrand, the French illustrator, and the Uruguayan woodcut artist, Antonio Francioni—have contributed their designs and all the profits from the sale of Christmas cards with their designs to UNICEF.

UNICEF is the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund. The UNICEF cards are, I think, among the most delightful that have ever been used. These cards can be bought in the bookstore on the basement floor of the U.N. building, and I think anyone will find delightful Christmas gifts as well as the answer to their Christmas card problem by visiting this bookstore and the nearby gift shop.

UNICEF is trying this year to sell 5,000,000 cards. If it attains this goal, it would be able to provide enough powdered milk to give 450,000 boys and girls a cup of milk a day for a year. Or, with the same money it could buy vaccine to protect children against TB or buy DDT to help fight malaria which takes the lives of so many children every year in certain parts of the world.

I WONDER how many of my friends have seen the reprint of a lecture delivered at a literary luncheon organized by the London Conservative Union and addressed by T. S. Eliot. The foreword is written by Sir Anthony Eden and I think it is a joy, so I quote it here:

"A quarter of a century ago the Saturday Review stated, with splendid exaggeration, that the tone of English literature was such that 'the Conservatives have no need to worry about propaganda; they have but to encourage the sale of cheap editions of the national classics!'"

"Now, in these pages, we find one of our foremost contemporary men of letters reminding us afresh, almost as an aside, that the Conservative tradition is also a tradition of good writing. The tenor of Mr. T. S. Eliot's own thought, no less than the quality of his style, places him well within that tradition. It was enterprising of our Conservative political center, and in keeping with its highly successful approach to politics, to have cast Mr. Eliot in an unfamiliar role and now to have reproduced for the instruction and delight of a wider audience, this very stimulating lecture."

I wonder if our political parties will organize anything of this kind in the future.

Martha Carr's OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:
WHEN I try to talk things over with my mother, she always sees me in the wrong and it leads to an argument. When I tell my side of the story she says I am being sassy. I don't wish to be disrespectful and I can't make her see it. Do you think I should let things go and not defend myself?
DISCOURAGED.

No, I don't think you shouldn't speak up, but you can do so without being disrespectful or impertinent. Maybe you approach your mother in a belligerent manner, expecting her to criticize you or disagree. You know by now what attitudes anger her, so avoid them. Instead of always giving your side of the story, try asking her opinion. Then, instead of putting up an argument, take her advice. I don't mean to say in situations like this that the parents are always right and the teen-agers always wrong, but I think you would be happier if you tried always to see her side, and took into consideration the fact that she may be tired or worried and therefore is more inclined to argue.

Dear Martha:
I HAVE BEEN GOING STEADY with a boy for seven months, but I don't understand him. He is always finding fault with me. No matter what I do, he gets mad and won't talk to me. I am always the one to make up when we have an argument. If things don't go his way he gets mad and bawls me out. I wonder why he tries so hard to be difficult when with a little more effort he could be impossible. In spite of all of this I really like him and lately he has been talking about our getting married. Do you think I'd be happy with someone like that? I am 17, a senior in high school.
CONFUSED.

Afraid I can't see much chance for happiness there. Fault-finding, pouting, selfishness and self-will are pretty bad faults to live with. My advice? No.

Dear Martha:
I LIKE A BOY who goes to my school. He doesn't know I like him. The boy I go with likes me but I don't like him. How can I get the boy I like to like me and the other one not to like me?
UNHAPPY OF PERRYVILLE.

Maybe this is a naive question, but why can't you like two at the same time? Granted, if you're going steady, you can't date both, but for that matter you shouldn't be going steady with one boy if you don't like him and want to date someone else. Surely you can stop going with a boy without carrying on a campaign to make yourself unpopular with him.

Send today for Martha Carr's free Halloween leaflet, giving suggestions for games, decorations and refreshments. Be sure to inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

She Is Important

By Ruth Millett

“LACK of something to feel important about is almost the greatest tragedy a man may have.” A man said that about men in general. But it goes for women, too. The man who understands that his wife needs to feel important, and feeds that need, saves himself a lot of trouble.

RUTH MILLETT saved without a hint of feeling sorry for herself, because no matter how little she has she knows she is important to at least one other human being.

THE WIFE WHO FEELS her husband is proud of her isn't likely to let her appearance go or overeat as compensation for feelings of inferiority. She is too busy trying to live up to his pride in her.

The wife who is praised for what she does is a hard and tireless worker, for she never gets to feeling “What's the use?”

THE WIFE WHOSE HUSBAND talks over business matters with her and treats her like a full partner in financial matters isn't extravagant or careless about money or ever tempted to cheat a little when she tells him how much something cost. She lives up to her position as full partner. The man who knows how to make his wife feel important doesn't need to worry about another man's coming along and breaking up his home. It's women who don't feel important who are on the lookout for a man who can make them feel like “somebody” again.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

HAVE you been dressing the same way for years? Always using the same shades in makeup? Do you always buy the same kind of shoes? Do you always spend your holidays doing the same things? Do you always walk to the store or your office on the same side of the street?

If you do all of these “same” things you must change because you're in a rut. A change will make you and your life more interesting. Dare to cut your hair if you've never done it before. Have it cut in a new way. Wear a new style of hairdo. This will lead to a new hat—and get one as different from the ones you have as night is from day. If you're always stuck to dull colors or always worn navy blue and black, choose a dramatic new accessory color such as one of the new reds. If you've never danced, take dancing lessons and learn to do the samba if it kills you.

Change your habits. If you're a career woman don't eat at the same restaurant every day. If you are a homemaker, dress, go out and have lunch. Don't just “eat something at the kitchen table.” Try to meet new people. Get out of your rut. Change your menus, and either cook or order foods that you've never eaten in your life. If nothing else happens all of this will at least make your friends think about you because you are not doing the same things that you have always done.

You can change your type and your hairdo. That's easy. I know it's difficult to get out of habits which have become a part of you. Start out with your change in habits and routine with something as simple as this, for instance: If you always give the family chocolate cake on Wednesday give it to them on Friday, or simply don't bake a cake—that will let them know that you are going to be different!

She Finds an Education in Her Art

Mrs. Hildreth Meiere, Muralist, Tells of Her Work on Visit Here

By Mary Kimbrough

IN HER rise from schoolgirl, surreptitiously drawing pictures in arithmetic class, to an outstanding American muralist and mosaic artist, Mrs. Hildreth Meiere has found that creating a mural or mosaic is something like creating a becoming hat. A milliner can't make a flattering hat for a woman without knowing her personality, her tastes, her stature as well as the shape of her face. An artist can't create a mural for a single wall, a mosaic for a single arch, without studying the entire structure, its purpose, its history, the kind of people who will walk through its rooms.

That's why Mrs. Meiere has found every commission an education in itself. For her work on the Nebraska state capitol, she studied the history of the state and the Midwest, even the prehistoric influences on Nebraska's story. She has created mosaics for cathedrals and synagogues, designed to help worshippers pray. She has painted murals for bars, designed to complement the room's air of conviviality. One of her mosaics is at the right of the high altar in St. Louis Cathedral; one of her murals is in the Kansas City Union Station dining room.

“But whether it's a church or a bar, a ship or a business establishment, each assignment calls for the same careful study, the same quality of work, the same integrity,” she said. “It's the job that's important, and no matter what job I'm on, that's always the most exciting in the world for me.”

“But there's a great difference in painting on canvas just what you feel, and in creating a mosaic or a mural for a specific background. A painter paints what he likes and then tries to sell it. A muralist must sell first, then create the work.”

“Probably the most important quality a muralist needs, in addition to those which make a good painter is a pair of good strong legs. It isn't an easy job.”

Mrs. Meiere, whose home and studio are in New York, came to St. Louis this week to attend the board meeting of the Associated Alumnae of the Sacred Heart. She is national vice president and Mrs. John M. Acee of St. Louis is national president.

It was as a student in a Sacred Heart convent—Manhattanville in New York—that her art career started behind the protection of an arithmetic book. “I hated mathematics, so I would draw pictures all the time,” she said. “The only trouble was that I then had to have a tutor every summer to make up the work.”

HER later studies, however, were under no such handicap, as she became a full-fledged art student in Florence, Italy, in New York and San Francisco. During her student days, she began to turn her attention to mural designs and within a few years improved commissions were coming her way. Her assignments have taken her throughout the world; her success has placed her in “Who's Who,” and on the membership rolls of such professional organizations as the National Society of Mural Painters and the Liturgical Art Society, both of which she served as president. She also was the first woman ever to be named to the New York Art Commission, and is one of the few women to receive the Architectural League's gold medal. One of her first major commissions was to design the brilliant metal and enamel medallions on the exterior walls of the two theaters in Rockefeller Center in New York. She also decorated the dome of the National Academy of Science in Washington and had seven separate commissions for ornamentation of the Nebraska state capitol.

“I ran into a little difficulty there,” she laughed. “I had used some dinosaurs in the design, and had all the figures checked with the Museum of Natural Science. Then someone tried to tell me there were only four spines on a dinosaur's tail instead of the six I had put there. After some controversy, it turned out that there were two schools of thought on the subject, so the spines stayed.”

On her assignment as consultant for decoration of the ocean liner, the United States, she used the Mississippi river and its tributaries as a motif, placing the framework of the water system on a map of the country.

“It took on the appearance of a Japanese tree with golden apples, each representing a major city,” she said. “The cities were marked with symbolic figures, such as a small detail of the Old Courthouse and a portion of the Millie fountain used to designate St. Louis.”

Mrs. Meiere believes that a good mural should be “something that cannot be taken away without hurting the design of the building. If the building can look as well without it, it shouldn't be there in the first place.”

SHE reads and studies extensively before tackling any job, for each must represent a different theme and emotional appeal. A devout Catholic, she has, however, completed many successful commissions not only in Protestant churches but in Temple Emmanuel of New York and other outstanding Jewish places of worship.

“After all,” she said, “what is the purpose of church art? It's to help people pray, to make them more aware. This can be common to all churches and temples.”

She is looking forward now to an assignment to create mosaics for the Stations of the Cross in a Catholic church.

“I've just returned from my first trip to the Holy Land, and I made the Stations of the Cross on the Via Dolorosa and now I feel that I'm even better prepared for this commission,” she said. “I have brought back with me something of the feeling, the emotional approach which I had when I was there. Now, my work must transmit that feeling, that emotion to those who make the Stations in this church.”

Long active in the work of her church and especially in the activities of the Associated Alumnae of the Sacred Heart, Mrs. Meiere has visited 111 of the order's 180 houses. But her travels must come between commissions because once she accepts a job, she works at it seven or eight hours a day—or even longer, if necessary—and six days a week. She has been known to work 36 hours at a stretch when a deadline was approaching.

“But I love it,” she said. “My friends ask me why I don't retire and do what I want to do. That doesn't make sense because this is what I want to do.”

mother used to picnic in the countryside around Columbia. It seemed like a fitting memorial.”

One recent Saturday we again unpacked our sandwiches under the big oak trees and joined the half dozen groups of lunchers a few hundred yards from the busy highway. And once again we thought what a wonderful idea someone had, to plan a living memorial for such a living memory.

Caviar for the Top Brass

By Betty Beale

WASHINGTON
THE Capital's top brass are getting so wrapped up in canapes they couldn't see a cannon for the caviar. Hardly a day goes by that a top level Army, Navy or Air Force officer doesn't have to toss a big to do for a visiting uniformed big-shot or for his own civilian boss.

The paragon of the Pentagon should be viewed as a “must” partying with more alarm than the atomic bomb.

Ever since he became Secretary of the Army, Wilbur Brucker and his wife have been so fated that to keep from being fatted they've had to do setting up exercises every morning. Now Secretary of the Air Force and Mrs. Donald Quarles are getting the A-1 treatment.

The Navy will get an extra dose of the festive life when Adm. Earl Mountbatten of Burma and Countess Mountbatten appear on the scene the end of this month. With the Eisenhowers out of town the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs.

Burke will fire the opening gun on 10 parties in seven days!

AT LEAST defense entertaining is cheaper than civilian. Parties are thrown on service posts, using post personnel, officers' clubs and service bands. The uniformed VIP's know their hors d'oeuvres. Best I've ever tasted were served at the Boiling Air Force Club when Gen. Nate Twining and his wife gave a reception for the Quarleses.

“You can tell a man planned this,” observed Austrian Ambassador Gruber as he helped himself to succulent lean slices of thick, rare roast beef, chunks of hot steak in a seasoned sauce and spiced hot meatballs.

PICASSO IN PRESIDENTIAL RACE—As Averell Harriman's star soars, so do the hopes of a Capital art collector, knowing that the Governor's crazy about modern art. “Wouldn't it be nice,” she coos, “to see Picassos hanging in the White House?”

The Little Woman A Memorial to One Who Deserved It

By Clarissa Start

MY HUSBAND and I usually pack a picnic lunch when we drive up to the softball games at Missouri U., our mutual alma mater. Just this side of Columbia, there's a small roadside park, up a hill and under some trees. “Hauschild Park,” reads the marker.

We used to wonder if it might have been named for Christine Hauschild, who used to work in the university's loan fund office. The loan office was a familiar place to us impoverished students who sought tuition on credit, and Miss Hauschild was a familiar and beloved figure. For one thing she was so very pretty, for another, she was so very kind. The sort of person who realized that college students, for all their boldness and brashness, are often terribly unsure.

Each semester I was first interviewed by another woman and this one had a touch of the sadist in her technique. “You've reached the absolute limit,” she would say with finality, as our loan passed $75, then $100, then $200. “We will not be able to grant your request this time. You'll just have to go home.”

EACH SEMESTER the loan was approved, usually at 4:30 or 4:45 p.m.; registration deadline was 5. Each year Miss Hauschild offered comfort during the hours of waiting. “Don't worry, we can't lose you, you're too valuable a student,” she would say.

question. “It was named for Christine. I was on the garden club committee the year it was dedicated. Christine loved the out of doors and she and her friend,” she would say. The truth was that, like many a student bowed down with financial woes, my record never rose above mediocrity. My education was of importance only to me. But Miss Hauschild made you feel as if it were important to her, too.

From my first paycheck ($15), $10 was paid on the student loan which had reached the mammoth proportions of $440. With each receipt, Miss Hauschild would send a little note. “We're so proud of you,” she would write. “We feel you were worth all our efforts and we're so glad we were able to help.”

Occasionally she would send a tactful suggestion. Such-and-such a women's club in St. Louis had contributed to the fund. It would be thoughtful to write them a letter of appreciation.

IT MUST HAVE COME as a shock to many former students when Miss Hauschild died. She was still young. And many others must have thought of all the things they had left unsaid. Last fall, a friend of ours, Peggy Phillips of Stephens College, invited us to stop by her house for lunch before the game. As we dined on a sumptuous buffet we explained we usually lunched more simply, at Hauschild Park. And that reminded us—

“Yes,” Peggy anticipated the

Chicken and Asparagus
Ingredients: Two whole chickens (from large frying chickens), one-fourth cup water, one can (about one pound) green asparagus, four tablespoons flour, milk, one-half cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese, salt, pepper, paprika.

Method: Have chicken breasts each cut in half and keel bones removed. Place in 10-inch skillet with water; simmer covered, turning a few times, until tender—10 minutes or more. Remove bones from chicken; dice. Drain liquid from asparagus into measure; add broth from steamed chicken and enough milk to make two cups. Melt butter in one-quart saucepan over low heat; stir in flour; add milk mixture; cook and stir constantly until bubbly and thickened; simmer five minutes more; stir in one-fourth cup of the cheese and salt and pepper to taste. Cool and refrigerate sauce, chicken and drained asparagus. At serving time, divide asparagus among four individual casseroles, each holding at least one cup. Dice chicken and arrange over asparagus. Spread sauce over chicken; sprinkle each casserole with one tablespoon of the remaining cheese and dust with paprika. Heat in hot (425 degrees) oven until bubbly and hot—10 minutes or longer. Serve at once. Makes four servings.

Sour Cream Sauce
Two egg yolks or one egg; one-half cup sour cream, salt and pepper, one tablespoon tarragon-flavored wine vinegar. Beat eggs in upper part of double boiler. Stir in sour cream and vinegar. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until thickened. Remove from heat and season to taste. Serve at once on fish or vegetables.

Gourmet Recipes For Pork

By Edith M. Barber

PORK will be among the meats featured in the markets for the next few months. When well cooked, it is one of the most delicious meats on our menu list.

There are a number of really epicurean recipes for pork as well as those prepared by the simple methods of browning and braising. As you must know, pork needs to be thoroughly cooked. A Swedish housewife delights in using a pressure cooker in the preparation of a pork loin. She uses a light-weight stainless steel cooker, popular in Sweden, as well as in this country. She has supplied her favorite recipe in detail.

Another gourmet type of recipe is simpler to prepare and calls for an orange-flavored sauce, added after the chops have been well browned. Sometimes she has pockets cut in thick chops and stuffs them before browning. After they are browned, they must of course be covered and allowed to simmer on top of the stove or in the oven for an hour or so.

It should be mentioned that with or without a sauce, stuffed pork chops are delicious.

Pork Chops With Orange Sauce. Four to six pork chops, three tablespoons butter or margarine, three tablespoons flour, one cup orange juice, one-fourth cup lemon juice, one-half cup water, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one teaspoon grated orange rind, one teaspoon lemon rind grated, and one-half teaspoon salt.

Brown chops on both sides. Melt butter or margarine. Stir in flour. When well blended, add orange juice, lemon juice and water. Add sugar, grated orange rind and lemon rind and salt. Stir over low heat until mixture thickens. Pour over chops. Cover and let simmer about an hour until meat is tender.

Swedish-Style Pork Loin.

Two and three-quarter pounds boneless pork loin, one-half cup weak vinegar, one-half cup white wine, one-half cup water, one or two red onions sliced, one stalk celery sliced, one bay leaf, five cloves, ten peppercorns, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon crushed juniper berries, one-half carrot sliced and parsley.

Combine the ingredients for the marinade in the pressure cooker. Bring to pressure. Remove from heat, allowing pressure to drop normally. Trim excess fat and gristle from the meat. Pour the marinade over the meat. Set in a cool place (refrigerator) for a day or two, basting occasionally with the marinade. Then brown the meat without adding fat in the cooker. Add one-half cup liquid from the marinade and one-half cup water to the meat in the cooker. Cook 40 minutes at full pressure. Remove from heat, allowing pressure to drop normally. Remove meat to a platter. Thicken sauce for gravy. Serve over meat. Yield: six servings.

Repetition

A PERSON does not wish to make himself a bore by repeating in the presence of his family things that he has said before.

Naturally, the chief source of conversation is the experience the person has had before he came into the possession of a family. Unless he married late in life, the family-less period would not be more than 30 years.

Unless the person was exceptional, the first three years will be a total blank. And unless the person has a phenomenal memory he will be unable to recall everything that happened in the remaining 27 years or so.

OF THE THINGS that happened and which he does recall only a small percentage will have sufficient dramatic appeal to create interest and deserve repeating. Thus the average person will be strictly limited in his material.

If the person has arrived at middle age he will have spent some 20 years at least with his family. Throughout those years he will have greeted them on awakening in the morning. He will have sat with them through countless breakfasts.

He will have returned home from work and joined them at dinner for evenings on end. He will have spent long evenings with them and vacations, and whole days off each week, and holiday week ends.

THE NUMBER OF HOURS spent with his family will greatly exceed the time needed to tell about everything of a dramatic nature he can remember that happened to him before the family came into his life.

The person has one of two choices. Either he can sit as silent as a wooden Indian contributing nothing to the assemblage. Or he can launch out in a dramatic description of some youthful experience with the almost certain prospect of being stopped and reminded that "You have already told us that."

CHRISTOPHER BILLOPP.

Television Notes and Gossip

THE late Carmen Miranda's last performance, recorded on film by NBC-TV cameras, will be seen on KSD-TV at 7:30 tomorrow night.

A girl who is important to NBC-TV color telecasts is never seen on home screens. She is Marian Stafford, NBC television's "color girl." Miss Stafford is the "human test pattern" used by directors and camera men to help adjust cameras and lighting for the network colorcasts. Her skin and hair are the color and texture best adapted for color work.

CBS-TV's musical version of Charles Dickens' Yuletide classic, "A Christmas Carol," will be presented again on the network Dec. 15.

TV sets have stood up under regular use better than many other home appliances. The life expectancy of a TV set is much greater than experts would have dared to predict five or 10 years ago.

Bert Wheeler, a top comedian 25 years ago with a salary of $3000 a week, is making a comeback as a comic Indian in a "horse opera" series for small fry. He says his present salary wouldn't have kept him in champagne in his salad days.

Alfred Hitchcock, whose "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" series is seen on KWK-TV, says he uses only short stories as a basis for his plays. No attempt is made to shorten novels or full-length plays to a half hour. Hitchcock's aim in his plays is to "combine comedy with the macabre."

It took George Washington two hours to cross the Delaware in 1776. In re-enacting the scene for the "Father Knows Best" television series, a boatload of troops stood in the boat for two days while the scene was filmed.

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

THE SMALL hotel in San Francisco welcomed Donna with the friendliness which was traditional. It had been over a year since she had stayed there but the desk clerk remembered her and the manager asked about Mrs. Prentiss who had spent a few weeks with them every summer.

When Donna informed him of Mary's death he said, "I'm sorry to hear it. She was a charming woman. We shall miss her."

The fact that he had known Mary Prentiss and liked her made Donna feel at home. The room, which had been reserved for her, was smaller but on the same floor as the one they had shared. Donna gazed down at the traffic, twisting its tortuous way beneath her window and decided to have dinner sent to her room.

The train from Phoenix had been too late to make connection with the night train for San Francisco so she had been forced to stay in Los Angeles and change her reservations to the Daylight.

With a reckless disregard for expense she had gone to the Biltmore. But, unable to sleep, had tossed and turned during a night which seemed endless, wondering what the two men would say when they received her letters. Would they discuss her absence or ignore it? Call the agency for a girl to replace her or decide to get along without anyone until the apartment house was finished?

Once they had completed this initial building they would have no difficulty in renting it. Their financial situation would not be so precarious and their dispositions should improve. It had been a strain on all of them. . . .

No wonder after a night like that, followed by a lonely day on the train, her tired mind continued to function like a squirrel in a cage. But now at last she could relax. She ordered a light meal sent to her room, took a hot bath and put a warm robe on over her nightgown. Tomorrow she would have the papers brought up with her breakfast tray. She would not try to find a position over the week-end but she would read the ads and get an idea of the situation.

DONNA had finished her supper and was waiting for the waiter to remove the table when the telephone rang. Her heart began to pound before she had lifted the instrument. It was probably the desk clerk calling about some minor detail. It couldn't be Phoenix. But it was. And at the sound of his voice, Donna forgot everything else. He didn't need to tell her why he was calling. She knew.

"Donna," he cried. "Are you all right? I've been trying to call you all day."

"Yes. It was delivered this morning. But, darling, you must have been confused."

"I was not. I knew exactly what I was doing."

Peter chuckled. "You mean you deliberately sent my letter to Arthur and the one you had written him to me?"

"Peter Grant, what are you talking about?"

"That's what you did. If you hadn't I'd not be talking to you. But I knew if you told Arthur you loved me it must be true."

Donna drew a deep breath. "Oh, darling, I do."

"Then why are you in San Francisco?"

"Do you want me to come home?"

"No. I agree with Art that you need a little vacation. We're not as busy now as we

AFTER returning to Spain in disgrace, Columbus stayed there for a year and a half. Then he was allowed to take four caravels across the Atlantic. The purpose of this trip—the fourth and last voyage of Columbus—was to discover a water route to the Indian Ocean. Columbus supposed that such a route existed between Cuba and South America.

Q. Did Columbus take his son on this voyage?

A. He took his second son, Ferdinand, on the voyage. This son was born only a year before Columbus reached the New World on his first voyage.

Ferdinand had many companions on the trip. About 40 members of the crew were boys between the ages of 12 and 18 years.

Q. Was the voyage made in quick time?

A. Yes, it was fast for that period. From the Canary Islands to the West Indies, the time was only 21 days.

Q. Did an eclipse help Columbus?

A. Yes. The admiral and his sailors were marooned, in a sense of the word, on the island of Jamaica. The nearby Indians grew tired of supplying them with food. Looking through an almanac, Columbus saw that a total eclipse was due on the 29th of February. Speaking to the Indians, he said:

"The God of the Christians will punish you if you stop bringing fish and corn to us."

We are told that the admiral knew the exact time when an eclipse would happen, but the Indians supposed that he was just spinning a story. After the eclipse started at the time mentioned, the natives were filled with alarm. They ran to beg the white men to ask their deity to stop the event. A promise was made, and from that time forward the Indians supplied food. A few months later Columbus and 100 of his men succeeded in getting back to Spain from Jamaica.
